PRIME MINISTER URGES SUPPORT OF LIBERAL PARTY

Requests Voters to Forget Those Candidates Who Are Independent Liberals

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Shawinigan Falls, Que., June 23. (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent directed specific attention to two independent Liberal candidates for parliament, Wednesday as he warned of the dangers of division to a Liberal Party he said he intends to lead as long as health and Providence permit.

In a day which took him to both sides of the St. Lawrence River, Mr. St. Laurent:

1. Spoke in four different places of the need to support only official Liberal candidates and urged the two Independent Liberals if they were really for him—to rally to the issue of the official choices.

2. Retorted with vehemence to a Progressive Conservative French-language newspaper advertisement, which, he said, charged that he had been picked as leader to get the French-Canadian vote in Monday's federal election and then resign in favor of External Affairs Minister Pearson. The ad also said he had been picked by former Prime Minister King as his successor and not by delegates to the National Liberal convention.

Says Election Will Reaffirm

Mr. St. Laurent said the election would reaffirm the broad basis of his choice by representatives of all sections of the country. He has been chosen leader by the convention but Mr. St. Laurent intended to go on as leader just as long as health and Providence would allow.

Earlier he spoke in Three Rivers, hometown of Quebec's Premier Duplessis, in Nicolet and Cap de la Madeleine. He is due to fly to Newfoundland today, four days before the country goes to the polls.

He directed no fire at Mr. Duplessis, one of his main political rivals, but he did have words for Jules Biron and Romeo Morrissette, Independent Liberal candidates in Three Rivers and Champlain ridings respectively.

'Lone Wolf candidates can jeopardize victory", he warned them, just as an independent Liberal had given victory to another party in February's by-election at Nicolet-Yamaska. A person was either for the official candidate or against the Liberal party.

Want 80,000 Hillside Acres Of Bleak Exmoor Restored, Farm Leaders Ask Govt. Aid

By DON GILBERT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Bristol, England, June 23—(CP) — Farm leaders want Government help to get Exmoor's bleak acres into food production.

Exmoor is in the poor relation of prosperous west of England agriculture. Its 80,000 hillside acres, skirting the Bristol Channel in West Somerset and North Devon, became rundown in days when Britain relied little on homegrown foods.

Agricultural experts say its problems are similar to those of 6,500,000 acres of "marginal" land in England and Wales. They say these are areas capable of rapid improvement provided proper farming methods are introduced and the pump primed with fresh capital.

Survey of problems

Bristol University and the Somerset National Farmers' Union have completed a survey of Exmoor problems. Their report has given rise to new demands that Britain pay more attention to her own neglected land as source of food and less to expensive development schemes in faraway places.

The Exmoor survey disclosed that on five farms out of six in the area profits are less than the market value of the labor used in operating them. Only one in three connects with an adequate road. Most farms still are without electric power and on many of them water facilities are insufficient although rainfall averages high.

To get Exmoor out of its difficulties, farm leaders urge government short-term credits to enable farmers to plow up worn-out pastures and seed better types of grass. Already the more enterprising have made a start on reclothing the hilly fields, but the cost has been prohibitive to most.

Once better pastures is brought into being, the experts say, more cattle can be maintained and the cycle of fertility quickened.

TEN DOLLARS A WORD

Wellington, N. Z. —(CP)—Upper House members of New Zealand's parliament seldom engage in long debates. A check through parliamentary records revealed that the speeches of one member of the Upper House, in terms of his annual salary have cost the taxpayers $10.45 a word.

COLDWELL WANTS SOME FORM OF CROP INSURANCE

Claims Liberal Govt. Has Made No Pretence at Solving Problem

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Broderick, Sask., June 23 (CP) — There is nothing in the record of the Liberal government, "not even in their present set of promises," to give real hope that they are willing to tackle the job of providing some form of crop insurance, M. J. Coldwell, National C. C. F. leader, said Wednesday.

"We in the C. C. F. are convinced that whatever the difficulties they are not insurmountable. Furthermore, the consequences of not having some form of crop insurance — consequences measured in terms of human suffering and economic collapse — are too great to delay any longer.

The 61-year-old C. C. F. leader, who is stumping his own drought ridden constituency of Rosetown-Biggar, told an election meeting in this village 115 miles north of Moose Jaw that his party's 14-point program for agriculture included a plan of crop insurance.

He accused the Liberal government of ignoring the need for crop insurance to protect prairie farmers from drought, and said the government's "persistent inaction in the face of disaster that drought can bring in Western Canada comes close to criminal negligence."

Mr. Coldwell said the C.C.F. pledges itself to fight for crop insurance and irrigation to protect the Western Canadian economy from its natural hazards.

Mr. Coldwell, whose recent addresses have been primarily agricultural in topic, noticed many persons from the adjoining constituency of Lake Centre in his Broderick audience.

Of John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member in the last parliament for that riding, he said:

"No matter how fine a conservative gentleman your candidate may be, remember that you're voting for a man who will be tied up with a party machine that is in league with Premier Duplessis of Quebec in one of the most sinister alliances of the history of this country."

NATIONAL UNITY THEME OF TALK BY PC LEADER

Says His Party Will be Faithful to the Constitution

Montreal, June 23 (CP)—Progressive Conservative leader Drew was en route to Toronto today after assuring Quebec voters that his party would be faithful to the constitution which guaranteed provincial rights.

He wound up his Quebec tour Wednesday with visits to Lachute, St. Jerome and Montreal.

At an afternoon political rally in suburban Ville St. Laurent near the giant plant of Canadair, he told a large gathering including some employees of the plant, that not a single job would be lost if his party takes office after Monday's Federal election.

In fact, he said, in all likelihood opportunities will be increased because his party would expand Canada's air services.

He said the $22,000,000 plant had been sold to the American owned Electric Boat Company for $4,000,000 without Canadians being given a chance to purchase the plant.

Mr. Drew spoke in French and English at all his meetings Wednesday.

"National sovereignty, provincial autonomy, the liberty and initiative of French Canadians," he promised, "will be fully preserved by the policies that my government will put into effect."

Wants More Co-operation

Mr. Drew said he had been surprised to hear that public men speaking outside the province of Quebec had intimated there was something sinister in the fact that as Premier of Ontario he had co-operated closely with Premier Duplisses.

Canada would get along "a lot better," he said, if there was more of the co-operation which existed between the governments of Ontario and Quebec.

At Lachute he claimed that Canadians are being more heavily taxed than people in any other country in the world.

He attacked Prime Minister St. Laurent for a statement "not worthy of a Canadian Premier" in which he claimed that Mr. Drew had criticized Defence Minister Claxton because the latter had introduced the Family Allowance Act.

Mr. Drew said he had asked Mr. Claxton to appoint a committee to investigate the National Defence Department because they had bought North Star planes with the people's money and then proceeded to dismantle them.

"I caught them cold," said Mr. Drew. "Mr. St. Laurent should have asked for Mr. Claxton's resignation."

Charles, Winner Over Walcott For N.B.A. Title, Wants to Be Fighting Champ Like Louis

By CHARLES DUNKLEY

Chicago, June 23 — (AP) — Ezzard Charles, who has wanted to be ring champion ever since he started boxing at the age of 14, realized his burning ambition last night.

After 13 years of slugging, the lithe 27-year-old Cincinnati Negro won the N. B. A. version of the world heavyweight title by soundly defeating Jersey Joe Walcott in a 15-round battle.

Charles, the champion, won the unanimous decision of the three officials; approval of the National Boxing Association; the consent of Joe Louis, retired champion; and the blessing of the newly - formed International Boxing Club, promoters of the bout, which has him on an exclusive 3-year contract.

But now he has to convince the New York Athletic Commission, which is on record favoring a tournament among contenders, and Massachusetts, which does not belong to N.B.A. Britain, too, will have a champion of her own Sept. 6, when the British Board of Boxing Control will recognize the winner of the Lee Savold - Bruce Woodcock bout.

Last night's contest was in Comiskey Park, home of the Chicago White Sox, where 12 years ago to the night Louis won the championship by knocking out Jim Braddock. The weather was clear and warm.

Lost His Speed

Jersey Joe, the 35-year-old Camden, N. J., Negro family man, staked everything on a knockout blow in the first two rounds. But the faltering veteran, who one year ago was beaten into submission by Louis, had lost much of his speed and ring cunning as the result of the year's absence from the ring.

The crowd of 25,392, which paid $246,546, was not disappointing to Arthur Wirtz, James D. Norris and Louis, who formed the I.B.C.

However, it was in sharp contrast to the 45,500 fans who paid $715,470 to see the Bomber get off the floor in the first round to come on and flatten Braddock in the eighth.

Charles fought a cautious battle. Because he failed to flatten his aging foe, after having him on the way to a knockout in three rounds, the contest wound up the last three rounds to the accompaniment of boos from the crowd.

Generalship Helps

Jersey Joe, who rose to the top ranks in the heavyweights 18 months ago when he lost a disputed 15-round decision to Louis in their first title engagement, possessed ring generalship to escape a knockout. He back - pedalled and failed to fight in the closing rounds. Between the 12th and 13th, Joseph Triner, chairman of the Illinois State Athletic Commission, ordered Referee Davey Miller to tell Walcott's handlers to make him fight.

After Walcott outmanoeuvred and outfought Charles in the first two rounds, the advantage swung to Charles — except in the sixth which Referee Miller gave to Walcott because of two left hooks which Charles landed low.

Charles began to hammer out his victory in the third and 4th, with sharp lefts to the head and rights to the body. Walcott's best weapon, a left hook, landed frequently but lacked steam.

Seventh Best Round

The margin of Charles' victory became convincing in the seventh round. He banged Jersey Joe staggering into the ropes under right hands blasting to the chin. At the start of the seventh, Charles slipped and fell when he missed a swinging blow while retreating from Walcott's left. He sprawled in a neutral corner and looked as if doubting that he was on the floor. Referee Miller ordered him up, indicating he was satisfied that Charles was not knocked down. No count was started. When he regained his feet he piled into Walcott and had him in distress.

Charles' best round was the 10th. He caught Walcott with a solid right to the chin and Jersey Joe was in distress. His knees buckled as another right swished over his head. But the veteran forced Charles back into midring and the bell sounded before Charles could do more damage.

Walcott apparently fought only to remain on his feet until the finish. He feinted, sidestepped and backed away as he bid in his first fight against Louis. But age was catching up with him and so was his lean and hungry opponent who wanted to become a champion.

Charles at 181 3/4 gave 13 3/4 pounds to Walcott, who scaled 195½.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"Blimey, so you think that blonde upstart from Pinchbow, Harisona, or wherever he calls 'ome, as a chance to shake the bloomin' Hempah crown off me Austrylian locks, do yer?" snarled otherwise handsome Fred Atkins, present holder of the British Empire wrestling championship, "well, you know what happened last week. The sime things goin' to be the sime Saturday night, only worse."

I'm told there's to be no time limit on the bout and I'm just waitin' to get my hands on that Waltzing Matilda," the hardrock hunka man from Australia growled. "Last Friday, he 'ad things somewhat his way, and even accused me of fakin' that sore elbow. Why the very hidear. I'll knock his blinkin' 'ead right off his shoulders. Mark my word." But the sensational piece of wrestling dynamite by the name of Tug Carlson merely smiled in his blonde whiskers when he heard the terrific verbal thunder issuing from the lips of Atkins. "I defeated him fair and square last week and had the referee seen my foot in the ropes in the third fall, he would have let the bout go on. But he didn't and Atkins got the nod and I got a raw deal. It is going to be a vastly different fight on Saturday, for there'll be no time limit and Mr. Atkins will wish he was back in Kangaroo-Land long before the bout is finished.

So it looks as though the renewal of the furious feud between the two buckaroos of the bounce, bang and bashem fraternity will be a ring-tail-snorter.

The popular Al. Lovelock who claims Kingston, Ont., as his home and who has made a big hit with the faithful here in his last two appearances, meets a foeman worthy of his wrestling steel when he tangles with Ski Hi Lee in the semi-final. Lovelock's speed and agility should prove a match for the ponderous slow-moving skyscraper that walks like a man and the result should be interesting. In the opener Handsome Ben Sharpe will tangle with Frank Hewitt, said to be one of the rowdiest rasslers ever to grace a Belleville ring.

Here's a tip for you gentlemen who spend these balmy June days searching for the elusive trout, or whatever piscatorial beauties are in season. Don't miss your favorite sport at the beginning of next week, no matter what kind of government is returned. For, according to the experts, and John Alden Knight who rates high in this class, the best fishing of the month and possibly the season, will be yours on Sunday, June 26th through Tuesday, June 28th.

And, according to the estimable Mr. Knight, don't place too much belief in the old saying that the fish bite only in the cool of the morning and evening in these hot days. Many a beauty has been snagged when fishermen, like mad dogs and Englishmen "go out in the midday sun."

Knight quotes specific cases of record-breaking fish which were caught in the "Dark of the Moon" during the above-mentioned three-day period. And the catches were made during the midday hours, right under a hot summer sun. On Sunday, June 26th comes the "Dark of the Moon" (no moon in the sky). So instead of loafing in the shade get out there in the sun, for that is the time the big ones feed—and after all it is the big ones you want. Don't say you weren't warned.

Our underwater operator from the beautiful confines of lovely Wellington-on-the-Lake (no charge, Chamber of Commerce) tells us that the boys of the rod and reel are pulling some fancy pickerel, and plenty of 'em, from the sunlit waters of West Lake in the vicinity of the lakeside village. Personally we saw a handsome catch last Sunday while sojourning in the "Coolest Spot When the Weather is Hot." Seven beauties in all fell to the lures of the anglers after about ninety minutes patrolling the water. Not bad, even for dubs.

Ed. Hooper, Napanee star righthander, was in his flinging glory at the Exhibition Grounds last night when he hogtied, handcuffed and held in the palm of his good right flipper the bludgeons of the Trenton Flyers. Only twenty-seven men faced the Napanee pitching stylist over the nine-innings route, and both Flyer hits came in the fifth, but some weird, wacky baserunning cost them potential runs. Hooper struck out nine and issued one walk.

The Napanee infield sparked in the field and gave Hooper solid support, Bud Green playing short for the first time played that spot like a veteran and with his mates of the infield came through with three sparkling double-plays. The Napanee hickories had little respect for a pair of Flyer hurlers crashing out eleven safeties one of them a slicing homer by Vic Burtt and another a triple. Burtt, incidentally, got himself three clouts during the evening.

Seems there was another bit of farcial baseball at Point Anne last night when the Trenton team turned up with but eight players. The Pointers loaned them the services of a player and the game went on. At last reports the score was 18-10 for the homesters.

Dark Horse Vernal Jones Playing Bright Role in Cards' Battle For First Place

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Quick now, who's the regular first baseman for St. Louis Cardinals?

The average fan may have to think twice before answering "Vernal (Nippy) Jones," but the 24-year-old sophomore, in his colorless but efficient way, is doing a bang - up job for Manager Eddie Dyer.

It is doubtful if any other Redbird has done as much as Jones during the last 10 days to boost the Cards to their present spot in the National League standings — a mere half - game from first place.

In nine games he has wrecked enemy pitching for 17 hits in 18 times at bat for a gaudy .468 batting average. His hits included five doubles, a triple and a home run. He's driven in 17 runs. This remarkable spree has boosted his season mark 41 points to a respectable .311.

Jones collected three hits last night to give him a total of eight hits in the three games against the Giants.

He drove in two runs with a double and triple, and scored once to help the Cards defeat the Giants, 11-8. The victory moved the Redbirds to within a half - game of the first-place Brooklyn Dodgers, who were defeated by the Reds in Cincinnati 4-3.

The Cards won the hard way, making up an 8-1 deficit with 3 runs in the fourth. two in the sixth and a winning five in the seventh. Jones' triple drove in the final two runs.

Blackwell Wins First

Cincinnati had to go 11 innings to defeat the Dodgers. Ewell Blackwell, pitching 2½ innings of relief, received credit for his first victory of the season.

Don Newcombe, giant Negro righthander who came up from Montreal this season, went all the way for Brooklyn to be charged with his first loss. He has won four.

A trio of homers by Herman Reich, Hank Sauer and pitcher Dewey Atkins helped the last place Chicago Cubs outlast the Boston Braves, 9-8. Bob Muncrief, one of the 10 pitchers used in the game, was credited with his first victory as a Cub. Bob Hall was the loser.

Dino Restelli, rookie Pittsburgh outfielder, celebrated the end of his first week in the majors by blasting two homers to lead the Pirates to a 12-3 triumph over Robin Roberts and the Philadelphia Phillies.

The Detroit Tigers regained second place from the Philadelphia Athletics, defeating the Red Sox in Boston, 13-4, while the A's were bowing to the Cleveland Indians in a 14-inning thriller, 7-3

The Yankees received a tremendous scare from the cellar-dwelling Browns who whipped them, 5-1, in the opener. However, the New Yorkers came back to outscore the Browns, 10-8, in the nightcap. In the other American League game, the Chicago White Sox, behind the steady hurling of southpaw Bill Wight, defeated the Senators in Washington, 4-1.

FOREST PRODUCTS

Canadian forest products make up one-sixth of all Canadian railway traffic.

Meet Tug Carlson, sensational blondie of the rasslin' ring who caused a furore here last Friday in his outstanding battle with British Empah Champion Fred Atkins of Australia. The dynamic Tug claims he was the victim of a raw deal in the third fall, and demanded a rematch. Atkins is equally as anxious and that means anything can happen at Memorial Arena on Saturday night when the two clash for a second time. Popular Al. Lovelock meets Hi Lee in the semi-go and Ben Sharpe tangles with Frank Hewitt in the opener.

Embro Stable Takes Top Honors At Horse Show

(By The Canadian Press)

Yankee Doodle, a bay mare owned and driven by Wallace Munro of Embro, Ont., took top honors in the single roadster event at the St. Catharines horse show Wednesday. Winner of the Western and Palomino classes was Tomasido from the Half Dollar stables of Hamilton.

Bob Falkenburg scratched himself and Gertrude Moran from the mixed doubles to conserve his physical resources for an all-out defence of his Wimbledon men's singles tennis championship.

In explaining his withdrawal Falkenburg said he was troubled by a "slight back strain" and did not wish to risk further injury in the mixed tournament. He refused to discuss the injury, but another American entry said Falkenburg had been playing with his back taped.

Two British Wightman Cup players—Jean Quertier and Joan Curry—were defeated. They were the only seeded home players in the singles events.

Quertier, seeded sixth, lost to a lesser known Briton, Mrs. E. W. Dawson-Scott, 6-4, 6-4. Curry, eighth seed, fell to Mrs. Sheila Summers of South Africa, 6-3, 7-5.

The Aga Khan's Hindostan won the Irish Derby Wednesday at Curragh, Republic of Ireland, by one and three-quarter lengths from William Woodward's American-bred Brown Rover. Pink Larkspur was third. Brown Rover at 5-2 was the favorite in the mile-and-a-half derby. Hindostan paid 7-1. Twelve started.

George F. Slosson, 95, whose half-dollar cue aided him to world's championships in six types of billiards, died at Boston Tuesday. Slosson was a child prodigy in billiards. At the age of eight in Ogdensburg, N.Y., he made his shots while propped up in a box at the table side. The world famous native of De Kalb, N.Y., included among his billiard pupils such well-known contemporaries as King Edward VII, Mark Twain, Charles A. Dana, France's President McMahon, and Gen. Ulysses S. Grant.

A Cuban pitcher accused of "climbing up into the stands and knocking hell out of a fan" was suspended indefinitely from organized baseball. President J. Walter Morris of the Big State League announced at Dallas, Wednesday the penalty against Ramon Rogers of the Sherman-Denison Club. Morris also fined Rogers $50.

A 1,006-pound black Marlin, caught in Panama Bay may provide a world record for Louis Schmidt Jr, 33-year-old American angler who has only one arm and one leg.

The fish, measuring 14 feet in length with a girth of 76 inches, was caught June 11, five miles south of San Joe Island. Its weight is 30 pounds above the accepted world record that has stood since 1926. Schmidt, an employee of the Panama Canal at Balboa, hooked the fish on the first day of a nine-day fishing trip. But the story was not told until Wednesday as preparations were made to file a record claim with the International Game Fish Association in New York.

Dr. Stanton, owned and driven by W. L. (Lindy) Fraser of Forest, Ont, broke two Buffalo raceway records in winning the $10,000 Great Lakes race Wednesday.

The gelding took the mile dash in 2.04 excelling Gay One's mark of 2.04 1-5 set earlier in the meeting, and paced the 1 1-16th mile in 2.11, erasing the former record of 2.13 1-5 established by Jimmy Creed in 1947.

MADOC JUNCTION

Shower By Friends S.S. Presentation Honor Bride-Elect

Madoc Junction.—A pleasant time was enjoyed on Friday evening, when Mrs. Nathan Wannamaker was hostess for a delightfully arranged shower in honor of Miss Rosella Fitchett, popular young bride-elect. There were 20 girls and young married ladies present.

The living room was artistically decorated with pink and white streamers and vases of beautiful pink and white peonies.

The early part of the evening was spent in singing led by Mrs. Forde Stapley, and Mrs. Hugh McMullen. Readings were given by Miss Mary Chambers, Mrs. Charles Stapley and Mrs. Hugh McMullen, followed by an amusing car contest.

Rosella was then asked to take the seat of honor by the table, while Miss Mary Chambers read an address which was signed on behalf of those present by Laura Gray, Lula Harlow, Evelyn Wannamaker, Ella O'Bryan and Mary Chambers.

Mrs. A. Gray and Mrs. J. O'Bryan then carried in a prettily decorated basket filled with gaily wrapped parcels, which Miss Fitchett unwrapped, revealing many lovely and useful gifts for her future kitchen.

Rosella graciously expressed her thanks to all her friends and invited them to come and visit her, when she is settled in her new home. All joined in singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow".

Abundant refreshments were then served and a happy social hour spent together, with each one present signing her name in the bride's book.

Presentation Made

At the Sunday afternoon service in Eggleton Church, Rev. H. N. Burgess made a few remarks, then asked Miss Rosella Fitchett to take a chair at the front of the church, while Mrs. Warren Harlow, superintendent of the Sunday School, read an address, signed on behalf of the Sunday School by Rev. H. Burgess, Mrs. Harlow, Mrs. Bridges, Mrs. Bruce Stapley and Mr. Bert Reid.

Miss Gladys Clarke then made the presentation of a lovely black leather bound "Wedding Gift" edition of the Bible, in appreciation of Rosella's services in the Sunday School as pianist, and as teacher of the Girls' Class.

Rosella expressed her thanks, adding that it was always a pleasure to her to help in any work of the Sunday School.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Rules in bridge will not restrict your initiative. They tell you the boundaries of safety. Knowing them you are better equipped to let your judgment or your conscience be your guide.

An opening bid of one in a suit promises five tricks, among which are four high cards, of which two are sure tricks; and a suit that is biddable. These are the true requirements.

You may like to open with a shortage in some item. As with no more than three high cards. Or with only one sure trick. Or with only four tricks. Or with a suit that is not quite biddable.

If so, there is no law against it. Except, as I like to point out frequently, the law of self-preservation. But do not say it is correct. Admit it is wrong but you like to do it anyway.

Even when wrong, your bid may not bring a bad result. You may be lucky enough to find partner with the value in which you were deficient. But this is no proof that your wrong bid was right.

In a deal to be discussed here, south was the first to speak when he held this hand:

♠ None
♥ A Q 10 4
♦ J 8 7 6 5
♣ A 7 4 3

This hand contains six tricks, two sure, two biddable suits. Therefore, it has one trick and one biddable suit more than needed for an opening bid of one in a suit.

But it has only three high cards; the two aces and one queen. It is short one high card for the needs of a true opening one bid. Change the diamond jack to a queen and it would be enough.

Despite this lack of a high card you may refuse to pass. You may put up a strong argument in favor of opening with a one bid.

As your main reason you will say it is a good tactical bid. Or the distribution is such that it is worth a chance. Good for you. But don't say it is right.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, June 23 — (AP)— When David Niven and Sam Goldwyn called off their contract this week, it marked the end of a profitable deal for the veteran producer.

The actor has been under contract to Goldwyn for the last 15 years, excluding a six-year war service period. His deal still had a year to go when it was ended. So friendly was the parting that both shed tears in Goldwyn's office.

Since Niven returned from the war, Goldwyn has profited $1,000,000 from the actor's services on loanouts to other film makers. Niven was loaned at $150,000 for 10 weeks, the normal time for making a picture.

Fabulous Deals

Goldwyn's British deals were fabulous. Niven's services in a Korda film ran overtime, calling for a payment of over $400,000. Another deal gives Goldwyn releasing rights in this part of the world of a Scarlet Pimpernel sequel.

Meanwhile, Niven was paid his usual weekly salary of $3,000. Which is no small potatoes, but a minor part of what his talents were earning.

News Notes

Fred MacMurray says he's playing his 50th screen role in "Borderline." His first was "The Gilded Lily." . . .

Nice to see Polly Moran acting again in "Adam's Rib." Remember her fine comedies with Marie Dressler? . . .

Erich von Stroheim finishes "Sunset Blvd." and returns to France July 22. He'll film "Fires of St. John" in the French Alps . . .

Charles Pidutti of the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club golf professional rested on his clubs last night, and gazed about him at an august company of linksmen.

For Pidutti, playing in the Canadian Open Golf Tournament at St. George's Golf and Country Club, Toronto, came home with a neat 76 in the first eighteen-hole round.

The Bay of Quinte pro came out with a four over par in a field of 189 competitors from all parts of the United States and Canada.

Pidutti's score ranked with those of such well-known goners as Jules Huot, Laval Sur Lac; Gerry Kesselring, Kitchener, schoolboy golf sensation; Hugh Borthwick, Toronto; Bill McPartland, Tulsa, Oklahoma; Gordon Brydson, Mississauga, Toronto; Clair Chinery, Cedar Brae; Jim Thompson, Dundas and others.

He split his 76 with 38's going and coming, and finished well ahead of several well-known Canadian golf pros.

R. H. Green, Cataraqui Golf and Country Club, pro of Kingston finished with a 38 and 42 for an 80 while John Watson, Trenton went around in 84.

The entire field goes again today with the low 100 and ties going into Friday's round.

Leading the pack is starry Dutch Harrison, Little Rock, Arkansas, who shot a sizzling 66 for six under par.

AT THE McCARTHY — Deanna Durbin has only two telephones with which to answer the calls of three handsome suitors in her new Universal-International comedy hit, "For the Love of Mary," closing tonight at the McCarthy Theatre, in which Edmond O'Brien, Don Taylor and Jeffrey Lynn are co-starred with her.

Kiwanis Jrs. Lose to Picton By 6-5 Score

Kiwanis Juniors lost a close decision to the Picton team on the latter's diamond last night, the homesters edging them 6-5 in a close game.

Drury, Picton righthander went the route for the home-town crew. Joe Nolan started for the Juniors and went for five innings. He was relieved by Don Semara who took over with the bases cluttered. He got the first man out but Keith MacDonald smote a mighty triple to right field to clear the sacks and give Picton a 6-4 lead.

Juniors had the winning runs on bases in the ninth. Two were on but Al. Galbraith after lofting a high foul struck out to end the game. Kiwanis got their fifth run in this inning.

Shannonville Edges Cannifton 8-7 in S.H. League

Batteries: Cannifton, Baberstock, Juby and Smith. Shannonville, May and York.

BURIED WEALTH

China is one of the world's foremost coal countries with reserves estimated at 243,669,000,000 tons.

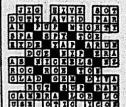
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:



Little Benny's Note Book

I was watching ma sewing on her sewing machine and wondering if she'd tell me I couldn't have any money to buy ice creem from the Cheerio man just because she gave me some to buy a Frostybar from the Happy Days man about hour ago, and I thawt, G, I wish could think of a swell big compliment to tell her, and make her feel generous.

And I thawt till I thawt of one, saying, Hay ma, did anybody ever tell you that you look just like Irene Dun?

Irene Dun being ma's favorite lady, and ma said, Now dont be silly, do you really think so?

Sure, ma, gosh, I bet if Irene Dun woke up and saw you in the next bed, she'd think you were her sister, I said, and ma said, Sutch nonsense, although I must say sometimes when I catch a glimpse of myself in the mirrer, I really have seemed to catch a sort of resemblants. Still, if it was really true, everybody would always be remarking on it, she said.

Everybody's probably jelliss, ma, especially other ladies, that's the reason, I said, and ma said, Oh, I think you're silly.

Saying it as if she really thawt I was all rite, and I thawt, Oh boy, it's going swell.

And I started to think of how to make it still beter, and pritty soon I said, Hay, ma, did anybody ever tell you that you look like Gregory Peck?

Gregory Peck being her favorite man, and she said, Now you're just being redickuliss. In the ferst place Gregory Peck and Irene Dun dont look any more alike than day and nite, she said, and I said. Then that just proves you look even more like both of them than they do themselfs, no matter how good looking they are.

Oh hush and keep quiet till you get a little sense, ma said.

Being the end of the Cheerio man idea and proving you can ruin the best ideas by werking them too hard.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

Edmonton, June 23 (CP)—Mention of the Royal Canadian Golf Association can produce a burn under a western sports writer's collar these days faster than a boiling prairie sun.

When the R.C.G.A. announced the Canadian open and the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association tournament would be held in eastern Canada almost three months apart, tempers west of the Great Lakes became a little wild and woolly.

First reaction came from a batch of the top professional golfers in western Canada who vowed they would boycott both events.

Included were stars such as Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Henry Martell of Edmonton. They had counted on the two tournaments being held close together so they could cut down on expenses by taking both dates in one eastern junket.

It Says Here

In a nut-schell, George (Edmonton Journal) Mackintosh says it is an imposition to ask far western professionals to make two long trips to play in two tournaments.

Says George: The eastern pro who wins the C.P.G.A. honors under these conditions will be the holder of a rather hollow title.

Misery Loves Company

But Stan (Edmonton Bulletin) Moher sees a possible worthwhile development in his crystal ball—growth of a common bond between prairie professionals and those on the other side of the Rockies.

He suggests that the boys may get together in a spirit of "let's do something for ourselves." Hope of golf growing up in western Canada, at long last, hinges on organization of a western Canada circuit.

Annual staging of a series of $2,000 meets, say at Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver, holds out a promise of success, Moher says.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, June 23 — (AP) — Johnny Mize, currently a benchrider with New York Giants, probably will play first base for the National League in the All-star game next month . . . Johnny was benched in favor of Joe Lafata because he wasn't hitting in his old style and was fielding in his old style . . . Nevertheless he forged ahead in the balloting when Eddie Waitkus was shot ... Maybe that shows why the pennant races are so close. The veterans are slipping a bit but no newcomers have appeared who are good enough to knock the old - timers off the All-star list . . . The balloting, in fact, shows only two real standouts — Brooklyn's Jackie Robinson and Detroit's George Kell, until you get down to the outfielders. There's no doubt that the six guys on top in that department are real pros who belong on anybody's All-star team.

Speaking of All-star games, Bob Feller isn't the only guy who doesn't like to pitch in them . . Lefty Covington, a colorful character who pitches for Tampa Smokers, was sounding off recently about the Florida International League's All-star contest the other night . . . "I'm too valuable to my team to work my arm off for a gold baseball," Lefty protested. "I can't live on the honor — my grocer still charges me 15 cents a loaf for bread." . . . At this point owner Tom Spicola intervened with the command: — "If you feel that way Lefty, then don't pitch. But just don't pitch and keep your mouth shut about it." . . . John McMullan, reporting the incident for the Miami Daily News, commented: "For years Lefty had been told by various exasperated managers and owners to shut up and pitch. Now, for the first time, he had been told the reverse — don't pitch but shut up."

A MATTER OF DUES

Bromborough, Cheshire, England —(CP)— Construction of an £8,000,000 ($32,000,000) power station was held up by 650 workmen who struck because of two workmen's default in paying £3 ($12) union subscriptions.

6 R.D. Oust Electrics From Soccer Series

Northern Electric's soccer team were eliminated from the Provincial championship district playdowns in Trenton last night when they went down to a 3-0 defeat before the strong 6 R.D. RCAF eleven.

The game was closely fought especially in the first half when both teams failed to score.

6 R.D. took over in the second half. Millar opened the scoring after five minutes of play and repeated ten minutes later to put the airmen two up. Hughes fired home the third 6 R.D. goal with thirteen minutes of play remaining.

Referee—Farnell; linesmen, Fletcher, Wilkins.

Two High-Ranking Officers of Carrier Will Face Charges

Courts Martial to be Held On Grounding of Big Ship

Halifax, June 24 — (CP)—The commander and the navigating officer of the aircraft carrier Magnificent will face charges arising from the grounding of the big ship near Liverpool, N. S., June 4 at separate courts martial here June 28.

An Atlantic command announcement today said that Commodore G. R. (Gus) Miles, O. B. E., Commanding Officer of the carrier will be a defendant in the first court martial presided over by Rear Admiral E. R. Mainguy, O. B. E.. Chief of Atlantic Command.

Lt. - Cmrd. W. D. F. Johnston, navigating officer of the carrier, will be defendant at a second court martial presided over by Capt. E. P. Tisdall of Ottawa.

A naval spokesman said that texts of the charges against each of the officers would not be available until sometime tomorrow.

Cmdr. V. W. Howland will officiate as the Judge Advocate for both hearings. The courts martial will open with the traditional one - gun salute and a bare sword will be used to indicate the verdict. At the end of the hearing if an officer is guilty the point of the sword is turned toward him.

The hearings will be held at the Stadacona Auditorium and will occupy June 28 and June 29.

The Magnificent ran aground during exercises off the Nova Scotia south shore on what a spokesman said was an uncharted, submerged rock.

Under her own power and with the aid of escorting destroyers she worked herself off the rock and moved back to her Halifax base.

WOMAN PERISHES IN POLICE CELL OF GUELPH HALL

Fire Starts Short Time After Victim Arrested on Liquor Charge

Guelph, June 24 — (CP) — An investigation into the death of Mrs. Margaret Dell, 47, who perished in a smoke-filled cell in the city hall here late Thursday night, was ordered today by Crown Attorney J. M. Kearns.

The fire started in the cell, believed to be fireproof, a short time after the woman was arrested on a charge of consuming liquor on licensed premises while on the prohibited list of the Liquor Control Authority.

Police say a check of the woman's cell was made 10 minutes after she was locked in and Mrs. Anne Hillis, police matron, reported everything in order.

A few minutes later Cadet William McCart, on desk duty at the station, thought he heard a scream. He detailed Constable Delbert Pointon and Cadet Tom Mayes to investigate.

As the officers entered the cell block they saw flames and smoke coming from the woman's cell. They said Mrs. Dell was clutching the bars of the small cell window and screaming "terribly." The intensity of the fire prevented them from approaching to rescue her.

Pails of water which they threw into the cell appeared to have little effect on the blaze.

Dr. W. J. Armstrong of Kitchener will conduct a post-mortem examination today to determine cause of death.

'Punch' Quesnel Will be Hanged On September 29

Sudbury, June 24. (CP)—Albert (Punch) Quesnel, 33-year-old Espanola paper mill worker, was sentenced Thursday night to be hanged Sept. 29. A jury which deliberated nearly six hours convicted him of murder in the strangling last March 25, of 71-year-old Mrs. Harry Cleland at Espanola.

The sentence raised the possibility that Sudbury will have its first double hanging Sept. 29. Gerard Chretien was sentenced last week to be hanged the same date for the rifle-slaying of William Wilson in a Sudbury home last Dec. 9.

Quesnel's lawyer, Leo Landreville, told reporters at the conclusion of the trial that he planned to launch an appeal immediately.

Mrs. Cleland was slain while walking home alone late at night from a bingo game in Espanola, 40 miles southeast of here. Her partly-clothed body was found the next day in a gully near her home on the outskirts of the paper mill town. Investigation showed that the woman hed been sexually attacked.

Defence Counsel claimed that the entire case hung "on a hair", a single strand found on a sleeve of Quesnel's trench coat. He said the prosecution had not proved that the hair was Mrs. Cleveland's.

Mr. Justice Smily said in his charge to the jury that the evidence in the case was mostly circumstantial. But in many cases, circumstantial evidence could prove the guilt or innocence of an accused person.

Toront's Tax Rate Set at 30.5 Mills

Toronto, June 24 (CP)—Toronto's 1949 tax rate was set today at 30.5 mills, eight mills less than last year.

By a vote of four to one, Board of Control broke the deadlock which resulted at a meeting Thursday night and recommended the new tax rate to city council.

The general was set at 20.60 mills. Board of Education rate was struck at 9.90 mills. Separate School supporters will pay on a total tax rate of 33.15 mills.

Mayor Hiram McCallum predicted that with the 30.5 rate "the average small home owner" will pay no more taxes than last year. The 1948 rate of 38.5 mills was based on a lower assessment.

If this year's tax rate had been based on last year's assessment, he said, the tax rate would have been 42.9 mills.

Lord Milverton Leaves Labor Party, Sees UK Travelling to Precipice

London, June 24 — (CP) — Baron Milverton, 64, Thursday told a hushed House of Lords he is resigning from the Labor party because of its determination to nationalize Britain's iron and steel industry.

"I am unwilling to be a silent passenger on this sinister journey," Lord Milverton said in an unexpected personal statement.

"I am one of a large number of people of an independent mind who saw the merits of the labor party program of social justice but who now are beginning to feel uneasy about the lengths to which the rest of that program is taking them.

"The road on which we are travelling leads to a precipice of the foot of which clearly emerges the totalitarian state."

He said present controls over national life have reached "dangerous proportions." The gap between principle and performance in some nationalization plans were more dangerous than the dollar gap.

Lord Milverton was created a baron in 1947 and joined the Labor party the following year. As Sir Arthur Frederick Richards he once was governor of North Borneo and held various posts in the federated Malay states from 1910 to 1920.

He rose Thursday on the motion to consider the iron and steel bill in committee. When he finished speaking he walked across the floor of the House and sat with the Liberals. He later applied to join the Liberals.

SAYS ST. LAURENT REFUSED TO MEET THE PROVINCES

Drew Given Noisy Welcome at Toronto

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, June 24 — (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, Thursday night charged the Liberal government with refusing to co-operate with the provinces.

Mr. Drew, who swings today into his eighth week of federal election campaigning with speeches in Cobourg and Belleville, said Prime Minister St. Laurent declined to meet the provinces to discuss matters that best could be carried out by co-operation between governments.

Duty to Co-operate

"Either this country is to be one nation or it is not," he said. "If it is to be one nation then it is the duty of the federal government to co-operate with every provincial government chosen by the people of that province."

He addressed a rally in Massey Hall and also made a national network broadcast, in which he said:

"We believe that our federal constitution must be respected if we are to have national unity. We also believe our local affairs can best be conducted in every province when the provincial governments and municipal councils have their clearly-defined authority over local affairs and are assured of adequate financial resources to carry out their responsibilities."

Mr. and Mrs. Drew were given a noisy reception when they entered Massey Hall. The hall, with a seating capacity of 3,500, was filled before they arrived and confetti, paper ribbons and balloons showered down on them as they marched down the centre

Criticizes Paper

Mr. Drew directed much of his criticism at Prime Minister St. Laurent and at the Toronto Daily Star. He defended his own co-operation with Premier Duplessis of Quebec and his friendship with George McCullagh, publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail and the Toronto Telegram.

People were being told by the Star that if the Progressive Conservative win Monday's election Premier Duplessis will rule Canada. He said that was a fair example of the kind of thing the Star has been doing for some time.

Mr. St. Laurent, said Mr. Drew, had had something to say along the same lines. He had spoken of the two "Georges."

"Let me say publicly that George McCullagh is a friend of mine and I am proud of it," said Mr. Drew. "I would have been happy if he had been on the platform this evening. If we had more people like George McCullagh who were ready to fight for a free and honest press this country would be a lot better."

If Prime Minister St. Laurent wanted to talk about "sinister friendships," then he regretted that the prime minister should have the friendship of the Toronto Star. "Few newspapers," he added, "would stoop to the tactics of the Toronto Star."

But if Mr. St. Laurent preferred to "associate himself with Hindmarsh, then let me say that he is not showing very good jurgment in decent citizenship either in Toronto or in the rest of the country."

Why Every Voter Should Vote

Canadians on Monday June 27th, will go to the polls all across Canada.

This, therefore, is the time for all who have the franchise to exercise it in justice to their country and themselves.

But there are many people who stay away from the polls in the notion that their votes will not affect the total result or from the desire to avoid responsibility of making a choice. The ballot is given them for this very purpose so that they may express their opinion.

When people avoid responsibility by not voting what they fail to do may help to affect the total results very materially. So in a very real sense whether many people vote or abstain from voting they do take part in the election and the country's choice is made on what the ballots have signified.

There is the difference between those who vote and those who do not vote, those who vote cast their ballots for their choice and are justified in having done their full duty, while voters who do not go to the polls may really be helping to elect those who are not their choice. Besides those who do not cast their ballots do not help to bring out the fullest possible vote at the very time when the country desires the expression of the will of every voter as a measure of the public's favor of the candidates and parties and their policies.

Not to vote is unfair to the candidates and to the other voters who assume their full responsibility.

The voter's duty is to make a choice of the candidate which suits best the ideals and viewpoint of the voter and then to cast his or her ballot accordingly for the candidate deemed the best possible representative for the constituency. But those who do not use the ballot may really assist those whom they do not favor.

The ballot is the most treasured possession of the democratic peoples. It must be honored by being used when the country goes to an election.

To vote is the duty of everyone possessing the franchise in justice to themselves and all other citizens and to their country.

Washington, June 24 — (AP)—A top-secret naval building always under heavy guard today was the centre of a three-alarm fire that also threatened a row of large munitions warehouses.

The fire was reported under control at 4 a.m. EDT.

One man familiar with the United States Navy installation said if the flames had spread to the warehouses just a few feet away "the entire southeastern part of Washington would have blown up."

The area is considered so secret that shore patrolmen with drawn revolvers kept Washington police, including the chief of police, from entering.

The Navy refused any immediate estimate of damage, explanation of the cause of the fire, or to tell what was in Building 13 of the Naval Research Magazine.

A reporter for the Washington Times-Herald said, however, that the two-storey building was burned out.

Some Districts Report Fair Yield of Crops

Toronto, June 24 — (CP) — Although weather conditions generally continued dry throughout Southern Ontario Thursday, some districts reported improved conditions and fair yields of crops.

In Essex county potato harvesting is in full swing. Harvesting was started several days earlier but farmers expect the crop to be only slightly lighter than usual. Heavier yields are expected as the season advances.

Quality of the potato crop is good, some officials said. Growers are getting a starting price of $2.50 a bag. Last year first-of-the- season prices topped $3.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, June 24 (CP)—Synopsis: That very warm, humid weather is back again as far as southern Ontario is concerned. Temperatures in the high eighties are forecast for Friday and Saturday afternoons. Thunderstorms are expected over scattered localities in the central and southern regions tonight.

Sunny Skies Cast Shadow Over Northeastern U.S.

New York, June 24 — (AP) — Sunny skies cast a shadow today — over dry farm lands in parts of the northwestern United States.

No relief from the long hot spell appeared. Some areas have had no rain for more than a month. Temperatures also have been running high, causing damage to fruit and vegetable crops. Some water shortages also have been reported.

Conditions in the heavily-wooded areas of New York State and much of New England remained hazardous. There have been 86 fires in the Adirondacks mountains since June 11.

Warmer and more humid weather was today's forecast for New York State, though some showers were predicted. Temperatures in the high 80's were expected, the same an forecast for most of New England.

Twenty-eight of the victims were Dutch, including 11 crew. The other five were Egyptians who boarded the craft at Cairo.

The Italian News Agency Astra said the chief pilot had been identified as Hans Plesman, son of KLM's director general.

Bodies of 24 persons were recovered.

ASBESTOS MINERS VOTE TO RETURN TO WORK MONDAY

None of Guarantees Include Pay Raise

Thetford Mines, Que., June 24 (CP)—Half of 5,000 striking workers in the asbestos fields of the eastern townships will return to work Monday, ending their part in a violence-ridden walkout begun Feb. 13. They will return to the mines at their old wage rates and without the extra 15 cents an hour demanded when they went on strike.

However, there was every indication the men, in forthcoming negotiations with the asbestos companies, would gain 10 cents an hour.

The workers' settlement meeting last night followed a new strike-ending proposal by the companies concerned and it was known that a 10-cent an hour increase was included in this.

At the Canadian Johns-Manville Co. workings in Asbestos some 700 workers have been in the asbestos pits—in defiance of the asbestos workers syndicate strike—and they now are receiving the 10-cents-an-hour increase offered some weeks ago by the company to all who wanted to resume jobs.

Made Early

The back-to-work announcement was made early today by union chief George Dionne. It came amid indications a settlement might soon be reached between Canadian Johns-Manville Co., at Asbestos, Que. and upwards of 2,000 striking workers, thus bringing peace once more to Quebec's "serpentine belt" whence comes some 80 per cent of the world's asbestos.

Mr. Dionne is president of the syndicate of asbestos workers at the Quebec Asbestos Corporation. His strike settlement announcement was on behalf of Quebec Asbestos Corporation workers and those employed by Johnson Mines Limited and the Flintkote Mines.

He was not empowered to speak for workers of Canadian Johns-Manville Corporation by syndicate sources said union employees of that company would hold a meeting tonight.

The settlement announcement followed by 24 hours an announcement by the Johns-Manville Company that it was prepared to start operations in northern Ontario where recent deposits of asbestos have been found.

Miners here and at Asbestos rejected company proposals recently by a secret vote.

The strikers voted to return to work with only two guarantees from the three companies concerned.

The companies are the Quebec Asbestos Corporation, Johnson Mines Limited and the Flintkote Mines.

None of the guarantees included a raise in salary. The workers had asked for a 15-cents hourly increase. The basic rate was 85-cents-an-hour.

Quebeckers Observe Election 'Truce' In Celebration of Baptiste Day

Quebec, June 24 — (CP)—Festival mood reigned over Quebec province today as French - speaking Canadians celebrated the traditional "Jour De La St. Jean Baptiste," feast of their patron saint John the Baptist.

Virtually all businesses and industries were shut down and even politics — with a federal election only three days away—took a back seat as all major parties announced they would observe a "truce" for French Canada's national holiday.

Everywhere in the province religious and patriotic ceremonies will take up a full day dedicated to the remembrance of Quebec's historic past and a revival of old traditions and customs.

Thursday night, as the celebrations began with lighting of huge bonfires and singing of folksongs, the blue and white fleur-de-lis flag of the province decorated countless homes.

On many official buildings the province's motto "Je Me Souviens" — I remember — could be read on the provincial coat-of-arms.

This was Friday, a day of abstinence for all Roman Catholics, but Quebeckers, by a special church decree, were given permission to eat all the meat they want.

In Quebec City, even as dawn came quietly on this St. Jean Baptiste Day, some 75,000 persons were returning home from a midnight pontifical high mass sung under the stars at the Civic Hall Park by Most Rev. Maurice Roy, Archbishop of Quebec.

Two other masses followed in the small hours of the morning as 45,000 received communion from 100 priests. At one moment 25 other priests were called from 2,000 clergymen attending to help serve the hosts to the massed crowd.

Today in Montreal 1,000,000 people are expected to view the biggest St. Jean Baptiste parade ever staged there. Some 10,000 persons will participate.

Searchers Move Cautiously in Bush To Hunt Killer

70-year-old Farmer Believed Crazed by Issue Over Road

Mission, B. C., June 24 (CP)—Searchers moved cautiously into dense bush today to hunt down a woods-wise, 70-year-old farmer who, crazed by an old grievance over a road, shot and killed two women Thursday.

The British Columbia police and volunteers, with orders to "shoot to kill," sought Ivar Johnson, for 30 years a farmer in a Swedish - populated area five miles northwest of this Fraser Valley farming centre and some 45 miles east of Vancouver.

Police said he fled Thursday after firing at Provincial Police Constable Peter Bergen, and then burning his home where he lived alone.

Later, shots were heard and the bodies of 66-year-old Mrs. George Barrett, to whose home the road was being built through Johnson's farm, and Mrs. Maria Lindberg, 68, were found.

Searchers sat tight through the night on roads surrounding the 2,000-acre bush section.

It would be suicide to go in at night, one said.

"He's probably a better woodsman than anybody looking for him."

'Queer' for Years

Police said that Johnson, whom neighbors reported had been "queer" for years, held a long-standing grievance over a road bordering his farm.

Bulldozers moved in Tuesday morning to clear the road but work officials were told by Johnson that he would shoot if one stone fell on his property.

He warned workmen Thursday to stay away from a garden he had planted on the road allowance where the new road was to go.

The constable said Johnson went to his house to put his axe away, then fired two shots wildly from bush behind the dwelling.

By the time another constable arrived, more shots were heard and Mrs. Lindberg, a widow, was found dead. Mrs. Barret was found sprawled on the front porch of her house.

Soldiers Guard Homes

Mission, B.C., —(CP)—Soldiers guarded homes in the Mission district today as search continued for a crazed farmer, Ivar Jonson, alleged slayer of two women.

The men were volunteers from the New Westminster Regiment, stationed at Mission. They are armed with civilian rifles and guns.

Rain during the night hampered searchers who renewed the hunt at dawn through the heavily-wooded district five miles from here in the Silverhill area.

STRIKING SAILORS IN BRITISH PORTS RETURN TO JOBS

Arland, Strike Leader for C.S.U., Return at Their Own Terms

London, June 24 (Reuters) — William Arland, strike leader in Britain for the Canadian Seamen's Union, announced today that striking Canadian sailors from ships in British ports will return to work this weekend, on their own terms.

Arland said in an interview published by the London Star that the London agreement "will undoubtedly set the pattern in other countries affected by the strike."

Acceptance by Canadian shipowners of the proposals submitted on behalf of Canadian strikers in British ports averted a threatened strike by 27,000 British dockers.

The Canadian Seamen's Union called its strike three months ago after the owners signed contracts with the rival International Seafarers' Union (A.F.L.)

Arland, who had an interview Thursday night with Dana Wilgress, Canadian high commissioners, said the conditions for resumption of work are:

1. No victimization;
2. All charges against striking crews are to be dropped;
3. Crews are to work at the wages and under the conditions existing before the strike was called.
4. All strikers are to go back as members of the Canadian Seamen's Union.
5. No pressure is to be applied to have them join the Seafarers' International Union (A.F.L.) with which the owners signed contracts several months ago.

Arland is understood to have submitted the union proposals to the high commissioner, setting a time-limit of four hours in which to get an answer.

Inside that time, he received a telephone call saying that the owners had accepted the proposals.

Arland is believed to have told the high commissioner that he would not be prepared to accept responsibility for continuation of the work stoppage by 27,000 men if the proposals were not accepted.

Old Line Parties Dodging Real Issues of Campaign Says C.C.F. Toronto Member

The two old line parties are successfully dodging the real issues in the current Federal election campaign a C. C. F. gathering was told at a party rally heard at the Collegiate auditorium on Thursday evening.

As guest speaker for the meeting, William H. Temple, C. C. F. member in the Ontario Legislature for High Park, Toronto, stated that the real issues of the election campaign were the critical housing shortage and the establishment of a national health scheme. It was these issues which were being avoided by the two old line parties.

"To hear the Progressive Conservative leader George Drew you would think the election issues were the North Star and the Canadair," stated Mr. Temple. "On the other hand it would appear from the Toronto Star that the election issues were St. Laurent's grandchildren."

A Fiery Speaker

Mr. Temple, a fiery speaker who in private life is salesman representative for textiles, flatly accused the Liberal government with doing little to remedy the critical housing shortage which has resulted in extremely crowded conditions in all the major cities.

And he also said they had failed to carry out a national health and hospitalization plan which had been long promised.

Turning to national economic conditions, Mr. Temple said that in his opinion Canada was facing another depression. "It was the "boom and bust'" cycle in capitalistic economy," he said.

To substantiate his prophesy that there would be another depression, the speaker pointed to his own field of textile merchandizing. Such merchandise was plentiful — department stores were full — but prices were so high that the people cannot buy the goods which they manufacture.

Must Maintain System

"Our problem is to learn how to distribute the goods which we are able to produce so as to maintain our economic system," he said.

For the farmer he urged controlled markets which would affect a wider distribution of goods produced and at the same time hold prices in line.

Under the present capitalistic system manufacturers were controlling tariffs to keep out goods from other countries which should be permitted in to assist in paying for the purchase of Canadian surplus.

Again turning to the housing problem Mr. Temple stated this would not be solved until a government was elected which "will forget the loan companies and get out the bulldozers to tear down and rebuild slum areas."

"In wartime," he said, "the government had no difficulty in raising billions. What we need now is a government which will spend a small portion of that amount for housing and for a national health scheme and hospitalization."

Pays Tribute to Unions

Mr. Temple paid tribute to the trade unionist movement stating that the future of Canada rests with strong action by the trade unions. Political action by the trade unionists would herald a new social order and great things for Canada.

He referred to his own victory in High Park during the last provincial election and said this victory had demonstrated that the will of the people cannot be defeated. "High Park had been traditionally Tory" he said, "but it had been won through the volunteer efforts of many party workers." He believed the same thing could be done in Hastings.

Should Not be Subsidy Claim

C. C. F. candidate for Hastings South, Mr. Arthur C. Cole agreed with the federal government policy of family allowances but not as a subsidy for low wages.

It was no use to give family allowances with one hand and then remove price controls on the necessities of life with the other hand. Family allowances were of no use to a family with no home and yet it had been said by Liberal leader Mr. St. Laurent that there would be no subsidization of housing by his government.

Here he directed his attack on housing directly at the local Liberal candidate, Frank S. Follwell who, he said, "had failed to do anything for housing, while he was mayor of the city." Now when it was too late some rental houses had been provided but rentals were too high and already evictions were coming up because of tenants' inability to pay rentals of $42.50 per month.

"I lay the responsibility of these evictions directly at Mr. Follwell's door," stated Mr. Cole. "Timely action in providing housing could have averted these evictions."

Would Provide Houses

The C. C. F. party had pledged itself to inaugurate a subsidized housing program which would provide rental homes at rentals which the working man could afford.

The speaker pointed to trade unionism as the one factor responsible for raising wage rates in the Bay of Quinte area by one half during the past five years. It was not lawyers nor doctors in the government who had accomplished this but the trade union movement.

It was the big manufacturers and cartels which were responsible for depressions. Liberal leader St. Laurent was trained as a corporation lawyer whose first duty was to protect large cartels.

Need Labor Code

The speaker touched briefly on the need of a federal labor code, on the need of a veterans' investigating committee and on hospitalization.

Referring to the health plan of the Hon. Paul Martin, Mr. Cole pointed out there was no use having hospitals unless the people could pay their way in these institutions. It was here that hospitalization assistance according to need was required.

Chairman for the meeting was Mr. Douglas Bews who introduced Colin Carter of Picton, C. C. F. candidate for Prince Edward - Lennox, and Mr. Cole, candidate for Hastings.

Mr. Cole in turn introduced a number of party workers seated on the platform without whose assistance, he said, the election campaign would have been impossible.

POLICE COURT

A charge of drunk driving against Henry Scruby, Cannifton, was dismissed by Magistrate T.Y. Wills in local magistrate's court this morning as judgment was given on the case which was heard one week ago.

The charge against Scruby was laid by police following an accident at the C. N. R. crossing on Cannifton Road when it was charged the accused had run into the side of a moving train. Police testified the driver was drunk, following the accident while defence counsel Frank Cushing, K.C. produced witnesses who said Scruby appeared normal.

Bernard Egan, Read, pleaded guilty to a charge of drunk driving and was given seven days in the county jail.

Gerald Alton, Toronto, pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving and was assessed $5 fine and $3 costs. The charge arose following an accident on Dundas Street West early this morning.

Robt. Allen appeared in court on a charge of consuming and also on an assault charge laid by his wife. Both charges were laid over until Saturday, July 2nd.

Jack Cole, city, was arraigned on a charge of stealing an auto, the property of Vincent Maher of Point Anne, the accused being remanded until Tuesday.

Police stated the auto had been taken from the rear of a local hotel and was found completely destroyed by fire on the property of a Sidney township resident living north of Foxboro. It is believed the car was destroyed by fire started accidentally from a cigaret butt.

Forgery Charge Brings Sentence Of Two Months

Pleading guilty to ten charges of forgery and uttering, Harold Crawford, Sidney township, was sentenced to two months in the county jail when he appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in Magistrate's police court this morning.

The charges against Crawford involved the forging and passing of five different cheques the total value amounting to $185.50.

Alan Sprague, local solicitor, speaking toward mitigation of sentence for the accused, stated the complete restitution for the amount of the cheques would be made. He pointed out that this was the first time the accused had been in trouble of this nature.

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan urged for a jail sentence claiming that Crawford "must be taught a lesson."

In passing sentence Magistrate Wills noted the offences were "barefaced" forgery and stated the continuity of the offences could not be overlooked. He noted that one series of the forgeries had taken place in April and another series about one month later.

Inspector J. C. Hayes stated the accused had been brought back from St. Catharines to answer the forgery charges. Crawford had been in custody since May 25th.

WHAT HE SAID

Kingston, Ont., June 24 (CP)—Arthur Maloney, 29-year-old Toronto lawyer, said Thursday what he told the Canadian Penal Congress Wednesday about judges and the lash was this:

"It occurs to me that if some of the strongest advocates of the lash were ever to have felt it themselves they would not feel so inclined to urge that it be used on others."

He denied saying that "the high and mighty" attitude of some Ontario judges might be improved if they were given "a taste of the lash."

CHEESE BOARD

Campbellford, June 24. (CP)—Boarded 2,120 boxes white. All sold, 30 cents, F.O.B. factory.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 24 — (CP) — Prices moved narrowly on a slightly firmer level in dull trading here today. Early prices were the best and then eased as volume sagged. Golds and base metals showed slight advantages while a few key industrials improved.

A slight amount of profit-taking on recent advances appeared in the junior gold producers. Seniors continued climbing with McIntyre, Lake Shore and Kerr Addison adding fractions. Junior producers eased pennies in early dealings but trading activity bogged down in mid-session.

Base metals opened easier, edged forward slightly, and again showed signs of weakening in mid - session. Consolidated Smelters and International Nickel slipped into the fractionally minus side while Noranda and Quemont were in the plus column.

HOGS

Toronto, June 24 (CP)—Hog prices at Stratford this morning were unchanged. First grade paid $29.50 to truckers for grade A delivered and $29.35 to farmers. At Hull, Que., hog prices were unchanged at $30.25 for grade A delivered, but the market was unsettled.

PRODUCE MARKETS

The egg market has eased slightly under cautious buying and supplies are ample for the demand. Country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free: Grade A large 51-52; Grade A medium 49-50; Grade A pullet 45; Grade A 41-42; Grade C 37-38. Wholesale to retail—Grade A large 56-57;

Court Reserves Judgment In Case of Assault Laid By Sanitary Inspector

Whether or not a health officer has authority to break into a premises to serve an eviction notice will be argued in magistrate's court here next week.

This was decided today by Magistrate T. Y. Wills when he reserved judgment on a charge of assault against Mrs. L. Hill, formerly of 337 1-2 Front Street. The charge had been laid by Sanitary Inspector George Whitman who claimed that Mrs. Hill had assaulted him when he endeavored to serve an eviction notice.

The magistrate reserved judgment on the case pending receipt of written argument on whether the officer had the right to force his way into the premises to serve the notice.

Testifying before the court Mr. Whitman said on June 16, he had gone to 337 1-2 Front Street, an upstairs rear apartment, to serve an eviction notice on one Mr. Jack Markell. The premises was being closed for health reasons, he said.

The door had been answered by Mrs. L. Hill who had refused to open the screen door to receive the notice. He said Mrs. Hill had told him Mr. Markell was not at home, and asked him to put the notice under the door.

Admits Screen Door Pulled Open

However, he had wished to serve the notice personally and pulled the screen door pulling out the hook by which it was fastened. Then he said Mrs. Hill had attempted to strike him and he had put out his left arm as protection and had placed the notice in the woman's hand. Then he claimed Mrs. Hill had struck him three times on the jaw with her fist.

"Did not Mrs. Hill tell you that her daughter was having a bath and that this was why she did not wish to open the door?" asked Defence Counsel Jack O'Flynn.

"She did," admitted the witness.

Mr. Whitman added that as a health official he felt he was authorized to enter the premises. "I am a public official merely trying to carry out my duty," he said.

But Mrs. Hill told a somewhat different story when she took the stand.

She said that after she had declined to open the door Mr. Whitman had pulled the door open and had tried to force her to take the eviction notice, and had walked past her towards the bathroom.

"Are you trying to tell me that Mr. Whitman tried to enter the bathroom where your daughter was taking a bath?" asked Magistrate Wills.

"No, no, nothing like that at all," interjected Defence Counsel O'Flynn.

Mrs. Hill denied that she had struck Mr. Whitman until she said, he had pushed her against the wall oin trying to force her to accept the notice. Then she had slapped him twice with her open hand.

Miss Beryl Hill, daughter of the accused, said she had been bathing in the bathroom when she heard a knock at the door. She had told her mother. When her mother had refused to accept the notice she had heard Mr. Whitman say he could "make her take it".

When she heard the door open she had wrapped herself in a blanket and had stepped out into the hall where she said she saw Mr. Whitman push her mother against the wall.

"I told him to let go and to get out," Miss Hill said.

She said she had seen the entire altercation between her mother and Mr. Whitman.

Written argument on the legal point of whether Mr. Whitman was authorized to force his way into the premises will be given by Defence Counsel Graham, acting for the city solicitor.

BELLEVILLE - TRENTON HIGHWAY IMPROVED

Motorists driving the Belleville-Trenton highway are finding a bit difference these days with the bumps now in process of being ironed out.

Employees of the McFarland Construction Company, Picton, are engaged in applying a hot mix, top dressing for the highway and are now well on the way toward completion.

Commencing at the C.P.R. crossing near the cemetery, the construction firm is working toward Trenton and by mid-week had progressed beyond the former Riley's pavilion. The new surface is a smooth black surface which motorists will appreciate in comparison with the former cracked surface.

Three Men, Boy Narrowly Escape As Plane Crashes

Three men and an eight-year-old boy narrowly escaped death Wednesday when an explosion in the airplane in which they were passengers plunged them into Pen Lake, north of Bancroft.

C. E. Stringer, I. R. Stringer, Bancroft businessmen, pilot Ed Lawson, and an unnamed eight-year-old boy, were taking off from Pen Lake, when the explosion occurred cutting off the motor. Pilot Lawson managed to set the plane down on the water and keep it floating just long enough for the four persons to get out and start swimming.

After twenty-five minutes in the water the Stringer brothers managed to assist the young lad, a non-swimmer, to shore. The men were stranded for 12 hours.

In addition to the loss of the Seabee aircraft which was owned by Smoky Beebe, the men lost more than $300 worth of fishing tackle and personal belongings.

Scranton, Pa., June 24 — (AP) —United States coal miners start a 10-day paid vacation at midnight.

The big question as the last shift files out of the mines tonight is: will the miners actually return to the pits at the end of the vacation period?

If Lewis and the operators negotiate a contract before the present one expires June 30, the miners undoubtedly will be back on the job when the vacation ends. But the miners have an iron clad rue: no contract, no work.

SOME ACCIDENTS

It was pointed out in a circular of the Ontario Highways Department the other day that three children had lost their lives in accidents riding bicycles double or tandem. This, of course, is an infraction of the law and the cases not altogether isolated. People almost anywhere have seen young children with large bicycles riding with another child on the machine, trying to steer the bicycle, an almost impossible task for a small child with a passenger ahead of him or her.

The Department thought worthwhile to refer to this fact with of course the inference that it would be an object lesson to others to avoid double riding on bicycles. For it is very difficult to steer with someone sitting on the handlebars and a spill is not infrequent. The only way to avoid accident of this kind is to obey the law.

It is very easy to have a spill if there are two on a bicycle and it may be a serious one. To avoid such possibility no one should offer a ride to another under such conditions and no one should accept it.

The infraction, of course, is not confined to small children for those who are older seem prone to offending as well as children.

There are bicycle riders who are not children, who take chances on the highways with practices which are highly dangerous, as where riders ride abreast on a heavily-travelled road or cavort from side to side in defiance of all rules.

Highways and streets are dangerous for the unwary and thoughtless in this modern age. They were dangerous in other days when horses used to run away but they were not so dangerous as they are today with the speed of modern travel, the weight of the vehicle, and the volume of motor vehicles which throng the highways, roads and streets.

IN OTHER DAYS

People may sigh with a longing for the quieter days of the past but conditions of life today make for rapid movement. In the horse-and-buggy days travel was over roads which cannot compare with the motor highways and a day's travel by horse was quite wearying and the distance covered was not great.

It was all right until science produced a faster means of locomotion and then the change began in earnest. In the changes which have been wrought by the coming of the car are to be included the passing of the horse, the stage coach, and the pony express, and a great saving of time.

Sometimes people like to go back for the moment, they think of what former conditions were and in their mind's eye they can see themselves back a few decades.

Last Sunday the Nebraska Pony Express was revived for a brief period. It is associated with the pioneer day memories. But it was not a duplication of the express travels of old. The riders this week included a girl of 19, a boy of seven and a man of 83, which was not the case back in the sixties, says the New York Times. It seems then a man contracted with the U. S. Federal Government to carry the mail from "St Jo," Missouri to California. The riders took Lincoln's first inaugural through in 7 days and 17 hours but their regular schedule was ten days. They crossed the Sierras, the deserts, went through South Pass, often in hostile Indian country, in all sorts of weather and carried their pouches of feather-light letters. On the open plains they rode stripped down like racetrack jockeys, unarmed and depending on their speed for safety from attack. That pony express adventure lasted six months and was abandoned with the coming of the telegraph.

But there is a similarity, though the telegraph supplanted the couriers. As the newspaper says "The pony express rider and the pilot are not far apart in spirit nor in the work done. Eternal youth rides the winds today as it did then."

SCIENCE AND FAITH

There is much that is mercifully hidden from human understanding. No amount of groping around by the brightest minds will ever reveal it as proven scientific fact. But by acceptance of a divine revelation we are informed of all that we need to know for our soul's welfare. No one gets anywhere by adopting a sceptical attitude. Faith is positive; scepticism is negative. By faith great things are achieved; but nothing can be accomplished by presumption, doubt or denial. It is a worthy aim to increase knowledge by every possible means; but it is the highest wisdom to live by faith.—Hamilton Spectator.

Dispatch is the soul of business.—Chesterfield.

MOTHER PRIDE

I've scrubbed and I've stitched. I've baked and I've swept.
There were times when I've laughed and times when I've wept.
And was it worth while, should you ask me, I'd say:
It was. I have sons to be proud of today.

For years there is much that a mother must do.
With cleaning and cooking she runs the day through.
With watching and waiting the long nights are spent,
For 'til home are her children she's never content.

Worth while, did you ask me? My daughters are fair
And happily facing the same round of care.
I have sons to be proud of now grown up to men,
And for pride such as that I would do it again!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE OBJECT OF PRUNING

The man who is planting shrubs about our house keeps telling us that if we want the shrubs to be broad and therefore luxurious in growth, we must clip them.

This clipping or pruning process is quite a science. Nothing is gained by merely using the pruning shears vigorously. There is a right way and a wrong way to prune shrubs, and some of the most skillful gardeners have been experimenting all their lives on how to get the best results through this means.

How many lives we observe that have grown in an unbalanced fashion. Other lives have been pruned, clipped, by a series of sorrowful, tragic, humiliating circumstances, which kept them from growing tall in influence and position but made them broad in their sympathies and luxuriant in every fine quality of heart and mind. Business failure, the denial of personal ambition, loss of health—these things are hard to take, but the very fact that they cut back our lives sometimes makes life deeper and richer as a result.

And of course this is especially true when the hand of the Great Husbandman does the pruning. Then do we learn that God appoints us to many hard things, but He does it all that in the discouraging experience of being cut back in our growth, we may find a deeper, a richer, and a greater significance in life.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

How is this for a proposition: those of us who can get away into the country pretty well any time we please should stay off the highways on public holidays.

That there are tens of thousands who are free to get away to summer cottages or summer resort on weekends all the way from early May to November is evident on the highways each week from Friday afternoon to Sunday night. These are doctors, lawyers and other professional people who control their own working time. There are also increasing numbers of busines people who close up shop Friday, especially during the summer months.

But for the vast multitude, public holidays are still the rare and precious hours of escape. People who do not take any other holidays to pack their families in the cars and head for the distant holiday places. Each year these occasions become grimmer. The highways congest, traffic slows down, the accident hazard multiplies; and in general the holiday is in some measure marred for those to whom it was dedicated.

If, out of one of the big cities there are twenty thousand people who enjoy the weekend habit pretty well from May to November, then there are twenty thousand who could possibly be persuaded to adopt the convention of staying off the highways on public holidays. Their absence would be a wonderful help.

Especially since, among these regular weekenders, is a majority of those slick and masterful drivers who take a personal pleasure in beating the traffic. They are the sods who keep darting in and out of traffic, to gain three or four car lengths, and in so doing, create those terribly tiresome changes of pace in traffic, due to somebody always having to slow down and let them nick back in....

Nice people, these regular weekenders. But they ought to stay home on holidays.

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 23 (CP)—John Evelyn Strachey has a reputation for dry wit and a controlled temper, but sometimes he just can't see the joke.

He can hardly be blamed, since he moved his tall, square-shouldered frame into the food ministry slot left vacant by Sir Ben Smith, he has been a critic's figure of fun.

He brought snoek from South Africa, and it became a national synonym for evil-looking fish. He imported Algerian wine, which turned flat because people turned up their noses at it. His plan to grow peanuts in Africa was ridiculed by political opponents.

Nuts in the News

"Is the minister aware," asked Sir Waldron Smithers, Conservative member for Orpington and devout assailant of everything new, "that it is not the scheme, but the minister himself, who is nuts?"

Strachey, who entered Oxford a Conservative and emerged a fire-eating Socialist, has learned caution in office. He just smiled tolerantly.

A current crisis is candy. When rationing was in force, critics called it a farce. When the lid came off, supplies became short and Strachey bought caramels from Poland to appease the sweet tooths. The opposition when asked why Britain exported candy with one hand and imported it with the other.

Soft centres may earn hard currency, they agreed, but why not allow more sugar for home consumption?

Recently, Strachey told reporters that Britain will import 100,000,000 tins of sardines from Portugal—"if they are caught." He said Portuguese fishermen didn't do so well last year, and there was no guarantee they would do better this time.

Sardines and Seals

Some newspapers linked the sardines with a Capetown dispatch reporting that adult seals were deserting an island off South Africa, leaving five-month-old seal pups to die in droves.

Obviously, columnists decided, the runaway mothers had put out to sea in search of Strachey's sardines.

The Evening News, under a headline "Sardines Sighted of Strachey," devoted a poem to the food minister. It went like this:

"Will you walk a little faster? said a sardine to a snail,
"Mr. Strachery's close behind me, and he's treading on my tail..."

Mackenzie's Column:

New and Intense Struggle Within The Soviet Union

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

John Foster Dulles says "Events may be shaping up to a new and intense struggle" within the Soviet Union and the satellite countries.

He adds that "Soviet leadership is having to contend with problems in the satellite countries where there is steadily growing revolt against the extreme intolerance of Soviet communism." Speaking of Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Poland, Dulles declares that the people of these countries "will not willingly accept rigorous conformity to a pattern of life made for them in Moscow."

I quote Dulles because he long has been a student of Soviet Russian affairs, and has exceptional opportunities to secure information. He is a member of the United States delegation to the United Nations and attended the Big Four Foreign Ministers Council meeting just concluded in Paris.

Moscow Difficulties

The evidence is complete enough that there is no place in this day and age for totalitarian dictatorships, no matter what ideological banner they fly. The rank and file won't stand for such regimentation indefinitely — especially dictatorships imposed by foreign countries.

As might be expected, some of the worst clashes revolve about the communist attack on religion. Fresh trouble was reported Thursday by a Vatican source in Rome. It was stated that two leading bishops of the outlawed Uniate Church on Romania (the Uniate Church is a branch of the Roman Catholic faith) have been put to torture by communist officials in an effort to break their allegiance to the Pope.

Similar situations exist in Poland, Bulgaria and Hungary and far-off Northern Korea.

As pointed out in a previous column, this refusal of religion to knuckle under may well prove to be the greatest obstacle which Bolshevism has to overcome in its efforts to Sovietize the world.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

ALD. C. D. TICE REPLIES TO ALDERMAN ALLIN

Editor
Ontario Intelligencer

I presume as Alderman of this city and City Editor of the Ontario Intelligencer, that I have a right to reply to the letter in the edition of Thursday written by Ald. H. J. Allin, the chairman of Industries denying a statement made by me at the meeting of the council on Monday evening.

For the information of Mr. Allin the Ontario Intelligencer has a capable reporter from this paper attending the council meetings and I, as City Editor, am not in the habit of changing the context or writings of that reporter to suit my own ends if that is what he means. I do not think that would be exactly "cricket" and for further information there is a great deal of copy from the council that goes over the desk, that many times, I do not see.

As for the second part of his letter I do not wish to enter into any controversy through the medium of these columns, being that I am serving in two capacities but there will be a time and place when I can answer Alderman Allin as to the correctness of the statement made at the meeting.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ROADS

One of the oldest of all institutions is the common road. A path probably started it, and an animal may have been the pioneer. But as man multiplied and began to take interest in commerce, the roads multiplied. People must move around. They had to have roads over which to reach their many destinations.

Our fine roads came slowly. It was the automobile that deserves the credit, yet how many there were who fought against hte paved road, especially the farmers. But now it has proved a boon. The farmer has his car, and over the road he may shop, take in produce to towns miles away, enjoy many an entertainment in town and accomplish it all without the mud and mishaps of former days. The road has become his friend .

Too many people think of the road only as something to get over as quickly as possible. I like Tagore's idea of the road, however, as "a part of the destination." Whenever we leave our home for a journey we should begin to pick up interesting data all along the way winding roads, roads over mountains, into fertile valleys, around lakes and towns, through forests, and alongside rivers that dance and sing.

There is a mania for speed upon the roads, which is to be regretted. You see less and risk more when you speed. A highway, however cannot be made too beautiful. The parkway roads out of New York City are the most beautiful I have ever travelled. Like riding through a huge park.

City fathers should learn one of the greatest secrets for attracting people to their town, and that is to have a beautiful road, or several of them, to the entrance of their town. Entering some cities over unkept and ugly roads has prejudiced thousands against the town and the people in it as well.

Roads are the arteries of life and movement in a country. They are essential, and the better they are the more solid is the country. Endless wonders may be viewed along the road as you travel and have an inclination to learn. You can almost sense the thought and characteristics of the countryside people as you view the fruit of their labors.

The least traveled road is always the most intriguing and full of surprises. It stimulates the imagination most

NOW WAIT A MINUTE, PLEASE

In reference to the use of aluminum cooking ware, one J. I. Rodale, in a book about The Healthy Hunzas, a racial group of people the author has never seen, says: :

"There is some medical opinion, reinforced by a rather extensive literature, that aluminum cooking utensils should not be used, as aluminum causes intestinal disturbances."

What does rather mean—is the literature extensive or not? From what I have seen of it I agree it is extensive, all right, but so is a lot of other quack doctor and phony "literature."

The author Rodale continues: "Since it would require too much space here to discuss pros and cons of this highly controversial point, we shall have to be content with the mere mention of it. However, I might state that we threw out all our aluminum ware twenty years ago..."

Goodness knows I fade out whenever any kind of controversy looms ahead. However, I might state that we have used aluminum ware in our kitchen for years and we can certify it is just fine for health.

Then, still avoiding controversy, Mr. Rodale quotes a Texas physician who says he has insisted that his patients consume no food cooked or stored in aluminum vessels nor use baking powders containing aluminum salt (alum). The doctor tells of the "ptomaine poisoning" of twenty-five people who partook of food which was cooked and stored for a few hours in an aluminum vessel. The restaurant people closed shop, renovated, replaced aluminum vessels with steel, "and has not had any reported ptomaine since."

That's a fair sample of the "litreature" that supports the contention that aluminum ware is not healthful. When a doctor or any one else talks about "ptomaine poisoning" you may be sure he doesn't know what he is talking about. "Ptomaine poisoning" is a figment of the imagination. It just doesn't happen.

It's bad enough when the authors of such "literature" attempt to tell us that aluminum in minute quantities is poisonous, There is no evidence that aluminum in minute quantities is any more "poisonous" than copper or iron—minute quantities of all three are normally present in the body tissues. It is intolerable when such authors cry Presto Chango and pull ptomaine poisoning out of an aluminum vessel. The Hunza valley in the Himalayas in the extreme northern part of India is evidently not the only place Mr. Rodale has never visited.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Riboflavin Deficiency

Since I got out of the service I have had bloodshot eyes and a coated tongue and cracks at the ends of my lips...Eye doctors prescribed glasses and eye-washes to no avail. (M. C.)

Answer—In your place I'd take an optimal daily ration of riboflavin for two or three weeks, then a good daily ration of the whole B complex for many months.

A Bald Statement

I got a bang out of this street car ad I had to send it to you. (A. J. MacA.)

Answer—Thank you. The ad runs "Survey of 268 reveal Hatlessness is often to blame for head colds, grippe, ear infection, skin disturbances, eye trouble and early baldness'." So that's why they wear 'em well down over the ears.

Concussion

Please explain brain concussion, how it is diagnosed and what treatment. (Miss L. D.)

Answer—Concussion is shock following injury to the head.

How to Lose Weight

In 28 days I lost 30 pounds, following the regimen in your pamphlet. Perhaps this was too fast, but I felt no ill effects, so I stuck it till I reached the correct weight for my age and height. Several of my friends have had similar results. Many thanks. (F. W. F.)

Answer—Yes, at least three times as fast as I advise—for health and good looks. On written request accompanied with stamped self addressed envelope any reader may have the pamphlet How to Lose Weight.

WEDDINGS

GREATRIX—WYATT

Tall standards of white gladioli and ferns made a fitting background for the marriage of Monna Audrey Wyatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Wyatt, Hiller, Ont. to William Charles Greatrix, son of Mr and Mrs. Charles Greatrix, Belleville, at Christ Church, Belleville, on Saturday, June 11. The Reverend J. Grant Sparling officiated.

The wedding music was rendered by Mr. Dana Cook, organist of the Church, and Mrs. B. Kilpatrick, soloist, sang before the ceremony, "Through the Years" and during the signing of the register "Because".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a floor-length gown of blush satin having a slight train, lace yoke, and leg o' mutton sleeves ending in lily points over the wrists. Comparison Made On Crime Increase, Liquor Consumption

The June meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held in the Y.M.C.A. reception room with a fair attendance. Mrs. Montgomery conducted the worship service.

Miss Reeves read the financial report which was very encouraging. Mrs. Farnsworth gave a splendid report of the 72nd Provincial Convention held in Kingston early in June with 150 delegates present and 142 unions represented. The pastor of Sydenham St. United Church welcomed the ladies and stressed importance of temperance work, particularly among the youth of Canada.

Rev. George A. Little spoke at the evening session and said the liquor situation is the worst in the history of Ontario.

Condems Gov't. Control

Dr. Little advocated a program of talking facts and talking facts has put the Ontario politicians on the defensive. He defended the prohibition period and branded government control "an ignoble experiment".

During the Ontario Temperance Act, Ontario spent $10 million yearly on liquor; last year $220 million was spent an increase of 2,200 per cent. In some years under O.T.A. there were 8,000 arrests for drunkenness, last year 31,000 with 2,000 of them women. Under O.T.A. there was no liquor advertising.

Relief was at a minimum, juvenile delinquency was not an acute problem and jails were half empty, some of them closed. Compare the highway accidents, the divorces, neglected children and murders of 1949 and it must be admitted that the decade of 1916-1926 of the O.T.A., as far as liquor was concerned, was Ontario's Golden Age.

The next meeting will be in September.

The last meeting of the Hospital Auxiliary, before the Summer season, was held on Tuesday afternoon, with the President, Mrs. Gilbert Scott, presiding.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

Imported From Heaven

By ROY L. SMITH

There has been a new quality in the life of humanity since the day when Jesus first appeared among men.

The day of pentecost, which marked the birthday of the Christian Church, also marked the day when a new spirit appeared in the life of mankind. There is no way of explaining it except on the basis of the fact that it is a divine importation into this world.

Taking the Long Look

It is often a discouraging experience to look about us and see the evil that is rampaging in this world. But the very horror with which war, poverty, disease, injustice, exploitation, and a long list of similar evils are viewed is evidence of the fact that the race is making progress. There was a time when all these things would have been accepted as inevitable. Now we are planning ways to be rid of them, because Jesus of Nazareth insisted that they were not necessary.

> The Sunday School lesson for June 26: "Jesus' Continuing Ministry," Matthew 28:16-20; Mark 16:14-20; Luke 24:45-53; Acts 1:1-14; Hebrews 7:25.

It takes the long look to give us the proper perspective. When we look at the evils with which we are surrounded, and how far we are from the good world of which we dream, it is easy to be pessimistic, but when we read history and discover how far the race has come in the brief span of two thousand years there is abundant reason for giving thanks.

Eight Christian Achievements

When Jesus said "all power is given unto Me," He did not undertake to describe what a difference He proposed to make in the life of the world, but a brief glance about us at life in those lands mostly nearly Christian will reveal at least eight great achievements which represent the triumph of the Christian spirit.

1. The alien is no longer considered an enemy. All civilized governments have developed a system of citizenship passports which are a guarantee of good character, with the result that an honest man can travel anywhere on earth, outside of war zones, in safety and peace.

2. All the earth has come under the authority of civilized government, with some rights guaranteed to the individual

3. Charity dedicated to the relief of human suffering is organized today on a global scale, with great nations taxing their peoples without discrimination for the purpose of providing funds with which to stamp out diseases, feed the hungry, an rehabilitate conquered foes.

4. There is a world wide organization set up for the purpose of stamping out commercialized vice and prostitution.

5. Throughout the world there is a rising demand on the part of plain people that some device shall be found for settling international disputes, short of armed warfare.

6. Religion, calling itself Christian, is going to the ends of the earth establishing schools, hospitals, and training centres, all dedicated to the task of lifting the level of life for all mankind.

7. Everywhere on earth, but especially in Christian lands, the status of women has been vastly improved.

8. The defenseless of the earth —prisoners, little children, the poor—have come into a new dignity and enjoy more respect at the hands of governments and of individuals than ever before in the history of mankind.

It is not true, of course, that the Christian Church is alone responsible for these achievements, but it is true that the holy spirit which possessed Jesus is responsible, and as it spreads among men, the benefits immediately flow out upon all the race.

We Have an Ally

It is a fundamental Christian doctrine that every good and honest cause among men, every righteous movement, designed to improve the quality of life, has an ally in God.

A second basic Christian belief is our confidence that the Holy Spirit of the living God is active in the affairs of men, lending support to good causes and building up barriers in the path of evil. We do not worship an absentee God, but one who is vitally present and active wherever upright men labor in behalf of godly causes.

Our God is not through. He will never finish his task until all of life has been redeemed. He can never be expelled from His own world. He can never be overthrown in His own kingdom.

FRONTIER U.

By Oren Arnold

"Hey!" Ward yelled, and waved to those behind him.

He indicated with his arm the trail they were following had turned unexpectedly to the right. Polly and Ken waved back in understanding.

The trail was clear to Ward because he was accustomed to following his dogs' tracks. Moreover . . .

"Come on! Come on!" he yelled back again. "This is not a lion trail! It's a bear!"

"Bear!" Polly shrieked in new elation. "Hurry on, Ken! That means sure 'nough doings!"

"Three of them!" Ward shouted as his sister and Ken drew closer. "Looks like a mother and two middle-sized cubs. I oughta whip our dogs for this, but you can hardly blame 'em. Fresh bear tracks drive any hound wild! They've moved on fast, too. I only hope they don't kill one of the dogs before we can get there."

"Bears kill the dogs?" Ken asked, in a shout.

"I'll say! Not like lions. Some of these bears weigh as much as a yearling bull. They can kill anything, beleive me! You and Sis don't rush up foolish like. Hang back to tell Joy and the others."

Polly had been gazing ahead, astonished.

"Why Ward . . . there's Joy's horse! Up there where the dogs are barking."

He stared ahead. "Good lord!" he breathed. And then . . . "Where is she? I don't see her! Thought she was behind!"

He spurred frenziedly now, so that his horse fairly leaped ahead. He came near to Joy's horse. It was wild eyed, having scented the bears where the dogs were yelping, and he was backing away dragging its bridle reins.

"Joy!" Ward called.

But the noise of the dogs dominated everything. At that moment he saw the newspaper men, Glenn and Brookfield, who had come up and halted tentatively 50 yards or so away. Glenn was dismounting, camera in hand. He hastened forward on foot.

"Where's Joy?" Ward demanded, frantic.

"She was ahead!" Glen replied "Made a short cut when she saw the dogs had circled."

Ward had his .45 pistol out now, and he ran to the cave hole where the dogs were making such a disturbance. At once he saw Joy Boone crouched down there, and he became momentarily petrified from what he knew to be true. He just stood ther staring, incredulous, terrified with and for her.

Something in a man like Ward McMurray, however, carries on even when extreme emergency confronts him. He wasn't consciously thinking, but intuitively he knew that his gun was of no value here. You can kill a lion with a pistol shot, whereas one or two pistol bullets usually serve to infuriate a bear! Nevertheless, he took action immediately.

He kicked the nearest dog, sending it whimpering. Motions at the others scattered them. He stooped down.

By this moment James Glenn was snapping photographs. Ward didn't even see that. Ward made one foolish attempt to reach his haand down and lift Joy, foolish because the 10-foot distance was too great. She had seen him. She looked up, pale with fear.

"Take it easy!" he ordered. "Don't move! I'm— coming!"

Then the gallant young man slid down into that hole with her. He had holstered his gun.

"W-Ward!" she murmured, when he crept near through the leaves and trash on the cave floor. "It's . . . it's . . ."

"I know! Bears, Joy! Don't move. It's a mother with big cubs We couldn't even climb out. Stay behind me. Shut your eyes!"

Befors she knew what he was doing, he had taken a match from his pocket and scratched it on a rock. The light flared. He tossed it onto the leaves, near the animals.

Polly and Ken and the other two men above were fascinated spectators to the drama down in the slanting hole. Polly saw the flames take hold and flash rapidly through the dry trash down there. She jerked at Ken.

"Stand back!" she ordered all of them. "Back, quick!"

In a moment came a tremendous roar, from the largest bear again. Then a strange, eerie whimpering, almost a scream.

All at once there was a terrific scrambling.

A black-brown animal leaped past Ward, whose body sheilded Joy crouched down there. It climbed up the projecting rocks of the well-like entrance in one grand swoop.

The two smaller bears followed at her heels, crying like babies. Mother bears' call was an angry, terrorized, wavering sort of noise now. All three gained the surface again then plunged off into the wilderness.

Ken heard the dogs bark, giving fresh chase. But he payed no attention. He and Polly and Brook field were frantically reaching for Ward and Joy. Joy had already been lifted to his shoulders. Smoke all but stiffled them and flames had actually begun to burn Ward's boot leather.

In a matter of seconds the escape was complete.

Joy stood there shaking in Polly's arms. Ward was stamping out the fire. He turned to the others unexpectedly, grinning.

"Plenty of fun, eh?" he asked. "Never know what to expect on a hunt. Lucky I had a few matches even though I don't smoke. Fire will whip down a wild animal when nothing else will. Scares them to death. Come on chillun! Lets go on after them again!"

While the others stood there pale from sheer "nerves", he started back to his horse. He had to order his friends genially a second time to come on, if they wished to complete what they had started. Terry Brookfield was almost crazed with excitement; and as for the photographer, James Glenn—that young easterner was positively wildeyed! He had worked his expensive camera more rapidly than he had ever done before.

He reprimanded them severly, talking to them as if they were children, rubbing their noses in bear tracks and slapping them hard. Old Mag tucked her tail and cringed in shame.

"She knows better, the old hussy!" Ward grinned. Actually he disciplined the dogs with affection even though with firmness. "Lion trained, and chasing off after bears. Haven't you got any pride, Mag, you old flea-bit hound you! But they'll all do it. Hard to keep any dog of a bear trail. We'll cut down country a ways and turn 'em loose again. Still a good chance to pick up lions!"

There still hadn't been any time to discuss the adventure at the cave. Ward did all the talking The other riders were numbed.

Brookfield tried to heroize him, tried to ask a question or two, and Glenn was demanding some more poses of him to complete what he called "full story coverage". Both these men obviously were deeply impressed. Joy and Polly said nothing. Color had come back to Joy's face and she stared at Ward McMurray in a new sort of wonderment and admiration. Moreover, she spurred to be near him when abruptly he yelled "Come on!" again and strung them all out after the dogs. He had led off at a gallop.

Ken Palmer lagged behind to ride with Polly. Only when they were alone did be find his tongue

"That's the most wonderful thing I ever saw!" he declared. "The most dramatic thing! Good lord, Polly, just think of it!"

She nodded. They were riding faster now.

Suddenly Ken smiled broadly at her. Polly's black curls were streaming out behind, bouncing with the horses leaps, shaking around her cheeks tinted like mountain apples, touching her shoulders clad in turquoise green.

"Yes, Ken!"

"You live in a wonderful country!"

"Yes, Ken!"

"Ward is . . . he's tops! I never saw anything like what he did! Joy Boone was cornered for once in her life! The bears had her number, didn't they?"

"Yes, Ken!"

"I'm having the time of my life!"

Away up front they heard Old Mag . . . "Ow-u-u-u-u-u!"

"HURRY!" Ward yelled. She's got lion tracks this time! I can see 'em plain. Softer soil along here."

Ken Palmer rose in his stirrups.

"EE-YEOW!" he shreeked in sheer exhilliration.

Then he leaned low in his saddle, spurring, and his horse streched out. He passed all the others and presently was at Ward McMurray's side.

Polly, momentarily alone again, felt a happiness singing within her. Near tragedy had colored the day's adventure, but that could be forgotten now.

"Ken's happy!" she breathed to herself. "He isn't in love with Joy at all. He doesn't belong to her! He's . . . free, and grand, like Ward. He's learning to love our western life!"

Down the trail a little way the dogs had out-distanced the horses because of the rough terrain. Dogs could leap through, under and around things that would block the larger animals. But Old Mag kept up with her bugling. Ward McMurray could "read" her barks and yips. He knew when she was running on the trail easily and when she had to pause and sniff it out again on some more difficult place. She was the lead dog of the four.

Old Mag's voice changed noticeably after nearly an hour's run from the bear episode.

"She's about a quarter-mile off," Ward told the others. "And she has found a divided trail. Some other lion prob'ly joined the first one, then seperated again."

"Show me, Ward, when we get there!" Joy Boone pleaded.

"If you wish," said he, indifferently. He glanced once at Polly.

"Don't you want to?" Joy demanded, riding beside him. Don't you want to show me things?"

"Of—of course!" He hastened to reassure her. But his tone had no hint of personal feeling in it. He was still remembering Polly's urgent advice. Except from his rescuing her from the bears, he had kept up his act consistently. And, plainly, it had Joy Boone going! She wasn't used to men who seemed indifferent to her feminine charms.

Ward pointed out the diverging trails when they came to the spot. His dogs had waited, milling excitedly, baying, sniffing everywhere because he had called commands to them. They remembered his chastisement earlier this day.

Polly was deeply interested in the outdoor craft exhibited here and it was she who assumed charge now. Said she:

"Ward, you and Joy take two dogs and go left. With Glenn and Brookfield. They'll want to be present wherever Joy is. Ken and I will take two dogs and follow the right trail."

"All right, Sis. And whichever trees first can signal. Three quick pistol shots. Hunh?"

"Okay. Come on, Ken. Tally ho! Or whatever the fox hunters shout. And when do we shout it?"

"I wouldn't know!" Ken smiled happily, riding fast beside her.

"I only work here. But this is real stuff. Not . . . not, uh, anything artifical. No full dress and all that sort to put on!"

"You like it?"

"I like this, Polly, there's something about these mountains They're grand company!"

"Oh, I see! It's comradeship with the mountains that you're enjoying so! Well!"

His mouth dropped open. "Aw, Polly! I'm always saying the wrong things. I —look here, I didn't mean—please forgive me, Polly."

She broke into laughter then. "No, I won't. I reserve the right to tease you whenever I can. But women are jealous creatures, Ken"

Their comradeship held for several minutes, although conversation lagged as the riding became more strenuous again. In just a little while, though, Polly suddenly reined in and pointed. Their horses stood panting together.

"The dogs!" she said. "See them? They've treed, Ken! It's only a little way over there."

She took out her pistol, pointed it skyward and fired—bang bang bang! "Come on!" she urged.

"Yes! He'd kill a calf or horse or deer almost every day, left to run wild! Cost the ranchers thousands of dollars a year."

"Polly, Ward said there's a zoo pays $100 each for live lions."

"Yes. But that would mean roping, and . . ."

"I know. Ward told me. Well look—I could use a hundred bucks."

She turned quickly to face him. He wasn't joking. "I'm just a weak and helpless little girl. Mr. Palmer! You do what you think best!"

It was challenge enough. The handsome young collegian untied his rope, and when they had dismounted there 50 yards or so from the barking dogs, he strode forward, obviously happy.

"Ken!" Polly murmured a bit tremulously.

She had wanted him to go ahead. But now fears assailed her. The big cat was 12 feet up in a pine tree, crouched on a limb, tail hanging down. It snarled and growled at the dogs which were bouncing crazily below.

"Ken, be—be careful!" Polly urged.

PRIME MINISTER WILL MAKE MAJOR CAMPAIGN SPEECH

St. Laurent Making First Visit to Canada's New Province

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

St. John's, Nfld., June 24 (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent is to make a major campaign speech tonight in this capital of Canada's new province where he is visiting for the first time.

Mr. St. Laurent arrived here Thursday night to be greeted by thousands of persons who lined the streets to see his motorcade. He caught Newfoundlanders in one of their major celebrations of the year — Founder's Day, which commemorated the discovery of the island by John Cabot 452 years ago today.

The prime minister did not make a speech Thursday night but held a press conference.

He said the recent Liberal victory in Newfoundland's first provincial election showed that the question of Confederation "is no longer a political issue."

He said there are no signs of a business depression in Canada. He was asked about possible devaluation of the Canadian dollar and the English pound as an antidote to trade problems.

Mr. St. Laurent said he could not see that devaluation of either would be a "happy solution."

Too Much Talk

"There has been too much talk already about devaluation of the pound. It's when you do things to destroy confidence in currency that you bring into being the factors which make for depressions."

Mr. St. Laurent was asked about the charges of intimidation of voters against Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland. He replied that he felt he should not interfere in provincial matters.

A six-mile, hour-long motorcade took the prime minister through 10 welcoming arches in this old seaport. Later he stood on the balcony of the Newfoundland Hotel and waved to a cheering crowd jammed in the street below.

Premier Smallwood predicted that 25,000 persons — the biggest election campaign meeting in Canada — will turn out to hear the prime minister tonight.

Labrador Coast Ballot-Box Delivery by Air

Ottawa, June 24 (CP)—Voters along a 300-mile stretch of northern Labrador coast will get their ballot-boxes from Heaven this week.

The ballot boxes, destined for 12 polling stations from Makkovik to Hebron, were to have been delivered by the Canadian government icebreaker Saurel. However, the Saurel reported she is stuck in the ice near the Ironbound Islands, about 200 miles due north of Goose Bay, and probably won't be able to make it.

A duplicate set of ballot boxes was sent to Goose Bay for just such an emergency. Today Jules Castonguay, chief electoral officer, sent a radio message to the commanding officer of the R.C.A.F. station at Goose Bay asking that the reserve set of boxes be dropped.

The Air Force, wherever possible, will advise the deputy returning officer at each point of the approximate time the boxes will be dropped.

CAT 'POSTED' IN BOX

St. Thomas, Ont., June 23 — (CP) — Without stamps or delivery address, a cat was "posted" Wednesday at a street corner. Wails of the trapped feline attracted Mrs. Gertrude Casey, who discovered that the animal had been "mailed" in the parcel post box outside the store. Postmoster Frank McDonald was notified and the cat was released.

Lipon of Detroit Breaks Tommy Byrne's No-hit Bid For Second Time This Year

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Tommy Byrne would like a tip on how to pitch to Johnny Lipon.

Lipon, .250 - hitting Detroit shortstop, twice this season has blasted Byrnes' hopes of pitching a no-run, no-hit game.

Johnny first played the villain's role May 8. Byrne had a no - hitter going through six innings, out Lipon greeted the New York Yankee lefthander with a line single to start the seventh. He collected the second of Detroit's three hits in the ninth, as Byrne came through with a 12-0 victory.

Lipon was all that stood between Byrne and a no-hitter Thursday night at Yankee Stadium as Tommy hurled another 12-0 shutout against the Tigers.

Byrne mowed down the Tigers without a safety for seven innings.

Then came the eighth — and Lipon blasted a pitch toward the left field corner, the ball landing just inside the foul line — fair by a foot. It was the Tigers' only hit of the game. Six other Tigers reached base, all via bases on balls.

Byrne's win was his fifth victory of the year. Tommy Henrich got three of the Yankees' 17 hits, a home run and two singles. He drove in five runs.

Rookie Hurler Wins

Rookie southpaw Maurice McDermott pitched Boston Red Sox to a three-hit, 7-0 victory over St. Louis Browns.

Alex Kellner — another rookie southpaw — registered his 10th win, pitching Philadelphia Athletics to an 11-4 victory over Chicago White Sox. Sam Chapman batted in four runs for the victors with a home run, a double and two singles. The victory moved the A's into second place. one half game ahead of Detroit.

Lefthander Joe Hatten kept the Brooklyn Dodgers in first place in the National League. pitching them to a 7-2 triumph over the Reds in Cincinnati. Hatten allowed six hits for his sixth victory, half of them over Cincinnati.

Lefty Howie Pollet enabled St. Louis Cardinals to stay within a half - game of the Dodgers, pitching the Redbirds to a 10-6 triumph over New York Giants. Pollet needed help in the eighth from Red Munger in racking up his 8th victory. A three - run homer by Glenn Nelson off Clint Hartung. and another round - tripper by Ron Northey, together with four Giant errors and eight bases on balls, did the trick.

Southpaw Warren Spahn, aided by a 15-hit attack against five Chicago pitchers, chalked up his ninth victory, pitching Boston Braves to a 12-5 victory over the Cubs. Dutch Leonard went down to his ninth defeat.

Lefthander Curt Simmons went all the way for Philadelphia as the Phils swamped Pittsburgh Pirates, 9-3. Eddie Miller hit his sixth homer of the season with two on.

Early Wynn, with help from Frank Papish in the ninth, received credit for Cleveland's 4-3 triumph over Washington Senators.

Only Breaks Make You .400 Hitter Says Williams

Boston, June 24 (AP)—When Hughie (.438) Duffy is not within hearing distance, slugger Ted Williams declaims that .400-hitters are not born but made by the breaks.

"Only the breaks put you up there," Ted says, "and that is with all due respects to Jesse Burkett, Ty Cobb and Rogers Hornsby who did it three times.

"I'm convinced that you can hit .344 one year and .406 the next, as I did in 1940-41, and yet not be any better the second year than you were the first."

"You're just luckier. I know I was no better in 1941 than I was the year before, but I got a lot more breaks| Everything seemed to go just right and almost every ball went where I wanted it to go.

During the last three seasons, Williams has managed to come up with lusty .342, .343 and .369 averages. Today he is batting .320.

Eight years ago, Williams was in the ultra-select 400 class July 25 and remained there until the day before the season ended. Going into the 1941 finale Sept. 28 he stood .399. Then he came through a doubleheader with six hits in eight trips. That put his .406-mark in the record books.

CONROY ASSAILS GOVT.

Winnipeg, June 23—(CP)—Pat Conroy of Ottawa, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Congress of Labor, said Wednesday the present housing in Canada is "coming close to a national disgrace." In an address to the annual convention of the brotherhood of express employees, Mr. Conroy assailed the government for failure to provide proper housing, adequate health measures, and social security for the great masses of the Canadian people.

'NUFF SAID

Vancouver — (CP) — Eleven little hecklers, ranging from two to 12, wandered in to a local political meeting recently. Reproved by the chairman for loud chatter, they flounced out, one remarking, "Okay. This is getting kind of stupid anyhow.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, June 24 (AP)—The National Professional Tennis Champions in the big Forest Hills stadium had the peaceful atmosphere of an ordinary club tournament on a hot afternoon—and just about as big attendance... So it wasn't surprising to hear Jimmy Evert refer to it as "a nice vacation for the pros."

A year ago Jimmy was playing for Notre Dame in the National Collegiate Tournament (he was eliminated in the quarter-finals). He had just finished eliminating Wayne Sabin, a tested pro, which gave him the doubtful privilege of meeting Bobby Riggs. So you wondered what impelled a 23-year-old college graduate to take up this business in which a few stars collect all the headlines and the big money.

"There's no money in tournament tennis," Evert admitted wryly. "As a matter of fact, if I had stayed in Chicago I probably would have remained an amateur. I was on the junior Davis Cup squad there and made the eastern tournament circuit a couple of times before the war. But the Chicago District Association didn't contribute much for expenses and it cost at least $200 to make the eastern circuit, so I gave that up. Then my family moved to Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., and there wasn't much chance there to get work that would let me play tournament tennis, so I turned pro last September.

"It isn't bad giving lessons at $10 an hour, but it isn't an easy life if you're out there under a hot sun teaching seven or eight hours a day of course, I don't get that many hours yet.

"I like teaching the kids and I guess I just love the game. I know that's why the California boys, for instance Jack Cushingham, turned pro, they like tennis more than anything else."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Batawa master-minds shoved the old veterans, or at least veterans of the team who were supposedly under the displeasure of the OBA, back into the line-up on Wednesday —and yep—you guessed it, the Shoemen absorbed a 9-1 shellacking at the hands of the Peterborough Marines. The Batawans proved more or less helpless against the slants of the starry Petes' junior, Dadson, who sent thirteen of them back to the dugout mumbling to themselves after whiffing helplessly at the ozone. The win placed the Petes back in the driver's seat for the time at least.

Eddy Murphy's crew get a fine opportunity to increase their percentage on Saturday when they trek to Brockville to take on the Memos of that city in a twin-bill. Batawa, meanwhile, goes up to Oshawa where they will be the guests of the Merry Men O' Tyson. The Motor City Merchants are riding high these days and are exchanging the top-slot spot of the league with Peterborough oftener than a chorine changes her mind. Saturday should see one of the squads more firmly entrenched at the top of the heap.

Tomorrow's soccer tilts bring together the 6 R. D. team and Northern Electric squad in their third meeting within a week. Last Saturday Northern edged the lads in blue by a 3-2 score but went down to defeat 3-0 in an Ontario Provincial Soccer playdown game. Northern are still smarting under that defeat and will go all out to avenge the setback. The other game sees Belleville United take on the Batawa eleven at Batawa.

Tonight in Belleville District Baseball League circles, Northern Electrics meet the fast-travelling Napanee Merchants at the Fair Grounds while, according to the schedule the Trenton team hooks up again with Pointe Anne at the Point.

So a lot of fight fans thought an old man could beat a young one — if you call "36" old and "27" young. But actual figures may reveal that Jersey Joe Walcott, "always a bridegroom but never a bride" in the heavyweight boxing field, may be a lot nearer 40 than some people imagine. .

Joe's fighting heart was all he had the other night in his brawl against a second-rater Ezzard Charles, whose near-falsetto voice proclaimed over the airwaves following the fight "Ah'll meet anybody ,anytime."

From this corner's deductions after listening to the radio version of the fight, the younger Charles missed several opportunities to put the aging, tiring, strong man from Camden, N.J., away. He is not an opportunist, to say the least, and he lacked the ability to follow up his advantages. In this corner's opinion Joe Louis can take both of them on in the same ring, and go home to sleep with another victory to his credit.

And here's good news for lovers of the horseshoe pitching sport. There's a movement afoot to form a Belleville Horseshoe Pitching Association. (for the lack of a better name at the present) in the city. In fact tentative plans reveal that already several industrial firms including Northern Electric, American Optical, Stewart Warner, Corbin Lock, the CNR and others have indicated their intentions of entering teams, if and when the proposed association comes into being.

The city fire and police departments are also interested as are a number of private citizens who derive a lot of seasonal pleasure from "barnyard golf." A special meeting has been called for Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in the Upper Front Street Fire Hall under the supervision of Captain Orr, and all interested parties are cordially invited to attend.

The meeting is being held for organization purposes as those primarily interested are anxious to get in action. There are or were a number of good horseshoe slingers in the city, and we believe the organization of an association is the move in the right direction for the promotion of this once-popular sport.

Years ago when we were on the fire department beat and the laddies in blue were housed in the old fire hall near Victoria Park, we undertook to take on some of the shoe-slinging champs of the "extinguisher" brigade. Finally we were tossed out of the "league" on the reportorial ear. For as fast as the fire-fighting buckaroos could secure horseshoes, we, due to lack of control, and failure to find the peg, fired practically all the Dobbins' Dacks into the placid waters of the Moira River. Shortly afterwards we relinquished our membership in the Royal Antedeluvian Order of Slingers of the Iron Boots, and took up croquet.

Seriously, we believe the effort to organize a horseshoe-pitching association will meet with the approval of enthusiasts of the sport. Schedules can be arranged and the game carried out under a properly organized executive. It should result in a marked upsurgence in this ancient and honorable game. Remember the meeting, next Tuesday night at the Upper Front Street Fire Hall at 8 o'clock.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By TREVOR ICETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, June 24 — (CP) — If there's anything that will keep arena turnstiles clicking happily, it's having a "showboat" on the program.

A capering crackpot on the playing field is better insurance for a good gate than even Lloyds of London could provide. Of course, being a good athlete helps too.

Perhaps the best example of this in modern sport is the way the late Babe Ruth saved baseball in the United States after the Chicago Black Sox scandal in 1919.

The Bambino stepped up to the plate and literally clubbed the game from a low ebb back to popularity. It was perhaps more Babe Ruth the showman than Babe Ruth the ball player who drew the crowd.

Few Left

Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle mentioned others like Walter Hagen, Eddie Shore, Ironman McGinnity and Dizzy Dean who hit highs in popularity largely because they had that intrinsic "occupational asset" which sets them apart from their fellows. But he suggests that the showboat may be on his way out as far as team sports are concerned.

"Perhaps," says Andy, "so much depends on team unison that there is little chance for the showboat guy."

Not long ago Andy was talking to Oscar Judd, Toronto Maple Leaf pitcher, and says Oscar told him "the showboater in baseball (is) the guy (I'd) like to throw bean balls at. But they get paid extra for showboatin' since baseball became a money game."

For Better Soccer

Following some of the soccer matches in this country between foreign teams and Canadian all-star clubs, Bill (Niagara Falls Review) Gaynon comes up with a suggestion that would mean better games for Canadian spectators.

Dutch Harrison Leads Qualifies In Canadian Open

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

St. George's Golf Club, Toronto, June 24 — (CP) — Dutch Harrison, the Little Rock, Ark., pro, today leads a field of 100 qualifiers by four strokes into the home stretch of the Canadian Open golf championship. And the way he has been whipping this difficult par - 72 course, it would not surprise anybody if he made his fifth attempt for the $2,000 first - prize money a winning effort.

Dutch, a slow, easy - going fellow, had 133 for the first two 18-hole rounds — a record - breaking 66 Wednesday and a heart-breaking 67 Thursday.

A talking radio announcer so unnerved Harrison at the par-three eighth that he missed a seven - foot putt for a birdie by inches and didn't recover until the 11th when he started to take the back nine apart.

Closest to Dutch were Clayton Haefner of Charlotte, N. C., and Jim Ferrier of Chicago, each with 137.

Haefner and Fred Hawkins of Antioch, Ill., were low scorers Thursday with 66, matching Harrison's record in the first round Wednesday. The best previous competitive mark on Toronto St. George's course was 67, shot by Gordie Brydson of Toronto Mississauga a couple of years ago.

Seven Strokes Behind

Charles (Chuck) Congdon of Tacoma, Wash., who won the 1948 title at Vancouver Shaughnessy Heights, fared better in his second round put was still seven strokes behind Harrison.

Congdon shot three birdies on the first nine to finish the day with a five-under-par 67 and a 36-hole score of 140, tied with Herman Keiser of Chicago.

The snappy wind that cut across the course on the opening day dropped off Thursday and there was a general improvement in scores.

Bracketed at five strokes behind Harrison in the field heavily dominated by American pros were Dick Metz of Virginia Beach, Va., and Hawkins.

Metz, one of the favorites in the pre-tournament guessing, shot a consistent 69 Thursday, duplicating his three-under-par score for the opening round.

The low - scoring Canadian at the half - way point was Bill Kerr of Montreal Beaconsfield, with 139. Kerr was good for sub-par figures both days, shooting a two-under-par 70 for his first round and a 69 Thursday.

Two Ontario boys were tied for low amateur honors at 148, Emerson Creed of Barrie and George Eluck of Windsor.

Handsome Ben Sharpe, darling of the teen-agers and the middle-agers of wrestling as well, makes a return appearance here on Saturday night when he is pitted against rambunctious Frank Hewitt, of New York City who is said to be the last word in rough-and-tumble tactics. Fred Atkins meets the sensational Tug Carlson in the main bout with Ski Hi Lee and popular Al. Lovelock meeting in the semi-final.

Buffalo Stages Late Rally to Defeat Bears

(By The Associated Press)

Buffalo's ability to get off the canvas to win is making it tough for the rest of the International League.

The league - leading Bisons staged another late - innings rally Thursday night, their third in as many games, to defeat the last-place Newark Bears, 8-7.

Trailing 7-2 going into the 8th, Buffalo knotted the score with a five - run outburst featured by George Byam's 400-foot triple with the bases full. Gene Markland drove in the winning run in the ninth with a long drive to centre, scoring Marty Tabacheck from second.

Shortstop Ed Ehlers hit a grand - slam homer for Newark in the third inning.

Montreal and Jersey City remained deadlocked for second place. The Royals downed Baltimore, 6-3, and the Little Giants shaded Rochester, 9-8 in ten innings.

Johnny Van Cuyk registered his fifth victory for the Royals in easy fashion.

Hank Thompson's 12th home run in the tenth provided the Lil' Giants with their winning margin. Jersey City had tied the score in the eighth with a six-run outburst.

Ed Wright, the Leafs' strong - armed righthander, hung up his ninth win but not before the Chiefs gave him some anxious moments in the ninth when they tallied four times. Ed Perkowski accounted for three of these with a round-tripper.

Business Group Wants to Buy Cleveland Indians

Cleveland, June 24 — (AP) — Brewer George Creadon and a group of business men want to buy the world champion Cleveland Indians for $2,000,000, the Plain Dealer reports today.

Creadon is president of the Standard Brewing Company here. Sports Editor Gordon Cobbledick writes that Creadon is forming a syndicate that will make the offer "in the near future."

That, the paper says, will cover the franchise, players and real estate of the Cleveland Baseball Club.

Tribe President Bill Veeck, the man who brought his flamboyant tactics to Cleveland, three years ago, said:

"I'm not selling the Indians. These people are buying them. By that I mean I am making no active effort to sell. But I will listen to any reasonable offer."

Veeck owns slightly more than 30 per cent of the club stock.

Veeck said he has fixed no price on the club — the syndicate he headed is reported to have bought the club for $1,500,000—but the Plain Dealer says it has learned he wants $2,500,000.

Soccer Notes

The Bay of Quinte District Association Football League has entered an Intermediate Ontario Championship, sponsored by the Ontario Soccer Commission. The Championship League was established by the Commission for newly-formed leagues throughout Ontario. With the Quinte league are seven other leagues in Ontario.

The Commission requested that each league have a play-off among themselves declaring a winner by August 16th, 1949. The championship team in each league will then play off for the provincial championship. The Central soccer body will help to some degree, each championship team with its travelling expenses.

In the Quinte League four teams have indicated that they will compete in this competition. These teams are 6 R. D., Belleville United, Trenton Town and Northern Electric. A draw was held to decide which teams will play-off first. It was decided that Trenton Town will play Belleville United and Northern Electric would play 6 R. D. The winner of these two games will then play off on a neutral field to decide the winner and the team to represent the Quinte league in the Ontario Championships. This competition should do much to foster soccer in these parts.

A league executive meeting will be held in the Y. M. C. A. on Friday evening at eight-thirty o'clock. All referees are asked to be present.

The Belleville Merchants Charity cup has been associated with the great game for many years. It has been in the hands of Bill Harvey, who has kindly arranged that the cup be available for competition in this league. Bill tells us that competition was keen for the cup in past leagues. Let's hope it will be the same this time.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Akoolap Oxpert opened the bidding with a hand that did not have enough for a true opening. He made game. Then he turned to me with: "See, we made a game with a hand that you would not have opened."

What happened is what often happens in such a case. He found partner with a hand that would have opened. If Akoolap had passed, his partner had enough for an opening.

A result player is too stubborn to see this. His head is made up. The favorable ending of any one bad bid answers his purpose. He shunts the blame for losses on all the others.

See this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH

♠ None
♥ A Q 10 4
♦ J 8 7 6 5
♣ A 7 4 3

♠ A K Q 6 5 4
♥ None
♦ A Q 3 2
♣ Q J 10

South was dealer. Lacking one of the four high cards needed for a true opening, he passed. The north hand holds nine tricks. These are enough for an opening bid of two in a suit.

Bidding went like this:

South	North
Pass	2 S
3 D	3 S
4 H	4 NT
6 C	6 D

An opening of two in a suit is forcing to at least a game. So, north could rebid spades without fear that the bidding will stop. Four no-trump is the ace and king probing convention.

In answer to four no-trump, six clubs is a convention bid for showing two aces and no kings. With so many kings lacking in the pair it stands to reason that north should not bid grand slam.

If south had opened they would have reached the diamond slam just the same. But this would not prove it was a correct opening. Not by rule.

AT THE McCARTHY — Sonny Tufts tames the Widow Maker, mighty wild horse, in Columbia's stirring Cinecolored adventure, "The Untamed Breed," based upon the "Saturday Evening Post" story. The film is now at the McCarthy Theatre.

The film, which co-stars Myrna Loy, with Louis Calhern, Sheppherd Strudwick and introducing Peter Miles as Tom. The family attraction is shown today and Saturday. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00 p.m.

Trenton Ousts Belleville U. In Soccer Tilt

Trenton Merchants advanced to the Bay of Quinte district finals for the right to represent the district in a provincial intermediate championship being sponsored by the Ontario Soccer Association Commission, defeating Belleville United, 3-2 at Bain Memorial Park. Trenton now meets Number Six Repair Depot in the district final scheduled for June 29.

Belleville United took a 2-goal lead in the first half and held Trenton scoreless until midway through the final half. Then Trenton rallied with Johnny Little bagging two goals and Johnny Martin one. Len Helyer, Trenton goalie, came up with a fine save on a penalty kick in the last half.

I had sutch a fierce stummick ake last nite that ma had to give me medicine for it, and this morning there was a little bum feelina left over, and I was eating my breakfist kind of slow, and pop said to ma, The patient still seems to be slitely off his feed.

Maybe he'd better stay home from school, at least this morning ma said, and pop said, That mite not be a bad idea.

Aw no, pop, G wizzickers, ma, I'm all rite, I dont want to stay home from school, I said, and ma said to pop, I cant believe my ears.

By gollies the boy is sicker thar we thawt, he's delirious, pop said, and ma said, Goodness, he must be. In all his educational life he's never yet msised a chance of trying to avoid going to school on the flimsiest pretext. Really, William, I mean really, any excuse from a splinter in his finger to a figment in his imagnation, she said.

Yee gods, and now he wants to stumble off to school with an upset stummick and possibly a wobbly temperature, pop said. You'd better pack him into bed with a hot water bottle as soon as he stops toying with his egg and breething on his milk, he said, and I said, Aw heck, pop, jimminy winnickers, ma, I didn't actually say I didn't want to go to school.

Now he's losing his memory, ma said, and I said, No I aint, ma, I mean there really isn't any real school today. The whole class is going on a picknick to study Nature and have fun. So pack me a luntch, will you, ma? I dont care what elts you put in it, as long as there's plenty of hard boil eggs, I said.

The result being ma only put in 2 hard boil eggs on account of my stummick, even after I offered to let her puntch the outside of it all her mite.

Tied with Pidutti, with several others is Dick Green, of the Cataraqui Golf and Country Club, Kingston, who shot a 79 yesterday and had an 80 in the first round.

One stroke behind the district pair is John Watson, Trenton Golf Club pro who recorded a neat 76 yesterday and an 80 on Wednesday.

Bob Falkenberg, Jaroslav Drobny Gain Berths

(By The Canadian Press)

Defending champion Bob Falkenburg and Jaroslav Drobny on Thursday nipped off a couple of threatened upsets in the fifth set to gain berths in the last 16 of the Wimbledon Tennis championships at London.

The six other seeded men stars survived a day of heat and thrills with straight-set triumphs witnessed by more than 25,000 fans.

Falkenburg ousted Joseph Asboth, 31-year-old Hungarian who taught tennis to the Russians last winter. The fourth-seeded American rocketed in a service ace for the match point to win 6-4, 7-3, 2-6, 0-6, 6-4.

Drobny, the bouncing Czech left-handed, eliminated Budge Patty of the United States 6-4, 6-2, 7-9, 6-0, 6-2.

Earlier Ted Schroender of the United States tumbled Rene Buser, a Swiss National who now lives in Montreal, 6-3, 6-2, 7-5.

At Springfield, Mo., Mickey Owen disclosed Thursday he has been promised at $15,000 contract to rejoin Brooklyn Dodgers.

That was the amount the catcher was making when he jumped to the Mexican League from the National League three years ago.

Owen, who was reinstated three weeks ago with the others who went to Mexico, said he had talked by telephone to owner Branch Rickey and "I'm sure the Dodgers will give me every chance to make the ball club."

At Cincinnati, Burt Shotton, manager of Brooklyn Dodgers, Thursday was notified of his appointment as a National League all-star coach by Manager Billy Southworth of Boston Braves, who will pilot the team. Shotton will remain out of uniform, as usual, and do his coaching from the bench. The annual game will be played in Brooklyn, July 12.

From Vancouver, comes word that John Halley, West Coast League Soccer player who drew praise from the touring Newcastle United squad is headed for fame today—but in a different spot. He's signed to play hockey for the New York Rangers. Next Fall Halley will leave for the Tacoma, Wash. training camp and then either [illegible] Galt or Lake Placid, N.Y. "I'd rather play hockey than soccer," he said Thursday.

La Tosca sprang a surprise on Thursday night by capturing the one-mile pace feature of the Grant circuit program at Roosevelt raceway in Westbury, N.Y. Paying $14.10, $5.30 and $3.80, La Tosca won by a nose in 2:06, driven by Perce Chappell. Whiplite finished second and Stewart Direct third. Junior Counsel, the even-money favorite, was fourth.

At Valleyfield, Que., Hector (Toe) Blake Thursday re-newed his contract as coach of Valleyfield Braves of the Quebec Senior Hockey League for the 1949-50 season, Club President N. Arthur Vinet announced Thursday. Blake is former left winger with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

Had Bad Stomach; Throbbing Headaches—Praises Syntona

Now Eats Food That Formerly Caused Gas, Sour Acidity and Heartburn, Nerves Calm, Sleeps Better.

"For a whole year I suffered with a badly disordered stomach and it is a real pleasure to tell you how much Syntona has meant to me," said Mrs. Jessie Brown, [illegible] Elias St., London, Ont., in a recent interview.

"Before I began using Syntona I had a poor appetite and there were many foods I couldn't eat, because I had so much gas and heartburn afterwards. Sour liquids came up in my throat and I had a distressed, full, heavy feeling that made me feel short of breath. Dark spots floated before my eyes. I was subject to throbbing headaches, which often made my nerves so on edge I couldn't sleep for hours after getting to bed at night.

"A few weeks ago I took a friend's advice and got some Syntona and it's really marvellous how different I feel. I was only taking it a few days when my stomach began to act better and as I continued with it my appetite returned until now I can eat almost anything I want without suffering from gas, sourness or heartburn. All that stuffy, full, heavy feeling is gone. Best of all I am keeping free of those awful throbbing headaches. My nerves are calmed down, too, and so I sleep better and feel so much better when I awaken in the mornings. I am very happy to recommend this fine medicine to others."

Syntona is made from the pure liquid extracts of 12 of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots. It acts on the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels .. aids in the elimination of excess acids and impurities from the system and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Oilers, C.N.R. Winners of Softball Tilts

A neat pick-off play by Shell Oil caught Marsh napping off third in the bottom of the seventh and preserved a win for the Oilers last evening as they choked off a late rally by McFarlane's Woodenware to down them 9-7. In the nightcap the C.N.R. Nationals took advantage of several miscues to run up a 9-4 count on the Energetic Club.

Walks to Miller and Jones, and a home run by A. Empy in the first frame got Shell Oil away to a good start against McFarlane's. Doubles by Ross Empy and Smith notched a fourth counter for the Oilers in the first. Two walks and two singles added two more tallies in the second.

McFarlane's came back for one run in the bottom of the first on singles by Young and Peters.

The Woodenware crew, who have a habit of rallying in the last two frames were no exception last night. Marsh singled with one away and rode home on Holland's circuit smash through left field.

Shell stormed back in the top of the seventh to cash in on Jack Simmons' three run homer to right field.

Return to Attack

McFarlane's returned to the attack in their end of the seventh with Scanlon getting a life with one away. Pitcher Young singled for his fourth hit of the night and Frank Baldwin strolled. Peters singled for two runs and Marsh doubled in two more. Holland sent Marsh to third with a single and promptly stole second himself Marsh dancing off third was trapped and tagged diving for the bag. Moore then got a life on an error to the shortstop and Boyce flied out to short right field to retire the side.

Jack Reid went the route for the winners striking out seven, walking one, and giving up 11 hits for seven runs. Young toiled fruitlessly for Woodenware striking out four, walking six, and surrendering 11 hits for the loss.

Take Advantage of Errors

The C.N.R. Nationals took advantage of three Energetic errors in the first inning to score two runs and establish a lead they never relinquished.

A walk, an error, and a double by Ronsky gave them two more in the second with one away. A triple, two doubles, and a single counted four more in the third. They added their final run in the fourth when Ronsky singled home Hurrie who had got on an error.

Energetic Club took up scoring where the C.N.R. left off driving over a lone counter in the fifth on singles by Townsend and Orim. An error, two walks, and a double netted two runs in the sixth and Engergetic got their fourth run in the seventh on a walk and two singles.

Brisban started on the firing line for C.N.R. and went five innings for the win. He struck out one, walked none, and gave up five hits for one run. He was relieved by "Demp" Young in the sixth. Young went the last two frames striking out three, walking three, and giving up three hits for three runs.

Hopkins went all the way for Energetic striking out three, walking three, and being nicked for seven hits and the ball game.

Salmon Lake Angler Loses Shoes, Loses Boat, But Lands Prize Fish

Many a fisherman according to stories, have been known to lose their heads (figuratively), their tempers, and oftimes their tackle. but this story has to do with a young angler who actually lost his shoes while attempting, successfully, to haul in his prize. And it ain't finny, McGee.

It seems Ward Ketcheson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson of this city, was putt-putting on Salmon Lake the other day, hoping, like all fishermen do, that the big one would strike.

It was a gusty, blustery day with a fairly stiff wind blowing. Old Salmon was kicking up a bit of a foamy fuss, but that daunted not the young Walton.

Then it happened The big fellow hit the Ketcheson lure — and the battle was on. For upwards of a half-hour man and fish battled. Drawing the fish near the boat, Ketcheson noted it was one of the daddies of all grey trout, of a size that has not been caught in the lake for the past two years or more.

The boat neared the shore; the fisherman, despairing of losing the fish (it weighed twelve pounds) jumped overboard and waded to shore towing his finny prize.

Admiring his catch, he suddenly noted two things. One, his shoes were gone; two, the wind was carrying the boat out into the lake.

Putting his prize in a safe place he plunged into the water and swam to the boat, eventually bringing it back to shore.

No harm done. The prize, a twelve-pound beauty. And, well, who wouldn't swap a succulent grey trout for a pair of shoes

VIOLENT THUNDER STORM HITS BANCROFT AREA

Greater Provincial Unity Needed Drew Tells City Audience

GEORGE DREW

Progressive Conservative leader who addressed a large and enthusiastic audience in the Memorial Arena on Friday night.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader said here last night that the interests of Canada can best be arranged if leaders of every province can get together for the betterment of the Dominion.

"It is," he said, "the duty of the Dominion Government to call for greater development of Canada between the provinces."

He believed, he added, that no other country in the world can be greater than Canada, if but Canada can stay together.

2,000 in Arena

Mr. Drew was speaking to approximately 2,000 people in the Memorial Arena last night. He was on a radio network from 9 to 10 p. m. The crowd in Memorial Arena gave both Col. Drew and his gracious lady a vociferous reception when they entered the arena.

Piped to the speakers stand by Pipe Major Jamie Clarke Mr. and Mrs. Drew were recipients of loud cheers and 'Give it to 'em, George' when they entered the arena.

Organized "hecklers" were on hand. In fact a fight developed between the ranks of the hecklers and they were unceremoniously "ushered" from the hall.

Appeared Organized

While hundreds cheered his every vocal effort, perhaps George Drew rose to the heights of political repartee when he snapped back answers to a group which appeared to be organized.

High up in the balcony the hecklers raised their different tunes.

Finally the "hecklers" got themselves into a fight and were removed from the arena.

As they were removed, Mr. Drew remarked, "Don't forget to get your cent-a-day pay from the Toronto Star." (Cheers).

Criticizes Policies

In an hour-length address Mr. Drew sharply criticized the policies of the federal government. He charged speaking of national defence, that the amount estimated was not ratified. The opposition had no accounting of "Public Accounts".

FATHER HELD IN PARIS, CHILDREN FOUND BEHEADED

50-MAN POSSE, ARMED TO TEETH, CONTINUES HUNT

Mission, B. C., June 25 (CP)—Ivar Johnson, a moody recluse with a 30-30 rifle, was hunted anew today as a posse, armed to the teeth, sought what residents have come to call "The Killer of Silver Hill."

Fear gripped Silver Hill, a sparsely - populated community seven miles west of here, as Johnson, charged with the murder of two of its women, continued to elude a 50-man posse scouring the area with carbines at the ready.

Johnson is 70 years old but is known as an uncanny woodsman and an unerring marksman. He has lived alone 36 years. He is believed to have been crazed when he allegedly shot to death Mrs. Marie Lindberg, 68-year-old farm widow, and Mrs. George Barrett, 66, mother of three children.

Provincial police Inspector Alex Macdonald, directing the search for the fugitive killer, said Friday night police were "at a blank wall now."

"We could throw 1,000 men into the search and make no impression on that bush. Johnson is in his own country."

Consider Possibilities

Police consider the possibility that Johnson:

1. Has taken his own life.
2. Has to come out somewhere.
3. Has made a getaway and has travelled a long way by now.

The ruthless slayings climaxed a long-standing feud between Johnson and neighbors over a road allowance.

Johnson fired twice at municipal police Constable Peter Bergen as the officer attempted to reason with the farmer who was blocking a road-clearing crew.

Johnson then set fire to his home and outbuildings and disappeared into the jungle-like bush.

Attracted by the flames, Mrs. Lindberg was making her way to the farm when she was shot. She died instantly on the roadway.

A posse was formed to hunt the berserk killer and shortly after another shot was heard. George Barrett, a member of the posse, rushed to his home. Mrs. Barrett was dead in the ard.

A general alarm followed and homes were placed under armed guard. The Silver Hill school was closed; some women and children were evacuated to Mission.

CANADA GOES TO THE POLLS ON MONDAY

848 Candidates Ask For Support of Voters

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Canada goes to the polls Monday to elect a new federal government.

The seven-week campaign, except for a few more hours of speech-making, is over. The leaders, the candidates, the well-wishers have had their day. Now, the voters have theirs.

The day is Monday, June 27, election day.

Then, from the farms and the factories, the forests and the fisheries, Canadians will stream to the polling stations to give the nod to the 262 men and women who will form the new House of Commons in a new, 21st Parliament of Canada.

The number of candidates is large — 848 — covering every political stripe in the Dominion. But the field still is far short of the record 954 who contested the 1945 general election.

The number of voters, too, is big, sure to become a record. Official estimates place it at "nearly" 8,000,000, though not all of them are expected to use their ballot. In 1945, when the previous record popular vote was set, 5,246,130 out of a potential 6,952,445 voters exercised the franchise.

The polls open at 8 a.m. Monday and close at 8 p.m., local standard time. In terms of Eastern Daylight Time, this means polls will close as follows in the various time zones across Canada:

Popular Vote Over 6,000,000 Is Expectation

Ottawa, June 25 (CP)—The popular vote in Monday's Federal election is expected to hit a new peak and could, given a heavy turnout, roll over the 6,000,000-mark.

Unofficial estimates, based on the percentage of eligible voters using their ballot in the last three general elections, indicate a popular vote of somewhere between 5,600,000 and 6,000,000. This covers a range of approximately 70 to 75 per cent of the nearly 8,000,000 Canadians who have a vote.

There is no exact total of the number of registered voters in this election, but official sources place it at "nearly" 8,000,000.

In the 1945 general election, 5,246,130—or 75.45 per cent—of the 6,952,445 voters cast their ballots. This is the record popular vote to date.

In 1940, 4,672,531 (70.90 per cent) of 6,588,888 registered voted and in 1935, 4,452,675 (75.06 per cent) of 5,918,207 registered voted.

Four Deseronto P.C. Executive Members Resign From Posts

Refusal of R. D. Arnott, Progressive Conservative candidate for South Hastings, to promise something which he could not do is the real reason for the resignation of four Deseronto P-C Association executive members this week.

The four party executive members who quit their posts are the association president, Mayor R. K. Jackson; second vice-president, Hubert Howard; secretary, George McEwen and treasurer, Harry Bender.

The four men declined to make an public statement as to the reason for their resignation as officials of the association but party workers in Belleville were willing to talk.

They had this to say as to the reason for the resignation of the four men: "The executive attempted to make the candidate pledge himself that a free ferry service would be supplied the town of Deseronto after the election."

"This Mr. Arnott refused to do as he had no power to give such a promise and would not do so to mislead the electorate of the town of Deseronto merely to obtain a few additional votes."

"In any event," they continued, "the matter of a free ferry is within the jurisdiction of the provincial government and not the Federal government."

Local party supporters went on to say that the four Deseronto men who had resigned were not elected by the will of the association members. They said they had been appointed by Roscoe Robson, M. L. A., for Hastings East, prior to the last provincial election. It was stated the Deseronto association had been inactive in the current campaign.

Monday Is Your Day-- Vote as You Like--but Vote

Monday, June 27th is Election Day.

On Monday, hundreds of thousands of voters from St. John's, Newfoundland, to Victoria, B.C., will go to the polls to vote for the party of their choice.

But, there will be many who "won't bother." Unfortunately, there are those Canadians who do not interest themselves in the well-being of their country to the extent of exercising their franchise.

The ballot-box is a symbol of our democratic way of life. It is the outlet through which the Canadian, interested in his country and its well-being, expresses his feelings. It is one of the proud heritages handed down by those forbears, who in their day, shed blood to preserve the right to vote for succeeding generations.

If Canada is to have "a government of the people, for the people and by the people," then the people should be represented to the fullest extent at the polling booths.

Monday will mark another milestone on the long highway of Canadian freedom. We are blessed with the privilege of casting our vote for the government of our choice. In view of what is happening in other countries, we should hold our heads high with pride because of that fact.

Tuesday will be too late. Bemoaning the fact that you did not vote, won't get you anywhere. It won't do the country any good.

Don't be a procrastinator. Reconsider that decision to "stay at home." Don't let some petty personal grievance prevent you from exercising your franchise. Remember, it is your duty to yourself and to Canada to vote on Monday.

VOTE AS YOU LIKE — BUT VOTE.

Says PC's Would Restore House Responsibilities

Owen Sound, June 25 (CP) — Premier Frost of Ontario said Friday night that if a Progressive Conservative Federal government is elected Monday, parliament will have its responsibilities restored to it.

In an election campaign speech on behalf of Garfield Case, Progressive Conservative candidate in Grey North, Mr. Frost says that if Mr. Drew becomes Prime Minister, all legislation will be subject to the scrutiny of the government caucus before it is brought to the floor of the House.

He said Mr. Drew introduced that system in the Ontario Legislature. Mr. Drew would be the first to initiate it on Parliament Hill.

U.S. Must Double Imports From W. Europe--Hoffman

New York, June 25 (CP).—Paul Hoffman, economic co-operation administrator, told the Senate Appropriations Committee Friday that the United States must double the current volume of its imports from Western Europe by 1951 or concede failure of the Marshall Plan, the New York Times says today.

Hoffman placed the minimum increase needed at $1,500,000,000 a year.

He said that unless the United States increases its purchases from Marshall Plan countries, their dollar earnings will be inadequate for self-sustaining economy.

The Times says he also reported that some participating countries will need help after 1951.

THREE RUSSIANS HELD

Berlin, June 25 — (Reuters)—Two Russian soldiers and a Russian civilian were taken to headquarters of the French police after a scuffle over custody of a Polish national, a police official said today.

He told reporters that a West-Berlin patrol in the French sector first went to the aid of the pole after he complained early today that a Russian civilian was trying to kidnap him.

46 REPORTED KILLED

Les Pachuca, Mexico, June 2 — (AP) — The Red Cross says at least 46 persons were killed and 200 injured by a flash flood which swept this mining town Friday night.

Electric and telephone lines were down.

Judith Coplon Will Not be Called Again to Stand

Washington, June 25 (AP).—A screaming "I have been framed" may end Judith Coplon's role as star witness in her own espionage trail.

Defence counsel Archibald Palmer indicated today that he will not call her back to the witness stand when the trial, which began exactly two months ago, is resumed Monday.

In that event, the former justice department political analyst may know her fate by the end of next week. She is charged with stealing government secrets with intent to injure the United States and aid a foreign power (Russia).

Her version is far different. In seven days on the witness stand, she steadfastly maintained that her purpose for meetings with Valentine A. Gubitchev, a Russian, in New York was love—not espionage.

A jury of eight men and four women must decide which version to accept.

Prosecutor John M. Kelley, Jr., who had cross-examined Miss Coplon for two full days and parts of two others, had trouble getting her off the stand.

When Kelley finally said "that's all" Friday, she launched into an emotional, 10-minute tirade while Kelley kept breaking in.

"I am innocent and I have been framed," she raged.

She shouted "yes" when Kelley asked whether she believed Raymond P. Whearty, another prosecutor and once her boss in the justice department, "has participated in framing you."

"Do you think I have participated in framing you?" Kelley asked.

". . . You have participated in asking me some of the lowest questions that I have ever heard," she replied, angrily.

Leaning forward in the witness chair and waving a finger directly at Kelley, she said in almost hysterical tones:

"This whole case is so fishy that it smells to high heaven."

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, June 25 (CP)—Synopsis: All indications point to a hot humid weekend for most of Ontario with afternoon temperatures expected to be again near the 90 mark in southern regions. Widely scattered thundershowers are forecast for Saturday and Sunday nights but they will bring little or no relief from the high temperatures.

McCULLAGH SAYS LIBERAL PARTY IS POWER DRUNK

Urges Support of PC Candidates on Monday

Toronto, June 25 — (CP) — George McCullagh, publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail and the Toronto Telegram, urged Canadian voters Friday night to support Progressive Conservative candidates in Monday's federal election and "show those power-drunk ministers that we are capable of asserting our right to govern."

Charging that the Liberal party has replaced "parliamentary control with bureaucrat control" and has departed from Liberal principles to a "shocking degree" he said in a broadcast address:

"Support the Progressive Conservative candidate in your riding and give George Drew a working majority so that he can clean up your business."

Mr. McCullagh spoke in a 30-minute address broadcast in transcription from over 83 privately-owned radio stations across Canada.

He expressed criticism of the Toronto Daily Star and the Star Weekly — "The great Liberal and Socialist apologists in this part of the country — and charged that they were being "subsidized with your money to eulogize and propagandise the Liberal and Socialist parties."

Charge is Made

He said that in August, 1948, John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member of the last Commons for Lake Centre in Saskatchewan, had disclosed before the parliamentary radio committee that the Toronto Star was receiving free radio - time worth $42,000 a year on a government-owned CBC station. The Star had this privilege for 12½ years and the cost ran to $528,000 "of your money."

Alleged Lothario of 73 is Trapped By Woman Said to be Intended Victim

Chicago, June 25 — (AP)—Sigmund Z. Engel, who for 50 years has wooed gullible widows and fleeced them of their fortunes, was trapped Friday by one of his intended victims.

The dapper, aged lothario, whose suave talk and glib manner earned him a reputation as an international confidence man, was seized in a police trap in a Michigan Avenue shop.

Mrs. Genevieve Parro, 55-year-old widow, led Engel, 73, into the police net during a shopping expedition to buy luggage for a propored holiday trip.

Mrs. Parro became suspicious of the smooth talking Romeo — who posed as Paul Marshall, a wealthy Evanston resident — after he started a whirlwind courtship with her earlier this week. She notified policewoman Marian Hagen, her sister-in-law.

Police, who had been searching for Engel for allegedly bilking another Chicago widow of $8,000 earlier this month, urged Mrs. Parro to carry on her romance.

She agreed and "consented" to a marriage proposal by Engel.

Engel and Mrs. Parro, with four of her sons and their wives, met at a night club Thursday night for a "pre-marriage" dinner. Engel agreed to meet Mrs. Parro at a luggage shop Friday and buy her some luggage.

Police posed as sales clerks and customers.

Detective Peter Harlib stepped up behind Engel and asked: "Lord Beaverbrook?" (one of the 32 aliases police said he used.)

Engel, nattily attired in a grey flannel suit, white shirt, and polka-dot tie, turned and cooly eyed the detective.

Barns Flattened, Power Disrupted, Trees Blown Down

Lightning Bolt Scores Direct Hit on Local Power Plant

Bancroft, June 25—(Special)—A severe storm of near cyclonic proportions swept over the village of Bancroft at 4:30 p.m. Friday afternoon causing considerable property damage. The rain and electrical storm was accompanied by high winds, which uprooted large maple and pine trees at many residents.

It broke a huge limb adjacent to telephone, telegraph and electric power lines disrupting all three. Power was off in the village for a half hour. This was caused by a direct hit of lightning at the power plant.

At an early hour Saturday morning telephone communications were partially disrupted. The storm did much damage in nearby countryside, levelling two large farm barns, tearing roof of a third, flattening a portable mill, tearing kitchen from main part of a farm home all in an area of four miles west of Bancroft.

Women Urged By Mrs. Drew to Get Out and Vote

"We women of Canada and there are many of us who are vitally interested in our country and our loved ones, should consider well what is going to happen on Monday, June 27th," Mrs. George Drew said in Memorial Arena last night.

Mrs. Drew spoke following the speech of her husband, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader.

"We women of Canada," Mrs. Drew said, "constitute 52 per cent of the vote. It is our responsibility because we can get behind our men when they go up into federal or provincial government.

"Our men need us," Mrs. Drew said in a social address to the women present at the Col. Drew rally in Memorial Arena. "They are dear to us. Our children, yours and mine, are looking forward. We want opportunities for our children."

Mrs. Drew pointed out that the greatest importance should be stressed to what's going on about you.

Mrs. Drew said, "I have crossed a great country. I never knew," she added, "what people were like until we came in actual contact with them.

"Canadian women," Mrs. Drew said, "enjoy the greatest freedom in the world. They have freedom of character, the will to assist and dread of the "iron curtain".

"We," Mrs. Drew said in closing, "want to remind you women that if you don't take advantage of our opportunity to vote you are not fulfilling your duty—to yourself and to your country."

Mrs. Drew was presented with a lovely corsage previous to her address.

WORKERS DECIDE NOT TO RETURN TO MINE JOBS

Refuse Because Company Will Not Rehire 20 of the Strikers

Asbestos, Que., June 25 (CP)—The return-to-work movement in Quebec's strike - troubled asbestos industry came to an abrupt halt here Friday night when employees of the Canadian Johns-Manville Company decided against going back to their jobs.

Jean Marchand, secretary of the Canadian Catholic Confederation of Labor, said the question of possible reprisal action by the company against strikers and union leaders was the stumbling block in efforts to end the dispute here.

One of the bitterest labor struggles in Quebec's history, the strike originally affected 5,000 employees of five asbestos-producing companies. The men struck Feb. 13 for a 15-cents-an-hour wage boost, which would have raised their basic pay from 85 cents to $1.

The back-to-work movement came suddenly early Friday at nearby Thetford Mines where 2,500 miners voted to go back to the pits Monday without the pay increase.

Mr. Marchand said 1,300 strikers at Friday night's meeting voted to continue the work stoppage because the company does not propose to rehire some 20 strikers, among them several union leaders.

End of the strike at Thetford Mines will re-open mines, and plants operated by Johnson Mines Limited, Asbestos Corporation and Flintkote Mines Limited.

Some Granted Increases

The C. C. C. L. secretary said the Canadian Johns - Manville Company wished to reserve the right of priority of employment at its plant for "about 100 scabs." About 700 regular employees returned to work early in the dispute, and the company granted these men a 10-cents-an-hour wage increase.

Mr. Marchand added that unofficial agreement had been reached between the company and the union on several points.

These included the company's willingness to place the dispute before an arbitration tribunal constituted under provincial labor laws, and the acceptance of Judge Thomas Tremblay of Quebec as chairman of the board.

Coldwell Say's CCF Founders Responsible

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Saskatoon, June 25. (CP)—M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said Friday night that the men who founded the C.C.F. party were responsible for introduction of Old Age Pensions in Canada.

He said the legislation was passed in 1926 because the followers of J. S. Woodworth, founder of the C.C.F., agreed to support Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King in his attempt to form a government only if Mr. King would bring in an old age pension bill at the session of parliament.

Mr. Coldwell told this story in an election campaign address here. In the 1925 general election neither Mr. King nor Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen gained a majority of seats. Mr. Coldwell said that Mr. Woodsworth's followers held the balance of power anad were approached by both the Conservative and Liberal leaders who asked their support in forming a government.

Mr. Coldwell said that the same question was put to both leaders. Which would at that session bring down an old age pension bill and unemployment insurance legislation? Mr. Coldwell said that Mr. Meighen replied that he would consider the matter and discuss it with Mr. Woodsworth at a later date, and Mr. King replied that he would bring in the old age pension bill at that session and would consider the unemployment insurance legislation.

Mr. Woodsworth considered this the best he could do and agreed to support Mr. King if he would put his promise in writing. That was done, Mr. Coldwell said, and the letter of promise is framed and hanging today in the C.C.F. headquarters at Ottawa.

Quebec to Elect 73 Members Instead of 65

Ottawa, June 25 (CP).—For the first time since Confederation, Quebec will elect more than 65 members to the Commons.

The 21st parliament will have 73 members from Quebec—eight more than the number guaranteed the province by the British North America Act.

Quebec's traditional 65 members was used for years as the yardstick to measure the number of members for the other provinces.

The entire system was changed by an amendment to the B.N.A. Act, approved by the British Parliament in 1946, and the Canadian Redistribution Act in 1947 which raised Commons membership from 245 to 255.

Here is the number of seats for each province, with representation in the last parliament in brackets:

Ontario 83 (82), Quebec 73 (65), Saskatchewan 20 (21), British Columbia 18 (16), Alberta 17 (17), Manitoba 16 (17), Nova Scotia 13 (12), New Brunswick 10 (10), Newfoundland 7 (0), Prince Edward Island 4 (4), Yukon 1 (1).

The representation of Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland, and the Yukon Territory is fixed by legislation and was not affected by the redistribution.

Redistribution of the Commons is supposed to take place every 10 years following the decennial census. The last census was in 1941 but redistribution was postponed because of the war. The next census is due in 1951, with redistribution due the year after.

Under the old system, the distribution quotient—the number of inhabitants a province must have to get one commons seat—was obtained by dividing 65—Quebec representation—into the Quebec population.

Under the new system, the quotient is obtained by dividing 250—the number of seats in all but the three provinces where representation is fixed by statute—into the population of the seven provinces affected.

IN MEMORIAM

KINCAID — In loving memory of Robert Nelson who passed away on June 25th., 1948.

He is gone but not forgotten
And as dawns another year
In the lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of him are always near.

Sadly remembered by his wife and family. J25

KINCAID—In loving memory of our dear father, Robert N. Kincaid, who passed away June 25, 1948.

We do not need a special day,
To bring you to our mind,
For the days we do not think of you,
Are very hard to find.
God knows how much we miss you
He counts the tears we shed,
And whispers, "He only sleeps,"
Your loved one is not dead.
So we will be brave dear father,
And pray to God each day,
And when He calls us home to you
Your smile will guide the way.

Sadly missed and ever remembered by daughter Jane and family. J25

HERBERTSON—In loving memory of our darling daughter and sister, Marilyn Jean Herbertson, who left us so suddenly three years ago June 26th, 1946.

Beautiful memories are all we have left
Of her we loved and will never forget,
Her loving smile and happy face,
A broken link we can never replace.
Sad was the parting, no one can tell,
So sudden on earth the sorrow fell,
Memories are treasures no one can steal,
Death leaves a heartache nothing can heal,
Only those who have lost are able to tell,
The pain in our hearts of not saying farewell.

Sadly missed by Mother, Father and sister. J25

ALLEGED LOTHARIO

"I'm Sherlock Holmes," said Harlib.

"Sorry," retorted Engel. "Don't believe we've met."

Engel was taken to police station where he met Mrs. Reseda Corrigan, 39-year-old Chicago widow, who claims Engel earlier this month took more than $8,000 from her after posing as a Hollywood movie producer and making lavish plans for their marriage.

A warrant charging Engel with operating a confidence game, signed earlier by Mrs. Corrigan, was served on him. Bail was set at $10,000.

Police said Engel in his statements denied he ever had married any of the women he had taken money from.

"Only King Solomon could marry that many," said Engel who is five feet four inches tall and claims he is 80 years old.

Captain Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for the State Attorney's Office, said the suave, little man had courted and fleeced women for more than 50 years, using more than a score of names and operating in five countries. He said Engel has a police record in Canada, Britain, France, and Belgium as well as in the United States.

"There are records to show he has obtained at least $1,000,000 from more than 58 women in his time," Gilbert said.

Women's Activities

CATHOLIC W. L.

Marmora—The June meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held at the summer home of Mrs. Teresa Warren at Crowe Lake, on Wednesday afternoon. The President, Mrs. Charles Cook, occupied the chair and there was a good attendance including five visitors. The meeting opened in the usual manner, after which the president welcomed the members and guests.

Following the roll call and reading of the minutes of last meeting, the financial report was given by the Treasurer, Mrs. Carl Heath, Mrs. Charles Crawford and Mrs. K. Donaldson reported as Social Welfare conveners. Mrs. Joseph Doyle reported that five visits had been made to the sick and shutins by Mrs. William Forestell and herself in the past month.

Miss Mary Hughes, as convener of the sewing group, handed out quilt blocks for the members to take home. It was decided to call off the strawberry social, which had been planned at the last meeting, due to the scarcity of berries. The president asked each group to hold a party during the summer months to raise funds.

Mrs. Bernard Hughes offered her cottage at Crowe Lake for a euchre bridge and tea in August. Mrs. Cook gave an interesting report of the Diocesan Annual Convention held in Tweed, this month.

Address Meeting

Rev. H. J. Farrell then addressed the meeting, congratulating the members on their good attendance at the recent mission. He urged them to carry on their activities each one doing her share.

Miss Florence Auger gave a reading entitled "The Pleadings of the Sacred Heart". Miss Mary Hughes read a comic poem, "St. Peter at the Golden Gate", which was much enjoyed. Mrs. James Black also read a poem entitled "Special Days". A contest was held, hidden names of flowers and was won by Mrs. J. A. Shannon.

Miss Marie Curran of Buffalo, who is spending the summer at her Crowe Lake cottage, gave an address on the organization "The Christophers", which was very interesting.

Presentations Made

A gift was then presented by the president to Rev. H. J. Farrell it being the 35th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. Father Farrell made a short address in which he thanked the members for their kindness.

Mrs. Warren was also presented with a gift in appreciation of her hospitality in lending her cottage for the June meeting each year.

Delicious refreshments were served by Groups 3 and 4 and a few games were played before the meeting came to a close.

STONE CHURCH W.M.S.

4th Sidney. — The monthly meeting of Stone Church W.M.S. was held on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. W. Tufts with 15 members and one visitor present. The President, Mrs. E. B. Phillips, opened the meeting. Scripture reading was given by Mrs. Omar Chisholm.

Business followed. Minutes were read by Mrs. S. Lloyd also roll call. Mrs. Tufts treasurer reported $13.90 on hand for this quarter. Mission Band leader, Mrs. F. Tucker, handed in $8 to be sent away.

Mrs. R. Sills was then introduced and gave a splendid address on "Stewardship and Personality or Character" as "we build it bit by bit as we go through life. Christian Personality is one that just shines forth so that it draws others to us. Are we developing it? God does not look on the surface but beneath it all. Jesus had the Stewardship of Life so that He could draw all men unto Him.

"Prayer, Bible, Church and Property are four things to work for. Prayer is personal communion with God. Bible is the chief text book of Religion, placed in our hands for own own improvement. A universal book for everyone."

"Church is means of developing personality. We must attend regularly to keep ourselves tuned up in all parts of Christian living just as a piano needs the strings tuned to give the sweetest music.

"Property we must use our material substance that God has given us, to be able to use our time, talents, money, and self. We owe the world the best service we can give so the personality may be developed."

Mrs. H. Gray favored next with a solo "When the Little Lost Sheep Comes Home".

Mrs. Rushnell and Mrs. A. Wright then took charge of the program which was on "Keeping the Lord's Day". It was a splendid lesson teaching all to observe the Sabbath when all the family can be done for singing and reading and Christian culture. Let business of all kinds be set asideon the Sabbath.

A short worship service and prayer for the missionary, Miss Isobel Clare, closed the meeting. The W.A. took over after which Mrs. Tufts and her helpers served refreshments.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

Stirling.—The June meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Ernest Cain with a good attendance. Mrs. Chas. Fargey opened by reading a short poem, after which Mrs. Fargey read the Scripture lesson, also a short account of the life of Bartholomew. Mrs. A. Hammond gave a full report of the givings for the first half of the year and these were most encouraging.

Mrs. M. Tompkins had charge of the remaining part of the program. Miss Gena Spry gave a reading "The Forgotten Man"; Mrs. R. Woodbeck gave a splendid story of the life of Miss Ruby Walker, one of the young energetic missionaries. Mrs. C. Tummon gave an account of the Mission work in China. Mrs. M. Tompkins read a short poem "Jesus, The Carpenter".

Mrs. Cain and Mrs. Tompkins served a delightful afternoon tea. A half hour of good fellowship followed. The hostess and the program convener were thanked for the splendid missionary program and the refreshments.

PAST GRANDS' CLUB

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

FEELING THE HEAT

On an intensely hot day you may have been worried when you noticed Mrs. Robin sitting on her nest with wide open bill. But nothing was wrong; this is simply a bird's way of cooling off, instead of hanging out its tongue as would a dog. As a matter of fact, though they do sometimes feel great heat, they are better equipped to stand it than we are.

The normal body temperature of birds is well above 100° (that of a Swift is 111.2°), and their cooling system is quite unlike ours. They cannot perspire, as we do, but depend on the rush of air through the lungs and the evaporation of water from the internal surfaces of the lungs and air sacs. Their breathing is rapid, and it is the exhaling (not the inhaling) which counts for them, because it is the outgoing air that regulate their temperatures.

Why, then, does Mrs. Robin keep her bill open when she is expected would act as an umbrel- obliged to remain at her post with her young family though the temperature is 85° in the shade and her home is in the blazing sun? A bird's windpipe open at the back of the tongue, and runs down until it broadens out into the song box. From here a tube goes to each lung. These two tubes feed both the lungs and five air sacs. One of the functions of these sacs is to fill the lungs just after exhaling so that air may be had for respiration before it can be breathed in from outside. And here it is that the water exchange goes on to help keep the body temperature constant.

However, birds are so wise in their choice of sites for their homes that this remaining in the sun is seldom necessary; but there are times when other factors have entered to spoil their plans. A branch which Mrs. Robin la might have died before the nestlings were ready to leave, or someone might have cut down a nearby tree. Then she must cover her babies to take the place of the shadow from leaves, because the sun's rays would be hot on unfeathered infants.

For adult birds' temperatue extremes count little in themselves But burning sun may dry up a swamp which had been full of small animal matter, unexpected snow may bury seeds, or sudden frost kill all flying insects. Thus certain dwellers, seed eater, or flycatchers lose their sole means of survival.

COLONIAL WEEK OPENED

King George in inaugurating the Colonial Month in Britain stressed the advantage of greater interest in the Colonial territories and their peoples. "It is," he said, "a month in which we hope to link together in closer fellowship than ever before the peoples of the British Colonies, Protectorates and Trust Territories and the people of Britain and herself and more particularly the people of London. It fills me with a deep sense of thankfulness that we are free to meet and plan together for the making of a world that will be closer to our heart's desire."

He thanked and praised all the peoples who did well for the Commonwealth and themselves in the recent struggle since the boundless opportunities which are open to them in partnership with us can only be fully realized in a freedom-loving world."

Such opportunities are manifold — "to enlarge our wealth by increase from the soil, and by the wise use of all its varied possibilities, to raise the standards of all peoples, to spread health, education and new vigor amongst peoples who have hitherto enjoyed little of these advantages and above all to promote higher ideals and to strengthen the trust and comradeship between races upon which the peace and welfare of mankind depend as they never depended before."

MECHANICAL TRANSLATOR?

The adding machine and electrical calculators have changed much of the mental labor of business to something much more easy as the operator does not have to watch out for slips as it used to be in the adding and subtracting in the day before the machines. It makes one wonder how people are to keep in practice if the machine puts numbers together and gives the answer.

Great as must have been the surprise when the calculator first came into use, perhaps an even greater shock is in store as it is indicated that there is being constructed a machine to translate actually words from three foreign tongues.

A writer in the New York Times admits he has misgivings about the accuracy of every translation and asks, "How is the machine to decide if the French word 'pont' is to be translated as 'bridge' or 'deck' or to know that 'operation' in German means a surgical operation?" He says:

"All the machine can do is to simplify the task of looking up words in a dictionary and setting down their English equivalents on a tape, so that the translator still has to frame the proper sentences and give the words their contextual meaning. No doubt the thousands of words to be translated will appear as holes punched in cards. The cards will be 'read,' whereupon translations of selected words will appear on a tape. Whether the holes in the cards represent mathematical symbols or words is of no moment to the machine's designer. We are still far from the machine into which we will pour cards and pull out great poetry or great novels. In fact, we shall never reach that stage. One mathematician is said to have remarked 'the more you work with these calculators the more stupid they seem,' meaning, of course, that somebody has to state the problem to be solved in the first place.

"Nevertheless, electronic automata do have what looks like limited judgment and what may be called 'memories.' They know when mistakes have been made in stating a problem and get excited about them. They also have their tantrums — their pathology. In fact, they behave in so human a way in Prof. Norbert Wiener's opinion they will clarify some of the functions of the nervous system. His brain makes man what he is, yet the brain is not the whole man."

THE SCYTHE

In the long ago days when men took quiet pride in their craftsmanship it was a pleasure to watch Grandfather work around the field, cutting a swath of timothy and clover before Father started around with the big Percherons. His swing was slow and even; at each swing he moved ahead with short, rhythmic steps; one could almost feel his pride in doing a good job. Today the countryman on his one man farm uses the scythe to trim out around the buildings and along the borders. It doesn't give a man much opportunity to practise straight-ahead mowing.

We are in favor of mechanized agriculture. But sometimes when one stops on an early summer day and see the grass rushing toward maturity, he can hear the clang of whetstones of long ago and see men going forth at dawn to mow by hand.—Ottawa Journal.

DAY OFF FOR FISHING

When a fellow goes fishing
he's done with his care.
Life's small irritations can't follow him there.
No phone calls to answer! No
"hurry up" cry
That someone is wanting what he must supply.
He is free from the customs of life which enslave.
He can go for the day without having to shave.

When a fellow goes fishing his rivals are fair,
The joys of the stream all are willing to share,
And when dinner is ready

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

It is never the wrong time of year to build a martin house on your property. And if you build it during the summer, the chances of travelling or migrating martins seeing it and coming back to it next year are good. Some people have put up elaborate eight or sixteen apartment martin houses, and waited five or six years before the birds adopted them. But once they come, they come apparently forever.

And no sweeter, homelier sound in nature exists than the day-long musical chatter of these sociable big swallows. Except in the interior of British Columbia, the martin is local and often common across the whole southern belt of the Dominion.

On a remote and fairly barren section of the Great Lakes, a cottager has had a martin house for twenty years past. And last winter, a storm blew it off its fourteen foot mast and destroyed it. Early in May, the cottager went up in the hope of getting it rebuilt before the martins returned to find it gone and depart elsewhere. The local report was that the martins had already been there two weeks. Apparently they had gone. None were to be seen around the area.

The cottager spent a morning and part of the afternoon building an eight-apartment house, and erected it back on the fourteen-foot pedestal and mast, solid and secure. He stepped back a few yards to check if the pedestal were vertical. And as he did so, three male martins flew onto the house and, with wild chirping and chuckling, proceeded to explore the new apartments. Before supper, there were eight male martins in possession. By nightfall, eight females had arrived out of the blue. When darkness fell, eight pairs were cosily and peacefully inside the eight tiny rooms.

At daybreak the next morning, the cottager observed eight male martins perched on the eight little perches outside the nest doors. The ladies were still inside.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE JOY OF ADVENTURE

Who can estimate the debt we owe to those who have adventured that we might enjoy all that we do? Every convenience that is our today is the product of someone's adventure. It's the spirit of adventure that drives us all on. We can make every day an adventure. We can even adventure in our mind. That's where the plans are made.

It's getting into action with our plans or dreams that puts the joy into any of our adventures. And every adventure seems to stimulate another. That's what kept Admiral Peary persisting after many attempts, until he had nailed the Stars and Stripes to the North Pole. Peary experienced the joy of adventure as has many another explorer and pioneer.

Life itself is the greatest of all adventures and we should early learn to extract the joy from it. We must get and keep the spirit of adventure in our hearts. So that each new day may be a promised adventure, carried out with hope and enthusiasm.

Many years ago there were inspiring volumes published every few years, with intriguing titles. "Adventures in Contentment," "Adventures in Understanding," and "Adventures in Friendship." These books were written by Ray Stannard Baker under the pen name of David Grayson, and were widely read. They are just as inspiring to read now as when first published. Of all the adventures in life, what ones can compare with those in the realm of friendship?

That vacation of yours can be made an adventure in more ways than one. Every trip away from home may be made into a profitable adventure. Never do we see the same thing twice in the same way, so that even though we have been to some place before, it can be new at subsequent times, and an adventure all over again.

The mind is always on the wing —adventuring into the minds and hearts of others, through contact with them, or through the medium of their books. The joy of adventure with a friend is the supermost of all adventures. Memory opens the door anew to each adventure, so that it really never quite ends.

TRANSMISSION AND RECEPTION

We all remember the early days of radio, when neither transmission nor reception was highly developed, and programs were often badly distorted. To the accompaniment of squealing, crackling static, the voices sounded blurred and uneven; the words were indistinguishable. Nowadays, with television in its infancy, the forms on the screen occasionally are cloudy and tremulous, the actions indistinct, the faces distorted and grotesque.

If we believed our eyes and ears, we would asume, when such things ocurred, that the speakers possessed hoarse, blurred voices, and that television actors were singularly ugly and sinister persons. But we do not really believe that. We assume, instead, that something has gone wrong with the means of communication. The ugliness is not in the actors but in the transmission or reception.

How willingly we make this assumption for radio peerformers: how unwillingly, for people of other nations. They, too, often appear ugly and sinister to us. Yet the way we learn of them is often far less dependable than radio or television—biased reporters, half truths, inaccurate journalism, propaganda. A great threat to peace today is our failure to understand our world neighbors. Before we believe the worst of them, let us see whether the fault is in the transmission or in our own reception.

Peat Moss Crop Summer Harvest From Swampland

Fort Frances, Ont. — (CP) — Workmen will be busy all summer about 10 miles southwest of here. They'll be digging more than $100,000 out of a swamp.

No wild hunt for a chest full of gold pieces, the operation is part of the sane but comparatively little-known peat moss industry in Canada.

To the uninitiated, the section of desolate swampland looks useless to man or beast. But out of the bog this summer a 10-year-old company (the Arctic Peat Moss Corporation, Ltd.) expects to harvest a crop worth nearly $150,000, one official estimates.

Nearly all production goes to the United States, where there has been a market for peat moss in the form of poultry litter and horticultural soil conditioner ever since shipments from Germany stopped in 1939. Little if any peat moss is used for fuel on this side of the Atlantic.

Harvesting a crop of peat moss is a simple process. But it takes time. Cutting the blocks of moss out of the bog began in April this year. A gang of about 75 men and women will be kept busy for several months cutting, stacking and re-piling the peat.

After the wind and sun dry out the blocks, which are stacked on racks, they are hauled to large open-air storage sheds. The company has three miles of narrow-gauge railway, complete with engine and cars, to do this job.

Drainage Important

In the company mill, near the bog, the blocks of peat are broken up, screened and baled. Some peat moss has been sold locally for insulation. The company now is experimenting with the idea of manufacturing an insulating wall board.

An important part of the peat moss business is drainage. Canals and ditches must be dug to carry surplus moisture away from the bog before operations can begin. Here there are between four and five miles of ditches in the drainage system. A three-mile main ditch runs to Rainy River.

Peat is made up of an accumulation of three or more kinds of mosses, together with other decayed vegetation. Some spots in the bog here have mined to a depth of 12 or 14 feet. Normally the crop is taken to a depth of one foot at a time. The main value of the finished product is that it will absorb up to 15 times its own weight in water.

Peat moss is used, among other things, for golf course greens, in greenhouses, orchards and market gardens. Most of the Canadian out-put of peat moss comes from British Columbia, Alberta, Manitoba, Quebec and New Brunswick tions are at Whitemouth, about 60 miles east of Winnipeg.

Through the years, peat has been put to many different uses. But perhaps the strangest use came to light during the First World War, when the Canadian government operated peat bogs to produce material for surgical dressings as well as for fuel.

BLESSED BE THE DENTISTS

I'm afraid the dentists do not like me very well.

For one reason or another or maybe several reasons why some of the rank and file of dental practitioners resent or reject most of the health teaching in this column so far as the teachings relate to saving the teeth.

You see, there are several widely circulated dental "magazines" of the throw-away class—regular periodicals that come to the dentists without cost—at whose expence a glance at the ads in each "magazines" have had editorial issue, will tell you. At one time or another most of these free articles about me and my teachings (for example one titled "Little Willie," referring to me as "Pal" Brady)—articles which for sheer scurrility are . . .

Although I cannot regard a used toothbrush as sanitory nor glorified soap or other detergents in the form of paste, powder or liquid as superior to plain soap and water for cleaning mouth or teeth, I am equally certain that the use of toothbrush and your favorite dentifrice can do no harm If you feel "cleaner" for it, suit yourself—it is wholly a matter of your personal preference.

Americans, or at any rate, a large portion of the population are the greatest customers of toothbrushes and dentifrices in the world. Yet, up to the time of the war, the people of Italy, particularily the children there, who seldom saw a toothbrush or dentifice, had far better teeth than the children in America had.

The people of Tristen da Cunha, both young and old, who have no toothbrushes or dentifrices, have teeth that put American teeth to shame. The people there live on natural food, not on manufactured, refined pop.

A few scientific investigators, NOT working under a subsidy, grant, fellowship or other honorarium paid by this or that interest, have published the facts obtained from bacteriological and ordinary examination of toothbrushes used in many American homes, and the conditions they found should make anyone feel squeamish about the rite.

The tooth brushing business is only one of several differences of opinion that keep one or another group of dentists irked. Another suggestion offered here from time to time is immediate denture service—which means the dentist prepares in advance and installs immediately after extraction, whatever denture or plate the patient may require. A professional man, for example, had many teeth extracted, a plate installed before he left the dentist's office, and although I sat across the table from him at dinner that evening I never suspected he had lost his teeth until he told me later. There is a world of difference between this modern technique and the old fashioned practice of waiting months for new teeth—and not only becoming a recluse but steadily going down-hill in nutritional condition, vite, health while toothless. My references to this modern kind of dentistry displeases the old timers who haven't the skill to give such service.

Then on occasion I warn the public about the lack of asepsis in some dentist's offices—there isn't room to explain in detail here, but the ignorance, carelessness or indifference in regard to absolute surgical cleanliness in some dentists' offices is so obvious to anyone with an elementary knowledge of the importance of surgical cleanliness that is a wonder an intelligent patient remains in the chair for even a moment after dentist or assistant commits a flagrant offence against the rules of asepsis.

Toronto, June 24 (CP)—Taxi-driver Eric Shepherd of Toronto told police Thursday night that two gunmen held him up in suburban Leaside, drove to a lonely road and robbed him of $10 and a wristwatch. He said the unidentified men pressed two revolvers to his head and tied him up in a field with his belt.

DREW SAYS

"They have not the sane method we have," he said, to the accompaniment of derisive remarks.

But the Conservative leader came back, "we have come back with a definite policy. We have stated it clearly in the last and that is how it stands."

Charges Whispering Campaign

Mr. Drew charged that there was a "whispering campaign" going on in all its evil phases. "One," he said "was the elimination or reduction of the armed forces." Speaking on that the Conservative leader brought counter charges.

He had, he said, certain information that a naval rating on the western coast, a recruit, he charged, was advised to vote Liberal — or else.

"That," Mr. Drew thundered, "is nothing else than blackmail."

He charged that Mr. St. Laurent has not as yet refuted the charges laid against Premier Smallwood, Newfoundland.

At this point a fight broke out in one of the balconies of the arena. Reporters from the metropolitan newspapers rushed to the scene. Photographers flashed bulbs.

Unperturbed, George Drew smiled. "I hope the Toronto Star reporter will pay these people before they are eliminated from this scene."

Made no Reference

After referring to Newfoundland Premier Smallwood, Mr. Drew drew attention of his audience to the fact that Prime Minister St. Laurent had not made any reference to the recent newspaper and court stories regarding the "Newfie" P.M.

"Newfoundland," Mr. Drew said "is not the place nor the province which can be coerced by an outside source."

"I thoroughly believe, that Newfoundland will vote as it wishes from the order laid down and definitely not by threat."

Mr. Drew was introduced by George S. White P. C. candidate for Hastings-Peterborough. Mrs. Drew was presented to the audience by the riding candidate, Richard D. Arnott, K.C. Mr. Arnott in his introductory remarks paid tribute to Mrs. Arnott, and her capable assistance in his campaign.

Clarence Graham, President of the South Hastings Progressive Conservative Association, was chairman and introduced the various guests.

Mrs. George Drew who gave an admirable address to the ladies present (the story appears elsewhere) was introduced by R. D. Arnott. The musical part of the meeting was furnished by that accomplished young xylophone artist, Helen Grant. Mrs. Grant, her mother, provided the piano accompaniment.

Newfoundland, 5.30 p.m.; Atlantic 6 p.m.; Eastern, 7 p.m.; Central 8 p.m.; Mountain 9 p.m.; Pacific 10 p.m.

Held Six-Vote Majority

The Liberals held a six-vote majority in the last Commons the party standing in the 245-seat Chamber at Dissolution April 30 was:

Liberals 125; Progressive Conservatives 69; C.C.F. 32; Social Credit, 12; others, six; vacant, 1.

There will be 262 seats in the new House. The increase of 17 seats includes seven for the new Province of Newfoundland and 10 for new constituencies created since 1949.

The Liberals, in office since 1935, have the largest number of candidates—260—in the field.

The Progressive Conservative, out to regain the Federal power they lost in 1935, are running them a close second, with 249. The C.C.F. has nominated 180, Union of Electors 55, the Social Credit group 27 and the Communist Labor-Progressive Party 19.

Miscellaneous Groups

Miscellaneous political groups account for the remaining 53 candidates.

While the bulk of eligible voters in the country's 12,500,000 population won't vote until Monday, a thin vanguard already have begun to mark their ballots. They are troops, Royal Canadian Mounted Police constables and certain classes of civilians who voted in advance polls this week.

The armed service vote was held from Monday to Friday. Eligible were some 40,000 permanent force soldiers, sailors and airmen, 11,000 veterans still in hospital and an undetermined number of reservists at Summer training camps.

Could Reverse Vote

Their votes, which won't be known until July 2, just possibly could reverse the result of civilian voting in closely-fought seats.

The civilian advance polls, which opened Thursday and close today, include commercial travellers, fishermen and transport workers who will be away from home voting day. Their votes will be counted election night.

Fifteen women are in the hunt for some of the 262 commons seats. Eighteen were nominated in 1945. The 15 include seven running under the C.C.F. banner, four Progressive Conservatives, two Union of Electors, one Liberal and one Independent-Liberal. They are seeking seats in Newfoundland, Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

But, if the pattern of the past holds true this year, the chances of the women candidates are slim. In all, five women have won election to the commons in Canadian political history.

McCULLAGH SAYS

When he protested, said Mr. McCullagh, he was offered a similar arrangement, but refused because he preferred "to keep the independence of my newspaper". When the CBC's "gift" to the Star became public, the corporation was "forced to stop it".

Not Required To Pay

He said also that the Toronto Star Weekly is not required to pay the eight-per-cent sales tax which is charged on newsprint used in the publication of newspapers in Canada. This was because the Star Weekly was classed by the federal government as a magazine.

"Now, you know it is not a magazine," said Mr. McCullagh. "The Montreal Standard, which is exactly the same type of paper, pays the tax."

He said that on four different occasions in the last three years spokesmen for the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association "have appeared before members of the government to protest this unfair discrimination."

Speaks as Citizen

Mr. McCullagh, who said he spoke as an ordinary citizen and voter, said he did not come willingly to the microphone "but because of the frequent use of my name in this campaign and the slanderous terms employed, I feel it my duty to deal with some of the attempts that are being made to hoodwink you."

He said the "arrogance" of the government has been 'matched' only by the insolence of its taxation policies". It had over-taxes the people by "hundreds of millions" of dollars in three of the four post-war years and now, wanting votes, decided to refund some of the over-charge and buy your vote with your own money."

It had built up "colossal" surpluses which 'have a place in the present high cost of living which your so-called Liberal government promised to reduce, and today is at an all-time high." It had taken money, as well, in sales, excise and so-called special war taxes which added 'heavily to the price of virtually everything you had to buy."

Sweeten by Tax Cuts

Now that voting day was near, the government would "sweeten you up" by tax cuts which Finance Minister Abbott had said would reduce this year's surplus to only $87,000,000. Yet, official treasury figures for April showed a surplus in one month alone of $106,000,000.

This was the record of a government which, when it became necessary to face the public accounts committee and present its books for examination, dissolved parliament.

"There was no chance for you to see what the boys had been up to," said Mr. McCullagh. "I ask you, is it not time we took stock and decided who are to be the servants and who are masters? Your course should be plain on June 27."

Mr. McCullagh touched, too, on Mr. Drew's charges that the government had sold the $20,000,000 Canadair Aircraft plant at Montreal to the Electric Boat Company of the United States.

He said he would like Trade Minister Howe, the minister responsible to say why the plant had been sold for $4,000,000.

Mackenzie's Column:

Russia Now On Defensive Says Writer

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP News Analyst)

Dean Acheson, Secretary of State, tells us that one of the conclusions to be drawn from the recent Paris conference of the Big Four foreign ministers is that Russia now is on the defensive in what he graphically describes a. "the struggle for the soul of Europe."

That also is the consensus of observers. To get the full significance of the situation, however, I think we must view it on a global basis. We mustn't forget that bolshevism, ever since its inception has aimed at "world revolution" to communize all countries and bring them under the direction of Moscow.

Our problem in effect has to be worked out on a military basis. The conflict has most aptly been described as a "cold war"—and not so cold either.

Democratic Success

With the ending of the World War, the Russians immediately launched their drive for the establishment of Communism in the various countries which the Red troops occupied. They made hay while the making was good, and before the western powers had time to figure out just what was happening to them.

The Russian offensive continued until Moscow had a strong grip on virtually all eastern Europe and a goodly slice of central Europe as well. Finally the western Allies got into action and halted the Russian advance by means of a politico-economic offensive, coupled with such defensive measures as the creation of the Atlantic pact.

So the Russians are indeed on the defensive—in Europe. And that represents a great success for the democracies, but our analysis can't stop there. Coincident with the blocking of the Red machine in Europe there has been an increase in Communist activities in the Far East. The revolution in that theatre is swelling into a major conflict which may even exceed the European battle in intensity.

A tremendous Red offensive is boiling up in the Orient, and on the whole is encountering relatively light resistance from the western democracies. That may become the major theatre of operations—the armageddon. We should watch it.

This Can Be The Dawn Of Our Greatest Day!

Canadians have never willingly elected to power a government which has failed to remain faithful to the democratic principle of free enterprise.

By their insistence on retaining emergency powers granted for war only, the Liberals have confused and frustrated every branch of our economy by a mass of ever-changing orders and regulations. Canada's future, your own future and the future of your children hang in the balance. ON JUNE 27th., VOTE FOR THE PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE PARTY — which will insist in government being the servant of the people — not the master!

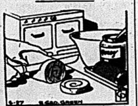
WEDDINGS

STUART—GOULD

On Thursday, June 23, at three p.m., at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Manse, a quiet wedding was performed by the Reverend J. J. Hornsby, pastor of the church, when Mrs. E. Gould, of Corbyville, and Edward Stuart, of Moose Jaw, Sask., were united in marriage.

After a short honeymoon trip to Kingston, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart will leave for Moose Jaw, Sask., where they will reside.



This is how biscuit "whirls" are made. Spread regular baking powder biscuit dough with butter (or margarine), then a coating of honey and grated orange rind. Roll up dough like a jelly roll and cut it into one-inch pieces. Bake in a hot oven about 15 minutes.

Women's Press Club of Canada Meets in B.C.

Vancouver, June 25. —(CP)— A Chinese fashion show and a 10-course dinner — with a choice of chop sticks or knives and forks— ended a busy day Wednesday for Canadian newspaper women in convention here.

The dinner was given by the Vancouver Sun to the members of the Canadian Women's Press Club. It was arranged by Mrs. McKissock Kyle.

Three sets of sisters — Maisie and Evelyn Yip, Vera and May Lee and Dorothy and Florence Wong — modeled 18 dresses of ancient China.

Earlier, the press women got the "low - down" on the controversy about women reporters and were told they are doing a good job in the newspaper field.

Doris Milligan, assistant city editor of the Vancouver Sun, said:

"Editors charge women with taking more sick leave, quibbling over assignments, not digging for facts," she said. "They also claim that they lack depth and enthusiasm, are too emotional and too wordy."

"I don't agree with all these," she said, "but some are true."

In the final analysis it was up to the women themselves. "Once they get a job, it's up to them to prove they're as good as men reporters."

No city editor would hesitate to send his worst enemy, or a woman, to cover a story if he foresaw a scoop, she declared.

Mrs. J. J. Dingman of University of Western Ontario School of Journalism, said eastern editors say emotionalism makes women a headache to management.

W. L. MacTavish, retired executive editor of the Vancouver Province, said dailies often used too many columns to the detriment of news. Columns sometimes lost sight of accuracy. He thought there should be more women editorial writers.

I. E. Shapiro Presents Staff With Farewell Gifts

The staff of the J. A. McNabb Ltd., was entertained recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Shapiro, former owners of the company.

A most delightful evening was enjoyed, despite the fact that, at times, the realization that Mr. and Mrs. Shapiro would be leaving Belleville in the near future, added a sombre note. This is felt particularly by those of the staff who have enjoyed association with the Shapiros for many years.

Those present partook of a delicious luncheon, at the conclusion of which, Mr. Shapiro on behalf of Mrs. Shapiro and himself, presented everyone present with a beautiful gift.

The evening was concluded with listening to some recordings, after which reluctant good-byes were said.

Stresses Benefits Granted by Liberal Govt.

A most successful euchre party was held at the West End Liberal club rooms, Bridge Street West, on Thursday night. The following were the prize winners: Women's 1st, Mrs. Geo. McWilliams 2nd, Mrs. R. Salisbury and 3rd, Mrs. F. Thom. Men's 1st, Mr. R. Allan, 2nd, Mr. Geo. McWilliams and 3rd, John Shannon.

After refreshments were served, the Liberal candidate for South Hastings, Frank S. Follwell, addressed the gathering. He stated that family allowances and increased old age pensions, both of which were introduced by the present government, have had the effect of raising the standard of living for the whole country.

Mrs. H. McCabe, regional president of the Women's Liberal Club of Central Ontario also spoke briefly.

Modern Hymnals Reflect Trends Toward Service

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

New York, June — (AP) — There are trends in hymns and hymn books, even as in hemlines and the stock market.

"We're getting away from 'heaven longing' today," explains Miss Caroline Parker, editor of church music for one of the largest publishers of hymnals, which are used by some Protestant denominations. The Episcopal and the Roman Catholic churches have special hymnals.

"There's a movement away from golden streets and golden crowns. And we're weeding out the gruesome ones that talk of blood and wounds." The emphasis in hymns today is on the world we live in, Miss Parker says, the words are designed to appeal to the future, and point out the good on earth.

In many cases, familiar tunes are merely fitted with new lyrics -- if that word may be used in connection with church music. But Miss Parker is constantly on the lookout for inspirational poetry. When she finds some likely material for a hymn, she turns it over to one of the composers on her list who sets it to music. One of the currently popular Easter hymns was first seen as a poem in a popular woman's magazine.

Publishers of hymnals think several times before they go in for revisions. Churches buy in large quantities and expect the title to be "open stock" for a long period so they can re-order as the books become lost or torn. Miss Parker says the average life of a hymnal is about 20 years.

Miss Parker's firm (Fleming H. Revell Co.) specializes in what the trade calls "interdenominational" hymnals.

In spite of the increasing use of modernized hymnals there is still wide demand for the old fashioned "gospel" hymnals, put together in the days of the great revivalists, Billy Sunday and Homer Rodeheaver.

Revival and Revised

"The old revival hymns are still very popular in the South," says Miss Parker, "and in smaller communities in the Midwest. The churches in the larger cities seem to be more interested in the revised hymnals."

Despite all the talk of pitching popular hymns lower so they'll be easier to sing, Miss Parker isn't entirely in favor of it.

"When you pitch them lower, you frequently lose the attractiveness of the music. They tried it once in the Episcopal hymnal, and they found that many of the hymns were spoiled."

In compiling a hymn book it is necessary to scan the hymns of two thousand years of Christianity and then select those which have present day values. Thus you'll find under one cover, works by St. Francis of Assisi, a modern poet and an eminent preacher like Harry Emerson Fosdick.

One of her most recent compilations, "The New Church Hymnal" contains more than 100 hymns written since 1900.

"It illustrates the way we are thinking now," Miss Parker said. "The hymns are concerned with the living church today, the spiritual life, service to mankind, childhood and youth — and higher patriotism."

Another of her favorites is "The Hymnal for Boys and Girls," which, she says, is designed to interpret through moral and spiritual lyrics the teachings of the church, rather than "medieval ideas of heaven."

Strawberry Canning

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, (CP)—Drought may have cast its shadow over the strawberry crop in some parts of the country this year. But the housewife should be able to get a few boxes—even enough for canning—before the season is over.

Home economists of the consumer section, Dominion department of agriculture, have developed a method of canning strawberries so that the berries do not collapse.

The secret is in letting the berries stand in the hot syrup until they fill out. This also helps to set the color.

Wash, hull berries. Bring to boil slowly in syrup. Cover, remove from heat and let stand from one to three hours. Pack in sealers, leaving one-half inch head space, partially seal and process small (pint) sealers, 15 minutes in boiling water or 20 minutes in the oven at 275 degrees Fahrenheit. Process medium (quart) sealers 15 minutes in boiling water bath, or in the oven at 275 degrees, for 25 minutes.

Shortcake

Ingredients: 1 1-2 cups flour (sifted); 2 1-2 teaspoon baking powder; one-half teaspoon salt; two tablespoon granulated sugar; one quart cup shortening; one egg (beaten) five tablespoons milk; three cups sweetened berries (crushed).

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Cut in shortening until mixture is like a coarse meal. Add egg and enough milk to make dough which can be easily handled Roll one-half inch thick. Cut in required individual sizes and bake on a greased baking-sheet, in a hot oven for 15 minutes.

Watch For Sunburn

Health and welfare department officials warn all "tan-worshippers" to watch that sun! Too much of the sun's rays at one time can end up in a painful and dangerous sunburn. Skin should be exposed only for a short time at first, gradually lengthening the periods as a tan is acquired.

The health experts warn against the two hot-weather dangerous—sunstroke, which is excessive exposure to the sun's rays; heat exhaustion, which comes from too much activity in an excessively high temperature.

In both cases the treatment is the same—find a cool shady spot as soon as you feel a slight headache or nausea. In the case of sudden collapse the individual should be carried to a shady place and cooled off with sponging or by an electric fan. Cool drinks also should be administered.

Women's Skirts To Be Same Length Next Fall

Vancouver, June 25 (CP)—A couple of girls who ought to know —they're fashion experts—have let out the word: women's skirts are not going to get any shorter next Fall.

Armande Marc and Marie Tetrault, women's page editors of Montreal La Patrie and Le Canada, respectively, attending the Canadian Women's Press Club convention here, dropped the style news Wednesday to an enquiring male reporter.

They viewed Fall stylings in Montreal just before leaving for the National Women's Press Convention, and said skirts are "still only 13 or 14 inches from the ground."

Both said Montreal, fashion capital of the Dominion, is going all out for world recognition. This Fall the fashion industries are sending Canadian models and styles for special showings in Paris. They have even developed what the fashion editors called "their own color" which will make its debut this year.

Vancouver, however, which plays host to the ladies of the fourth estate until Friday when they leave for Victoria, may come in for some adverse publicity.

The lady journalists couldn't shop Wednesday. Almost all Vancouver stores are closed all day Wednesday

Wailed Mrs. Helen Pearce of the Owen Sound Daily Sun Tims: "How am I going to get a black cardigan for my 18-year-old daughter? I'll never hear the end of it."

Also objecting was senior reporter Isobel Plant, of the London Free Press, who "skipped out" on a visit to a cannery and found herself "stranded with nothing to do' when she found stores closed.

Mannequins in Moscow Model Fashions From Overalls to Gowns

Moscow, June 25. (CP)—It costs about $1.80—the price of a good movie seat—to see the style show at Moscow's House of Fashion. And it's a lot more fun than any film.

Anyone can go, and no one feels embarrassed to be seen in last season's clothes. The few fur coats in the audience are worn by the wives of high-ranking officials. Most of the women wear shawls over their heads and padded jackets.

The mannequins are natural and model everything from overalls to evening gowns.

First it's overalls and house frocks, with the mistress of ceremonies explaining the attractions of each and giving the state number. This is because the Moscow housewife prefers to make her own dresses. Only if her husband has a well-paid state job does she employ a dressmaker.

So the women ask "how many metres of material for that one? —what kind of material for this?"

Hit of the show was a double-purpose number. It starts as a long-sleeved black silk afternoon frock—but unbutton the sleeves and it is suitable for evening wear. More buttons are undone and the top half falls down and can be tied around the waist as a hip peplum, leaving a black skirt and white blouse which can be turned into an all-black back and white front.

"We have even had inquiries from Australia for this one—and it is popular with our Soviet actresses," says the M. C.

3-Fold Formula Given For Beauty Care by Expert

Hamilton, June 25. —(CP) — Beauty has a three-fold formula says beauty expert Margaret Holland.

Speaking before the Ontario Retail Druggists' Convention, on Wednesday, Miss Holland said that correct diet, corrective exercises and correct knowledge of skin and nail care is the formula for feminine beauty. Treatment preparation for hair and skin should only be thought of as a necessary and helping hand to nature.

She said skin beauty has its basis in the blood stream. If the circulation is good it reacts on the sebaceous or oil glands and feeds the skin surface with necessary amount of protective oil.

Cleansing is most important of four steps in skin and hair care, Miss Holland said. It is closely followed by lubrication, stimulation and protection.

Skin care is more important than make-up. Good make-up never did improve the skin but it does cover a multitude of sins.

Choice Big Factor For Good Marriage

Scarborough, Yorshire, England, —(CP)—Don't marry out of your class. It won't work, says marriage expert Kenneth Ball.

At a Marriage Guidance Council conference, Ball said:

"It's no good for a girl who enjoys eating fish and chips out of a newspaper for her supper to marry a man accustomed to having soup, savory and sweets served on a white tablecloth for dinner.

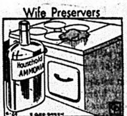
"That simply couldn't work out. And if he suggested that she should dress for dinner, the girl would merely be inclined to laugh."

On mixed religious mariages he said: "It's 10 to 1 they will not work out happily."

SEAPORT DISAPPEARED

Bruges, at one time chief among European seaports, lost its place when the channel of the Belgian river connecting with the North Sea become silted up. Antwerp is now Belgium's chief port.

Wife Preservers



To remove burnt food from your gas oven, wet a clean piece of cheesecloth with household ammonia; place this wet cloth over part of the range to be cleaned, top, oven bottom or broiler pan. Let cloth remain until it is thoroughly dry, then wash range part with hot soapy water.

PRAIRIE LABORATORY

Edmonton — (CP) — The first science service laboratories for plant and insect research in western Canada are already in operation, though they won't be officially opened until September. The $500,000 project, at Lethbridge, Alta., will concentrate on a search for disease-resistant seeds and new crop varities.

EARLY GRADUATES

The first university degrees of master of arts were granted in the Middle Ages, and permitted their holders to teach in any school or university.

Designers Have Their Minds on Fall Rainwear

Los Angeles, June 25. (AP)— Outside a 90-degree sun was beating down, but California designers had their minds on Fall rainwear.

Raincoats with weighted hemlines—to keep the coat down no matter how hard the wind blows —featured the display by Colle of Hollywood at the California Apparel Creators' Fall Fashion Show.

The coat is made of shiny velon and has a braid trim around the yoke, sleeves and belt. Hat and bag match.

In the lingerie department, strapless slips with built-in bras scored a hit. A strapless night gown is held up by elastic in and back and around the top.

Necklines, it seems are coming back up, on both dressy and casual clothes. The plunging neckline will remain for afternoon and evening dresses but usually will have a convertible collar.

In short necklines will be very high or very low.

Skirt lengths were from a half to one inch shorter. Dressy dresses still have back interest, but elaborate bustle effects have given way to more simple lines.

FRONTIER U.

By Oren Arnold

"Can't you toss a loop through the foliage that far?" said he. "Ward said the cowboys climbed the tree to throw their loops."

He hung the rope over one shoulder and started up. His leather chaps made climbing somewhat awkward, but the low limbs aided him. His spurs clinked. The cat turned toward him and rumbled a warning. It was an animal as big as two of the hound put together, a great tawny beast seven or eight feet from nose to tip of tail. Ward had said they'd weigh up to 250 pounds.

"Ken!" Polly's tone revealed distress. "Do you know what you are doing?"

He grinned down. "I think so! Hold everything, mister." He addressed her and the big cat alternately. "It'll take a mighty small loop to get in between the pine needles. You look tough, too!"

"Ken!"

"Ho?"

"Be very careful! Please come down and wait for the others. Ward will know what to do, and . . ."

"Here goes!" He cried. His legs were locked around the main tree trunk now and he sat on a limb. This left his arms free. At once his short lariat loop swung around and around near to his shoulders . . . swish-swish-swish. Then it snaked out toward the lion.

"RR-R-R-RAWR-R-R!"

The big panther became a veritable tornado of furry there.

It's head had been flattened down on a limb. When Ken's loop struck, the beast jumped forward two or three feet, made an unearthly roaring and spitting and growling, lifted one great paw and swiped at the rope. The move brought the beast almost within arm's reach of Ken.

Polly screeched. A short, shrill scream. "Ken . . . oh!"

She was dancing around the ground almost comically but didn't! This is my lion. You let him

"Ken, I'm going to shoot him!" she cried. "I can kill him easily from here and. . . ."

"NO!" he shouted. "No you don't! This is my lion. Youlet him alone!"

A wild, frenzied look of pleasure shone the young man. Obviously he was enjoying this rare combat. Polly was at once frightened and delighted for him;she gazed up at Ken Palmer with a kind of fierce pride. The dogs kept up a hullabaloo.

The lariat loop had gone squarely to the lion's head, but the raised paw deflected it.

"All right, mister, you big son-of-a-gun!" Ken's voice was a strain now. His legs were tiring, holding him in a position. "You won that trick but I've still got the rope!"

He re-coiled quickly. The lion had backed away. Dogs divided its attention. Ken had less than 10 feet to toss the loop and had to reach around the tree trunk to do it, but he swung again.

"Got HIM!" Ken shrieked.

He had thrown quickly, jerked at precisely the right instant to tighten the noose around the panther's neck, Polly noted with pride.

"You've murdered your last horse and your last calf, mister!" Ken kept up his strange conversation with the beast. "You're done!"

Ken was clambering down the tree now, holding the rope tight. The lion's growling and hissing were even more furious than before.

In a moment Ken was beside Polly, manouvering the rope much as a fisherman has to fight a trout. The girl as well as Ken was talking and shrieking excitedly. Horses of the other hunters were heard approaching in the distance, and Ward McMurray shouted something.

"Ken! Ken! Look, he's got the rope in his mouth! You have to work fast!" Polly took the rope in her hand also. "Pull it tighter!

"What'll I do if I get him down ?" he yelled at her. "Wait . . . Ward said to pull the cat off on the other side of the limb! Don't you see? Suspend him over the limb with the first rope. Then tie his feet with a second one I can . . ."

"That's right! I remember! There's my lariat, Ken!"

They had to shout to the top of the dogs' barking and the lions noises, and because they were 'rope.u

jumping about with their stuggling lion. They held the rope tight, leaning back against it. The cat was extra-ordinarily strong. The all at once . . .

Plop! Polly and Ken both sat down, hard.

"He's chewed the rope in two!" Ken yelled. "He's loose!"

The lariat lay inert on the ground now. A tremendous feel of helplessness assailed the boy and girl. They turned to see Ward and Joy ond the others running up, on foot.

"He bit through my rope!" Ken was shouting at Ward. "Had the loop around his neck—it's still there, the short stub of it. Chewed it right into when I tried to handle him!"

Ward McMurray was calm, save for the obvious excitement in his eyes. But Joy Boone and the two newspaper men, James Glenn and Terry Brookfield, were jittery indeed. Facing a 250-pound panther in a tree only 12 feet up, hearing it snarl menacingly, hearing the dogs bark frenziedly, all made enough to excite anyone!

"They'll do that," Ward nodded, staring up. "How come you to be roping, anyhow, Ken?"

"You said—you said they were worth money! I can use $100!"

"Hmmmm! So you had guts enough to do that! You climbed up!"

Polly spoke proudly. "Yes, Ward! He was on that limb, there! Within a few feet of the cat. Lassoed him and climbed down to pull him off!"

Ward grinned amiably. "Maybe just as well you didn't, my fran'. Having a lion on the ground on a loose rope is like having a live bear by the tail. You can't let go and you can't stop him!"

"I finally thought of that," Ken admitted, smiling. "But. . ."

'Let's rope him again," Ward suggested. "There's a trick to it."

Joy Boone spoke up then. "Oh Ward, let me! I can! I know I can! I never have roped one and I want to!"

"I reckon you haven't at that!" They all turned to her. James Glenn was taking pictures again; of Joy, of Polly, of Ken and Ward, of the dogs and the lion. "So you want to, eh? Okay, you shall!"

He had to "boost" Joy up the thick pine tree. Her legs wouldn't reach around it to aid her, as Ken's had aided him. And the higher she went the louder the lion snarled.

"Stay on the side away from him!" Ken insisted. "Now that's it! Crouch right there. Hook your leg around that knot . . . . Make your loop. Small. Let him have it, Joy!"

She had to throw three times. But the people below her had to confess admiration for her infinite nerve. She was a bit trembly but she lacked nothing of courage. Ward McMurray's admiration was plain in the way he looked at her and in the tone of his voice.

When she tossed the third loop successfully, the lion straightened up and roared out a challenge as if to attack Joy. As customary with panthers, his long tail still hung low.

"EE-E-e-e-e!" It was a shriek of genuine terror, and the blond girl all but fell out of the tree. James Glenn was still clicking his camera as she clambered down, Ward helping her.

Ken was holding her rope now, jerking it side to side to prevent its being bit as before.

"That's the ticket, Ken!" Ward kept shouting. He ran up right under the treed lion. "Now you slacken the rope a bit as I jump!"

"Ward! What will you do!" Joy was doubly alarmed.

"Wait and see! slack up, Ken!"

Then Ward leaped straight up. He caught the lion's tail, held it, swung out and jerked.

CR-R-ASH!

The lion roared. The people sprang back. The dogs went crazy. The lion was jerked off its limb, on the side away from the lariat rope.

"Tighten up, Ken!" Ward shrieked. "Tighten up now!"

But Ken had already seen the manouver and had pulled with all his weight.

In an instant the cat was suspended there in mid-air! Scrambling, flailing, jerking, spitting furiously as cats do. The drama held the spectators spellbound, all but the photographer who was beside himself with action.

In flashing speed, now, Ward jerked a piggin' string out of his belt. This short lengh of rope, so commonly used in range calf tieing, he made into a second small loop and quickly used it to bind the lion's rear legs.

His arm swung out and around. Deft twists, a half hitch or two.

"Let him down, Ken!"

Ken slackened the rope . . . and there on the ground was the 250-pound mountain panther, unharmed but securly tied.

Ward and Ken came up to it, stood there grinning happily like the boys they were. They stooped to feel the thick tan fur.

Then they took the dogs off a ways and tied them, to stop their noise.

"I'll just tie a short green stick across his mouth, so's he couldn't possibly bite anybody and yet suffer no pain," Ward explained. "You want to remember that trick next time, too, Ken. Or you could wrap his head up in an old sack or something. Just so you let him be free to breathe. And don't let the neck noose choke him more than a few seconds. It's why we have to work fast. No man puts up with torturing any animal, wild or tame."

Waterfowl Chief Suffers From Extended Drought

(Written for The Canadian Press)
By PERCY GHENT

Much has been written and heard during the last few weeks of the disastrous effects of Ontario's prolonged drought on crops and fruits. But little space has been devoted to its effects on wild life.

According to a Toronto ornithologist, waterfowl probably suffer most from an extended drought, especially when it occurs in late spring or early summer. In times of drought lake shallows aid prairie marshes often become a parched desolation, suitable animal and other food disappears, and the result for waterfowl can be disastrous.

Birds whose tastes run to such tasty morsels as grasshoppers and sundry beetles are not chirruping complaints. Hopper and many other insects thrive in the dry, hot weather in many sections. For them wet days discourage increase, it has been found, besides inducing insect diseases which keep their numbers within bounds.

Hard on Robins, Too

Even casual observers of bird life have noticed that robins are not particularly happy about the drought. Earthworms, fat and filling, are uncommonly scarce. They have really gone to earth in a deep way in search of moisture and their visits to the surface are few.

This means that the robins have been having a grim time foraging their favorite diet for themselves and young. Robins eagerly pouncing on bread and table scraps thrown out by thoughtful folk, is an unusual sight for June.

When the wild berry crop of the remoter regions where black bears roam is cut to the vanishing point by lack of rain, the animals suffer and become emaciated. It is a berry shortage that sends the black fellows to the garbage dumps of the settlements, hungry enough to devour kitchen refuse of any kind. At such times, too, they have been known to raid sheep folds, though such instances are rarely recorded.

Asked if he could inject a cheery note into the unhappy chronicle of the drought, one naturalist had a quick and laughing response: "Yes, there are not many mosquitoes around. Most of the swampy breeding grounds of the little devils have dried up."

Imprints Found Mile High

Millions of years ago some of the earliest living things on the earth were crawling creatures with three-part bodies, a feature which gave them their name — trilobite. They lived in the slime of shallow, long-vanished seas.

Yet the fossilized imprints of these pioneer animals of the sea-bottom are now found a mile high in the Canadian Rocky Mountains. Mount Burgess and Mount Stephen in particular have countless fossil pictures of trilobites on their lofty rocks.

How did they get there? Those imprints were made ages before the birth of the Rockies. And the Rockies were born when, in some gigantic upheaval, the bed of that vast, shallow sea was hoisted skyward to make a vast range of mountains. There could be no other explanation, say the geologists.

Embalmed Head of Cromwell Is Owned by Canon Wilkinson

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Woodbridge, Suffolk, England, June 25 — (CP) — Canon Horace Wilkinson owns the embalmed head of Oliver Cromwell, and has no intention of parting with it.

When asked if he had thought of presenting the one-time dictator's head to a museum or the state, Canan Wilkinson replied:

"Not likely. I can look after it better than the state. When they had it, they stuck it on a pole."

The Canon can trace the head's movements from the time that Oliver Cromwell's body was exhumed with those of his lieutenants, Ireton and Bradshaw, Jan. 30, 1661, 12th anniversary of the execution of Charles I.

The three bodies were taken to Tyburn on a hurdle, hanged on the gibbets till sunset and then beheaded. After they had been embalmed, the heads were stuck on poles and displayed in Westminster Hall, scene of Charles I's trial.

In 1671 the head was still on view; at an unknown later date it was blown down in a storm and those men that my ancestor, James Henry Wilkinson bought the head," Canon Wilkinson said. "I have no intention of parting with it."

This is a matter of regret to the Cromwell Association which has nearly 200 members in all parts of the world.

Thirty other relics of Oliver Cromwell — many of them his personal wear — have been handed over to the association by Rev. Paul Cromwell-Bush, who claims to be the only direct lineal descendant of Oliver Cromwell alive today.

They will form the basis of an historical exhibit to be placed on public view by the association. picked up by a sentry, who was afraid to sell it.

In 1787 Cromwell's head was sold for £100 (then about $700) to James Cox, a London jeweller and pawnbroker, by Sam Russell, a comedian who said his wife was the sentry's granddaughter. In 1799 it passed into the hands of three men who exhibited it for a fee.

C.T.A. No Longer In Effect on Manitoulin Is.

Ottawa, June 25—(CP)—Starting today, the Canadian Temperance Act will no longer be in effect on Manitoulin Island and liquor may be sold in the Lake Huron district.

Voters last May 16 turned in a 2-1 decision to scrap the old Federal act, in effect on the world's largest fresh-water island since 1914. Under the C. T. A. liquor could be drunk but not sold on the island.

The Canada Gazette, which publishes today, will carry the announcement of an order-in-council revoking the C. T. A. an Manitoulin. Thus today becomes the effective date for the change-over from the Federal Act to the Ontario Liquor Licence Act and the Liquor Control Act of Ontario, which provide for the sale of beer, wine and liquor in government stores.

The order-in-council gave the results of the vote as 2,473 for revocation and 1,285 against.

The new liquor regulations on the island require a 60-per-cent local vote in the community concerned before licences are issued for sale in hotels and other public places.

Egyptian Ship Intercepted by Nationalists

Shanghai, June 25 — (AP) — An Egyptian ship, Star of Suez, was intercepted Friday by a Nationalist warship off the mouth of the Yangtze.

A message from the ship said the warship fired eight shots across her bow. A boarding party then removed the pilot and allowed the Star of Suez to proceed toward Kobe, Japan.

The action is part of a blockade which the Nationalists have proclaimed for all Chinese communist ports. The Star of Suez had left Shanghai a short time before.

The message said the Shanghai pilot boat, stationed at the mouth of the Yangtze, "appeared to be under the arrest of the warship."

Air raids by Nationalist warplanes already have caused many foreign ships to cancel calls at Shanghai.

The Star of Suez is under charter to the Isbrandsen Company of New York. She had just completed discharging 2,000 tons of general cargo here and was one of the first ships to leave Shanghai after Nationalist planes bombed the disabled British Blue Funnel freighter Anchises June 21. The Nationalist government has proclaimed a blockade of communist ports effective Sunday.

Forcible detaining and boarding of the Star of Suez, plus the Anchises bombings and the blockade warning, threatens to bring shipping to a halt in Shanghai. Insurance rates are bound to soar.

Civilian Groups Being Trained For Defence

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Falfield, Gloucestershire, England, June 25 — (AP) — Ten years after Britain's civilian anti-blitz force began to hit its stride on the eve of the Second World War, new civilian groups are being trained for defence action if an atom war comes.

In a five - acre model of a devastated "Hiroshima," the first class of 60 is learning how to deal with radioactive "hot spots," dreaded aftermath of atom bombing.

The classes last 3½ weeks and graduates will return to their home districts to instruct others.

"The work of this school must be regarded not as a panic measure, or a forecast of early trouble, but simply as an integral part of those national defence measures which most of us accept as normal routine," said Major K.G. Younger, Home Office Undersecretary.

It i

To impart a realistic air to the school, the model of a blitzed town was built. Nicknamed Hiroshima, it took four months to build.

"Live" demonstrations with sound effects ore part of the curriculum. Cries of "Casualties" are heard above the noise of airplane engines and the scream of bombs. Wardens promptly isolate the area, monitoring instruments are brought into play to detect the radioactive "hot spots," every individual in the area is tested with the sensitive Geiger counter which shows whether they have been affected by the dangerous gamma rays.

Key - note of the instruction is confidence. The students are told the atom bomb is not so bad if you know what to do when it strikes. Experts say underground shelters that protected civilians in the blitz will give excellent protection from atomic rays.

Labor Council Asks Support For 11-Point Program

A rather grim view was taken by the delegates to the Belleville and District Allied Labor Council at their monthly meeting Thursday night as to the future of organized labor in Ontario if the Labor Relations Act 1948 is to continue on the statute books of Ontario without amendment.

The delegates authorized President Tom Rees to send the following telegram to Premier Frost:

"Belleville and District Allied Labor Council went on record last night in full support of eleven-point program of amendments presented to the Ontario Cabinet by the Ontario Provincial Federation of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and ignored by 1949 session of legislature. In the interests of good relationship we urge you to implement these eleven points as soon as possible."

The main features of the eleven points included elimination of company unions from the rights of certification; a simple majority to be needed to decide certification; revocation of certification to be eliminated, and power to be given back to the Labor Relations Board from the Minister of Labor where it now rests.

On the matter of labor representation on the Court of Referees of the Unemployment Insurance Commission a letter was read by the secretary which had been sent to the Commission asking for proper representation. H. S. Relph chief claims officer at Ottawa answered that the request had been referred to the commission, but up to date no action has been taken. The names of President Thos. Rees, vice-president George Elliott and Ed Schlievert were mentioned as acceptable nominees by the Labor Council. The meetings of July and August were cancelled by unanimous decision.

IT'S YOUR DUTY TO VOTE!

The year was 1835 . . .

: : . over 32 miles of primitive roads and tangled woodland trails walked six Canadian pioneers . . . arguing fiercely as they went. Their purpose: to kill each other's vote!

Yes, these six early settlers knew they were evenly divided in opinion : : : that three would vote for one candidate Dr. William Dunlop, The Canada Company's man : : : and three would vote for the other candidate, Col. Anthony Van Egmond. Yet they made the gruelling march to Goderich, Ontario, there to cast their ballots in the 1835 election of The Upper Canada Legislative Assembly. Not one of the six said "There's no use my going—my vote will be killed."

When YOU cast your secret ballot at every election—municipal, provincial, federal—you exercise a duty and privilege planned, worked and fought for by your forefathers. Your vote protects the future of your children. To fail in this duty is to be less than a good citizen.

Reinstated Lou Klein Helps Spark Rise of St. Louis Cards To Top of National League

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The St. Louis Cardinals, by the grace of Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler, today occupy first place in the National League.

The high - flying Redbirds, sparked by the addition of recently - reinstated Lou Klein, defeated the Boston Braves 3-4, Friday night to wrest first place from Brooklyn Dodgers.

The victory, coupled with Pittsburgh's 4-2 triumph over Brooklyn, enabled the Cardinals to take a half - game lead over the Dodgers. The Brooks had held the lead for 18 days.

Two home runs by Klein, who along with other Mexican League jumpers, had his suspension lifted by Chandler early this month, played a prominent role in the Cardinal victory.

Lou smashed his first in the second inning to put his team ahead 3-1. After Boston had taken a 4-3 advantage, Klein came through with his second round - tripper to tie the score 4-4, and pave the way for the defeat of Braves' rookie Johnny Antonelli.

Since Klein has taken over for the ailing Marty Marion at shortstop, the Cards have won seven and lost two.

Kiner Hits Homer

Ralph Kiner's first - inning home run with two mates aboard — his 16th of the season — was enough to give the Pirates their victory over Brooklyn. Kiner's out-of-sight blow and his eighth-inning single were the only hits made by Pittsburgh.

Rex Barney, who failed to survive the first inning, gave up two walks before serving the "gopher" pitch to Kiner. Barney walked the next two men and uncorked a wild pitch before he was replaced by Jack Banta. Another wild pitch gave Pittsburgh its fourth run.

The powerful Boston Red Sox slugged St. Louis hurlers Joe Ostrowski, Al Papai and Ray Short for 25 hits to bury the Browns under a 21-2 score. Ted Williams led the merciless attack with his 18th and 19th homers, scored 4 runs and drove in seven to boost his 62-game total to 77.

Billy Goodman collected five hits and Dom DiMaggio four. Everybody in the line-up hit safely, and everyone with the exception of catcher Birdie Tebbetts scored at least once. Ellis Kinder had no trouble at all registering his seventh victory with a five-hitter.

The New York Yankees increased their American League lead over the runner-up Philadelphia Athletics to 5½ games, defeating Detroit Tigers, 5-4, while the A's bowed to Chicago White Sox 2-2.

Clutch hitting by Yogi Berra and Tommy Henrich and fine relief pitching by southpaw Joe Page won for the Yankees. Berra drove in his team's first four runs with a double and home run. Henrich's seventh - inning single drove in Charley Keller from second with the tie-breaking run.

Page relieved Allie Reynolds in the seventh after Vic Wertz' two - run single tied the score at 414, and held the Tigers scoreless the rest of the way. Stubby Overmire, third of four Detroit pitchers, was the loser.

Bested in Hurling Duel

Randy Gumpert bested Carl Scheib in a hurling duel to gain his second victory over the A's. Chicago's two tallies were made in the seventh on a double by Charley Kress, a single by Cass Michaels, a walk, error and infield out. It was Gumpert's sixth win and Scheib's sixth loss.

Bob Feller won his third straight and his fourth of the season pitching Cleveland Indians to an 8-2 victory over Washington Senators. He has lost six.

Hank Sauer's eighth four-bagger — his fourth since he joined Chicago — helped the Cubs defeat New York Giants 6-2.

The scheduled night game between Philadelphia Phils and the Reds in Cincinnati was postponed by rain.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It will be a grudge battle from start to finish when Tug Carlson and Fred Atkins hook up in their return bout on the mat at the Memorial Arena tonight.

It's a case of revenge for Carlson, the popular, blonde Swedish wrestler who claims Atkins was awarded last week's verdict by the referee while Carlson's foot was entangled in the ropes. Tug also feels that the burly Atkins was permitted to get away with too much rough stuff even for a rugged match.

* * *

"Get me back in the ring with that bully and I won't need any referee to look out for my interests this time," declared the angry Carlson. "I've got a few methods of taking care of roughnecks of his type. I've met them before and been able to give them the lesson they need."

There's a good chance he may have in mind his pile-driver drop kick, probably the most crushing in the game.

Al Lovelock, the Canadian former football star from Windsor, will be in the semi-final against none other than massive Sky-Hi Lee. Ben Sharpe, just back from a successful U.S. campaign, will charge at Frank "Tarzan" Hewitt of New York, in the opener. Hewitt is said to be a rampaging type of ringster.

"We are in receipt of a letter from Art Black, well known Trenton sportsman and he has a few comments on the baseball mixup in this town. Incidentally Art was the biggest individual sponsor of the Trenton baseball club when it started last year. Dealing with the team's poor showing in the league he says, "I suggest for the betterment of all concerned that the Trenton entry default the balance of their games, contact sufficient exhibition games for the purpose of experience, thus allowing the remaining six clubs more time for long play-offs." Speaking further regarding the refusal of the Trenton club to grant waivers to three players wishing to play senior baseball with Batawa and three other players wishing to play for No. 6 Repair Depot, at which place they earn their living, Art went on to say, "The holding back of any player or players from actual participation in any field of sport is rather poor sportsmanship and the only possible achievement from such an act might be some small self satisfaction." It is our humble opinion that little good is done by trying to force players to play against their will because one can't look for any dissatisfied player to give his best. We believe that Trenton should have an entry in baseball but only one with a proper organization and strong executive will bring any glory to the town. We have been talking to several interested parties and there is a good chance that Trenton will have a strong entry next year which might even invade senior ranks."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, June 25 — (AP) — There's not much left of the California crew that won the Olympic rowing championship last summer, but it should be the favorite in today's Poughkeepsie Regatta if Coxswain Ralph Purchase doesn't lose his pants and Ky Ebright doesn't have to ride a bicycle . . . Purchase lost his "lucky" army khaki shorts just before the Olympic final and, fearful of disturbing the oarsmen, he whacked off a pair of trousers to wear as shorts without saying anything about it. And Ebright's saddest stories about rowing on the Thames concern the necessity of riding a bike along the bank while coaching instead of riding in a launch . . .

In the Swim

Ed Diddle, the excitable towel - tosser who coaches the Western Kentucky basketball team, probably would deny this but some guys who were there say it is true . . . Diddle was conducting a coaching clinic and using his freshmen to demonstrate plays . . . One big kid was going through the motions on the pivot but kept getting his hands and feet tangled . . . Finally Uncle Ed took over . . . "You gotta be able to handle the ball with both hands on the pivot, son," he explained kindly. "You're a college player now; you gotta be amphibious."

What's the Motor?

Best description we've seen lately is Al (Wilmington Journal) Cartwright's line about Rocky Graziano's hair looking as if it had been combed by the blade of an outboard motor.

Toronto Leafs Split Twin Bill With Syracuse

(By The Associated Press)

The 28-year-old first baseman banging away at a .307 gait, belted a grand-slam homer Friday night to help the league-leading Bisons down Newark Bears 8-2.

It was Byam's seventh homer of the season.

Rochester's Red Wings knocked Jersey City Giants into a virtual third-place tie with Toronto Maple Leafs, beating the Giants 6-2. The Leafs divided a double-header with Syracuse Chiefs, winning the opener 6-2, and dropping the nightcap 6-3.

Erv Dusak, converted infielder-outfielder, held the Giants to four hits to post his fourth triumph.

The big blow for Rochester was Don Richmond's three-run homer off Red Hardy.

Nick Strincevich and Jocko Thompson stopped the chiefs on nine hits in the opener at Toronto while the Leafs collected 11 off Ken Burkhart and Mike Schultz.

Hank Perkowski, towering Syracuse lefthander, halted the Leafs on seven hits in the nightcap. Al Rubeling salted it away for Perkowski with a three-run, seventh-inning home run. Ed Sanicki of Toronto slammed his 19th homer of the season in the bottom of the seventh with bases empty.

The scheduled game between Baltimore Orioles and Montreal Royals was postponed because of rain

Scout and Guide Activities

All Cubs and Scouts and their parents are urgently requested to fill in and return immediately all forms concerning summer camp. This information is required at once so the leaders can complete the camp arrangements.

At a regular monthly meeting of the Belleville Scout Leaders Club plans were made for a leader training program in the fall. The leaders of the various groups in Belleville will take turns putting on the instructional and recreational program. Various points of Pack and Troop operation were discussed. The next meeting is to be a visit to the Cub Camp during the last week of July.

Akela Pat. Nicholls invested Larry Quist into the 1st Belleville (St. Thomas) Pack. 1st Trenton Troop were hosts to the 2nd Belleville Troop for a game of softball. Pitcher Claude Carr led 2nd Belleville to a 22 to 9 victory.

2nd Belleville Pack

The Pack held their last regular meeting for the summer with the following as prize winners, the Brown Six under the leadership of Sixer Graham Beeley won the Six Competition, Douglas Aselstine completed the most cubbing by passing his First and Second Star tests. Richard Rowbotham won the individual competition, and Glen Stewart had the best attendance. After the short meeting the Pack challenged the 8th Belleville Pack to a game of ball at Queen Mary School, The 8th Pack were winners by a 10 to 8 score.

4th Belleville Pack

Akela Lois Kellaway invested Eric Dies and Douglas Collins into the Pack. The new cubs were presented with their Tenderpad Badges by their fathers. Don Buck, Richard Moore and Gary Hall of the 4th Troop were qualifide for their Cub Instructors Badges. On Saturday the Pack hiked to Jones' Woods where they played games and picked wild berries. On their return they stopped at Baloo's house for ice cream after the rather warm hike.

The last meeting for the summer was held at Zwick's Island where the members of the 4th Belleville Group Committee held a weiner roast for the Cubs. The evening was spent in singing songs and playing games.

THE QUESTION BOX

Anyone wishing a question concerning Scouting answered kindly send it along with their name and address to R. K. Smith, 31 Hillside St., or give it to anyone connected with Scouting.

Q. What is Scouting?

A. Scouting is a world-wide organization with the purpose of training boys. It is a character-forming recreational education carried on where possible in the out-of-doors. It endeavors to meet the boys' craving for romance and adventure as well as giving an outlet for superfluous energy and directing the gang instinct of boys in the proper channels of public service. It gives the boy opportunities to practse courtesy, cleanliness and loyalty. He also has many opportunities to discover his life's vocation with the many tests and proficiency badges that can be passed.

Q. What is a Court of Honor?

A. A Court of Honor is an executive council for the direction of the troop activities. It is composed of the Troop Leader, Patrol Leaders and their Seconds with the Scoutmaster and Assistant Scoutmasters as ex-officio members. All decisions are by ballot and the Scoutmaster vetoes these decisions only in extreme cases. The Court of Honor is a very necessary feature of the Patrol System as laid down by Lord Baden-Powell.

Q. Why do Scouts shake hands with their left hands?

Washington Spotlight:

Senate to Use Room During Renovation, Repair of Chamber

By GEORGE RONALD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, June 25 (CP) — History will echo soon in cramped quarters where the United States really started to grow up — 126 years ago.

In a tiny, old - fashioned room in 1823, some 35 Senators heard the solemn pronouncement that aggression in any part of the Western Hemisphere would be considered a threat to the peace and safety of the youthful republic.

That room will be temporary headquarters for the Senate during renovation and repair of its regular chamber. The House of Representatives will hold forth in a committee room for the duration of a similar pob on its chamber.

The declaration of 1823 was the Monroe Doctrine, a cornerstone of United States foreign policy for more than a century.

Next month, in the same room, a bigger senate will debate a bigger issue — the North Atlantic Treaty.

It probably will be approved by a sweeping majority. And, in ratifying this latest expression of mutual interest among countries, the Senate will underscore the tremendous extension of United States influence and importance during the interval.

The Atlantic pact links the United States to Canada and 10 European countries in an alliance undreamed of in 1823.

The hot, low - domed Chamber in which the historic debate will take place is the old Supreme Court room in the centre of the capitol. It was the Senate Chamber from 1810 to 1859 and the Supreme Court headquarters from 1859 to 1935. Since then it has been a sort of "museum piece" whose chief visitors were tourists.

The repair job, estimated to cost $4,500,000, will be in two stages — from July to December, 1949, and from July to December, 1956. In the first stage, new steel roofts will be installed and interior alterations completed above the gallery - floor level. Next year, all work will be finished below that level.

FORWARD Together...
..to a brighter future for all Canadians!
KEEP GOING FORWARD WITH LIBERALISM

ONLY BY PULLING TOGETHER can the people of Canada achieve the full, rich rewards that Providence meant to be ours when she gave us this vast, bountiful land.

Only by electing a Government representative of all provinces . . . and of all classes . . . can Canadians hope for peace, progress and security.

The Liberal party is the only one that can give Canada the powerful strength of unity. It led Canada to world-honoured achievements in wartime . . . through unity. It has led Canada through four years of postwar prosperity . . . through unity.

The C.C.F. calls itself a "Canadian" party, yet in the last election it failed to elect a single member from Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island or Alberta. Even its own leaders admit that the C.C.F. cannot hope to win this election.

Mr. Drew, in his desperate lust for personal power, has betrayed loyal Conservative supporters in Ontario and other provinces by accepting the support of extreme Quebec sectionalists. His so-called "P-C" candidates in Quebec include men who fly a flag that bears no Union Jack . . . men who tried to keep Canada from Britain's side during the war . . . men who have sworn to withdraw Canada from the Atlantic Security Pact . . . and even from the British Commonwealth of Nations!

A Drew government tied to such fanatic sectionalism would rip Canada asunder over foreign policy, national defence, inter-provincial relations and other vital issues.

Today, Canada stands at the gateway to a shining future. United and strong, Canadians can go forward to a higher standard of living than ever before. Torn by civil disunity, we could miss our own golden opportunity and literally "starve in the midst of plenty".

Vote LIBERAL to keep Canada united and strong. Vote LIBERAL to be sure of continued peace, progress and prosperity.

Hollywood, June 25 — (AP) — Joan Leslie, a girl who knew what she wanted, had it this week.

She began work in R.K.O.'s "Bed of Roses," her first major studio job in three years. Thus ended a fight for freedom which took her almost to the United States Supreme Court.

This story begins about 10 years ago. Born Joan Brodell in Detroit, the little girl showed acting ability at an early age. She looked mature beyond her years and at 15 she was starring with Gary Cooper in "Sgt. York," at 16 with Jimmy Cagney in "Yankee Doodle Dandy." The roles won academy awards for both actors.

Utility Gal

Joan became the utility gal at Warners. She worked hard and often. But as she approached 21, she became dissatisfied. She felt she was being typed as a scatter-brained bobbysoxer. She claimed the studio reduced her from star to featured billing in "Two Guys From Milwaukee."

When she came of age, Joan issued a declaration of independence. She claimed as an adult she could end any contract made for her as a minor.

She won her case in two lower courts, but was reversed in the State Supreme Court. She took it to the United States Supreme Court, which decided not to review the case. Finally, Warners decided to release her.

"I learned a lot in those three years," she says, "about patience, understanding — and law.

"It hasn't been easy. Warners sent letters to all studios saying they could not hire me, and those letters still have an effect, although the case is over."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

We set a slower pace for Lou, who runs a race with fate. He knows exactly what to do. But thinks of it too late.

The deal came out like this:

NORTH
♠A K Q 6 5 4
♥None
♦A Q 3 2
♣Q J 10

WEST
♠J 9 8 3 2
♥K J 8 5 3
♣K

EAST
♦K 4
♣9 8 6 5 2

SOUTH
♠None
♥A Q 10 4
♦J 8 7 6 5
♣A 7 4 3

South became the declarer at a correctly bid small slam of six diamonds. No lead from west can help defeat this bid if declarer does his duty. But he must handle the cards judiciously.

Realizing such would be the situation, west decided to pull a desperate lead. Unfortunate as it is, he started out with the lead of his singleton king of clubs.

Most often this is a foolish lead. If not led, declarer does not know it is a singleton. More than likely the declarer will take a finesse in that suit and the king will win a trick.

As it was, south was able to grab the king with his ace and the rest looked too easy. After trumps are gone, the south hearts that are not ruffed can be sluffed on to dummy spades.

With such a cinch staring him in the face, declarer got careless. He decided he may as well try for all 13 tricks. So, he led a small trump and played dummy diamond queen for a finesse.

East bounced on this with the diamond king and shot back a club. This club return was ruffed by west and there went the old ball game. As you can see, it was an unnecessary loss.

Of course, every good bridge player tries to make the most out of every hand. But everything is relative. He weighs the amount of possible loss against the possible gain and acts accordingly.

The play was to take the first trump trick with dummy ace and come back a small trump. Even if west had the king. To make one extra trick is not worth jeopardizing a cinch slam.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a Saturday walk with pop and asking him more questions than he had time to answer, and I said Hay pop, our teacher was telling us about money not being important.

That's a useful thing to always remember, especially on the many occasions you'll probably be short of money, pop said, and I said, Our teecher claimed the only important part about money is the bewtiful things you can buy with it.

By gollies yes, sometimes money can even buy health, if it doesn't go to your head and tempt you to go to an expensive sur-valves ground when all you really needed was a cupple of choclit coated asperin pills, pop said. And health is the most bewtiful thing of all, because without health you're libel to think that nuthing looks bewtiful except money itself, and that's what we agreed was wrong in the ferst place, he said, and I said, Sure, pop, G, that's what our teecher claimed makes misers, just admiring money.

Never let me catch you being a miser, pop said, and I said, Don't worry pop said, and I said Jimminies, pop, all I'll ever admire about money is the bewtiful things I can get with it. For instance I wouldn't want a dime just to admire how round and shiny it was. I'd hurry up and buy an ice creem cone with it, and they're pritty bewtiful while they last. Give me a dime and I

Here's a dime and here's a drug

PRIME MINISTER IS WELCOMED IN NEWFOUNDLAND

St. John's, Nfld., June 25 (CP)—Premier Joey Smallwood said the like of it was never known before in Newfoundland — barring the visit of the King and Queen. Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent himself called it an "ostentatious greeting."

Whether or not the Premier of Canada's 10th Province was entirely accurate, Newfoundland combined the celebration of the 452nd anniversary of its discovery by John Cabot and its first reception of a Canadian Prime Minister in one big splurge Friday.

In a big park near the Colonial building Friday night, between 12,000 and 15,000 people—possibly the biggest crowd of his entire campaign—stood in the raw, chill night and heard Mr. St. Laurent champion the Liberal past and policies.

During the day, he and Mr. Smallwood and State Secretary Bradley rode in one of between 150 and 200 cars which drove some 150 miles along the coast of Conception Bay.

At about 15 communities along the route between here and Carbonear they stopped to allow the Prime Minister to speak of Liberal aims to spread the Canadian bounty as widely as possible and of the joy of other Canadians that Newfoundlanders "have decided to throw in their lot with us."

Fired Shotguns

In all ,thousands in outport settlements such as Spaniard's Bay, Brigus and Bay reports saw the two-mile long motorcade procession come and go. They fired off shotguns and waved flags. Some came into St. John's for the big night meeting.

Mr. Smallwood, giving his own report of the day along the bay. predicted "the result of the Prime Minister's visit is going to be a clean sweep of the seven Newfoundland seats... How I pity the poor old scraggly Tories.

Mr. St. Laurent contended that Canada had made greater advances in social security in the last five years than ever before. He said his government aims at a system of contributory old age pensions and contributory health insurance, decent housing for all Canadians.

When the meeting was over, he went back to his hotel and some hundreds of the people followed him. They stood around the entrance until he came out on a balcony turned a flashlight on his face as he waved goodbye down to them.

He flies back to Montreal and Quebec City today to wind up his campaign.

In Manhattan:

New Minsky Deal For New Yorkers

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, June 25 — (AP)—Harold Minsky, the well-known impresario of the strip-tease, is back in Manhattan with another shapely-girl show. But Minsky, whose anatomy-revealing shows were banned from Broadway during the regime of the late Mayor Fiorello La Guardia has changed Key. In his new entertainment at the Carnival Club the girls are almost all fully clothed. The only suggestion of a strip-tease is done in a strictly humorous manner.

His lovelies are lavishly costumed, and that's one reason for the new technique.

Says Minsky: "We don't want our girls taking off their costumes, because in stripping they would have to drop the dresses to the floor, and that would not be good for such expensive costumes."

In and Out

New York shortly is to see its first Spanish musical revue. Impresario Sol Hurok is bringing the production, "Cabalgata," to the Broadway theatre after a run of eight weeks in California. "Cabalgata" is described as a cavalcade of songs, dances and vignettes of Spanish folk customs . . . "Along Fifth Avenue," an elaborate and colorful revue, ended its run of 180 performances a week ago . . . "Anne of the Thousand Days" — closes this weekend and "High Button Shoes" one week later. That will leave only 15 plays running on Broadway.

New Concert Series

On a high hilltop in upper Manhattan New Yorkers gathered beneath the stars this week for the resumption of the annual concert series at Lewisohn Stadium.

The 32nd yearly summer program got under way with Fritz Reiner conducting the Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra in Rachmaninoff's Second Piano Concerto. Other selections this week included selections from Wagner's "The Flying Dutchman" and "Salome" by Richard Strauss.

Car Used by Lord Alexander Being Placed in War Museum

By HAROLD MORRISON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, June 25— (CP) —Viscount Alexander's most prized automotive possessions, a three ton sandy-colored command car that carried him safely through four years of bitter campaigning, has come into its stately own.

It has been given a prominent berth in the Canadian War Museum, just a mile from Government House where its wartime driver, Quartermaster-Sergeant J.A. (Joe) Wells of Sheffield, Eng., still does the driving for the Field Marshal.

Joe at 48 is still ruddy from the African sun. He has driven more than 1,000,000 miles over England's weaving roads in other vehicles but, like the Govenor-General, he has a warm and loving regard for the desert buggy.

And no wonder. It swept over the sands of Africa from Cairo to Tunis with never a break-down, a bullet hole or a crash.

Especially built

Joe took charge of the balloon-tire car, with its canvas roof and tommy gun and rifle mountings, in 1943. It was built especially for Viscount Alexander in a Cairo army workshop in 1941, when he had returned from Burma to take command of the 8th army.

In its time, it's had four engines and countless overhaulings, but like a true charger it's never halted under orders to advance, even when driven 400 miles a day under a boiling African sun.

"Fond of it, his Excellency is," says Joe and his blue eyes sparkle. "You know that car has had all kinds of people in it. His Majesty was in it one time. So was General Eisenhower and Field Marshall Montgomery. And a lot of Polish Generals and Americans and Canadians."

On tour

With the end of the war in 1945, it was decided to take the car back to England. Joe drove it from southern Italy over continental Europe to Paris and Dieppe and then to London.

From there it went on a triumphant tour of the United States and Canada and once became a spectacle for the curious hundreds that flocked to the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto.

Then it was given a scrubbing and a polishing at a motor company plant at Windsor before it was taken to the museum.

There Is No Use in Tryin? To Get Even With Van Ryan!

by B.U

Rodrigez Geoffery Van Ryan was a happy Spaniard with the heart of a pioneer. He was not the log cabin, prairie schooner type but none the less he was a pioneer. He was the indomitable soul who introduced novelty gadgets to the practical jokers.

Rodrigez started out in a small way distributing itching powder at political rallies, and trick decks of cards at international bridge tournaments. He progressed from this lowly station to one involving promotion of the looking glass that produces a black eye on the unsuspecting user. He was also placed in charge of kaleidoscope production. When the "Van Ryan" kaleidoscope made its appearance Rodrigez was acclaimed throughout the novelty-making world as a genius. His scopes had a permanent background that defied alteration and promoted acute frustration and nervous breakdown among those who tried to use them.

Success began to seek out Rodrigez when he developed his hinged fork. This little item was a perfect complement to the Van Ryan monster dribble glass that was guaranteed to soak the discriminating. The fork had a beautifully concealed hinge just behind the tines that permitted the fork to pick up cole slaw, but gave way on meat and potatoes, depositing the load on shirt fronts, or whatever fronts happened to be handiest.

The "Van Ryan Novelty Company" branched out and began to manufacture rubber crutches for semi invalids, and leaky life belts for non swimmers. This last item was truly a gem. It remained inflated indefinitely on land and in shallow water, but was designed to deflate rapidly in water more than ten feet deep.

Another first for Rodrigez was the weighted billiard ball that defied all attempts to put it in a pocket. It was so constructed that it broke into pieces if it accidentally approached another ball, and had a proimity fuse that completely demolished the ball, the table, and the players if it was touched by another ball.

Rodrigez finally tired of this loveable nonsense and went into the business of manufacturing insignia. His latest creation is a membership button in the hitch hikers association. It depicts crossed fingers flanking a bent thumb—the whole surmounted on a field of old shoe and topped by a drop of perspiration.

One for the road.

Good Fishing at Dark of the Moon

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables

During the summer months, a great many of the anglers of our nation pass up some of the finest fishing of the entire year, purely because of an old belief. When the warm days of summer arrive, fishing is supposed to be good only in the early morning and late evening. This rule may be all right in theory but actually it has some exceptions.

For a good many years, I made it a point to run down the vital statistics surrounding the record catches that came to my attention. Sometimes this was easy to do; more often it took considerable digging and a great deal of correspondence.

Checks on Record Catches

By record catches, I mean the taking of single record fish as well as the taking of unusual numbers of fish. Investigations included salt water as well as fresh water. I wanted to see if I could find out what conditions were best for the taking of record catches.

In the course of these inquires, I found out about such things as the world's record musky; the champion Ontario squaretail for three consecutive years; a catch of almost three hundred trout from a Maine lake in July; seventeen musky in the space of three hours; six small mouth that averaged nearly four pounds; the unusual phenomenon of seeing the entire tuna fleet out of Beach Haven, N. J., being fast to tuna at the same time — these and many more unusual happenings underwent close scrutiny.

In all, I supose I ran down the data surrounding over two hundred catches. The tabulation of my findings is interesting.

Several Common Factors

In slightly more than ninety-five per cent — I'll say that again — ninety-five per cent of these instances I learned that they had several things in common.

1 The weather was settled, with either a steady or a rising barometer.

2. The catches were made during the three-day period of new moon. In other words, during the dark of the moon, when there is no moon in the sky. That's the time the old Florada and Georgia market hunters called "south moon under."

3. The catches were made during the midday hours, right under a hot summer sun.

4. Last but not least, they were made during major Solunar Periods.

Most of us, when we go down to the sea in ships or down to the streams in waders, hope devoutly in our secret hearts that we will be blessed by Lady Luck in the taking of the fish of our dreams. Few men go fishing without this wish, expresed or otherwise. Obviously the ideal way to achieve this goal is to go when the going is good — when the big boys are on the feed.

Feed Infrequently

Large fish, as you no doubt know, feed but seldom. The men who know tell us that it takes about ten pounds of natural food to build a pound of game fish. Thus, small fish must feed actively in order to grow.

Conversely, it requires only about a pound of natural food to keep a pound of game fish well fed and happy during the course of a fishing season. In proportion, a large fish, who has his full growth, feeds only one-tenth as much as a small fish.

It follows that if you wish to catch large fish, you must fish for them when they are hungry. The rules, as indicated above, give you the probable times.

On Sunday, June 26th, comes the dark of the moon. Always providing that weather and water conditions are favorable, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, June 26th to 28th inclusive, should give you the top fishing of the month, possibly the season.

Instead of spending your midday hour in idleness or napping in the shade, look up the times of the major Solunar Periods in your newspaper. Then see to it that you are busy in good fishing water when those times arrive.

Here's hoping that you get that lunker you have been trying for all these years.

Marsh Hill P.S. Wins Softball Trophy For Area

In a hard-fought and high-scoring game the Marsh Hill Public School team defeated Harder's School by a score of 41 to 20 to become the first softball champions of Sidney Township School Area. This proved to be the final game of the home-and-home series between the two schools for the championship. If a third game had been necessary it would have been played in Frankford. These two schools and Belcrest had emerged as leaders in their respective groups in the regular schedule in which fifteen of the Sidney schools had taken part. For the play-offs Marsh Hill won a bye, so that Harder's and Belcrest played a sudden-death semi-final game. This was played at Belcrest and won by Harder's by a very close score, giving them the right to meet Marsh Hill.

Played at Marsh Hill

The first of the finals was played at Marsh Hill Monday night. This was a thrilling game with each side taking the lead and then losing it when the opposing side rallied. Final score was 18 to 14 in favor of Marsh Hill. The second game, and as it turned out the final game, was played on the Johnstown diamond on Wednesday night. Quite a number of spectators were on hand to cheer their team. Batteries for Harder's were Delmer Wannamaker and Allen Parks; for Marsh Hill, Carl Dafoe and Carman Dafoe. Umpires were Harry Brown and Herb. Rankin. The game was more exciting than the score would indicate. The fourth innings proved disastrous for Harder's, when the opposition scored 13 runs. They came back to score nine runs in the fifth. Shirley Meyers and Joyce Curtis were the only two girls taking part. Shirley played a fine game at first base for Harder's while Joyce patrolled right field for the same team. Evelyn Olmstead of Marsh Hill was unable to play on account of a sprained finger. Batting stars for Marsh Hill were Carman Dafoe with a home run, a double and four singles; Cameron Sine with five singles and a walk, and Carl Dafoe who had a double, triple and four singles. Harder's heavy hitters were Delmer Wannamaker with three doubles and a single; Earl Gregory with a double, triple and single; and Allen Parks with a home run and a single to his credit.

After the game the teams were lined up on the field and the softball trophy was presented to the ceptain of the Marsh Mill team by James Campbell, chairman of the board. He congratulated the Marsh Hill team on being the first to win the trophy, and congratulated the Harder's team on the sportsmanlike way they had played. The trophy will remain in their possession for the coming year and next spring will be up for competition again. It will become the permanent possession of any school which wins it three years, not necessarily in succession.

Attendance Banner

Eggleton's School (S. S. 24) won the attendance banner for the best attendance for the month of May. Miss Gunter's school had the fine mark of 98.55 per cent. Marsh Hill school, under Mrs. Good, came a close second with 98.31 per cent. Centenary school's 98.04 per cent won them third place.

School Closing

School closes on the 29th and the teachers and pupils are busy completing the year's work and straightening up for the holidays. Many of the pupils are preparing exhibits for the fairs which come too early in the fall to give them much opportunity to get anything ready then. Belleville Fair, coming as it does in August, makes it necessary for them to have it ready before school stops. It is expected that quite a large number of exhibits will be entered.

ELBOW ROOM FOR ANIMALS

Wood Buffalo Park, situated on the border between Alberta and the Northwest Territories, is the largest big game reserve on the North American continent, with an area of 17,300 square miles.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By TREVOR ICETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, June 25 — (CP) — We now have another (if you'll pardon the expression) world's heavyweight boxing champion in Ezzard Charles.

But there probably will be another claimant to the crown soon, Doug (Windsor Star) Vaughan forecasts.

"There is another fight coming up in the very near future in England between Bruce Woodcock, claimant of the British Empire heavyweight title, and the United States' Lee Savold," says Doug. "The winner of this dash of fisticuffing will also claim to be the world's heavyweight champion."

In the event of a championship bout between Charles and the winner of the Woodcock - Savold fight, Doug doesn't think the winning fighter will be anything to get excited about.

"All were around when Joe Louis was the real champion," says Doug. "and with the exception of Walcott, none was ever considered worthy of a shot at his crown."

"Inside Baseball"

Looking through a Philadelphia newspaper recently, Nelson (St. Thomas Times - Journal) Whitmore tells us he saw "an absurd story that Connie Mack, (Mr. Baseball) had quit signalling because he has such poor pitchers that they do not pitch what he tells them, and therefore he cannot properly direct the outfielders.

The sports writer who wrote the story quoted Mack as saying: "My pitchers lack the control to make the score card business practical. To place the fielders in a particular position. you have to know exactly what the pitcher is going to pitch — high, low, inside, outside, curve, fast fall. And that's somethin gwheave that's something we have not been able to do this year."

Whitmore claims that "catchtrs
ers do not signal for high, low, inside, outside and all that nonsense. They have three signals — the fast ball. the curve and the pitchout. There is more hokum to baseball than there is to politics."

Gorgeous Gussie Moran of Calif. Out of Tourney

(By The Canadian Press)

Gertrude (Gorgeous Gussie) Moran of Santa Monica, Calif., the darling of the Wimbledon Tennis championships, bowed out of the women's singles event Friday in the first week's greatest upset.

Her red-ribboned pigtails bobbing, the fourth-seeded Miss Moran went down to Gem Hoahing, a tiny Chinese ballet dancer from Hong Kong, 6-2, 5-7, 6-3, in the third round.

Gussie's elimination left some sad faces among the reporters and fans who have found her the greatest tennis personality since Suzanne Lenglen of France, 25 years ago. With her beauty and the lace-trimmed panties under her brief tennis skirt she brought a spice to Winbledon that had been lacking in the post-war years of dominance by other American women, who just came and conquered with routine perfection.

Mickey Owen, former Brooklyn Dodger whose five-year suspension was lifted by Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler a short time ago, rejoined the club tonight at Pittsburgh. Owen, who admitted he is 33 years old—not the 32 carried in the official record books—said he is "ready to play".

There was no indication how soon Owen might get into the lineup, the Dodgers are well fortified in the catching department with Roy Campanella and Bruce Edwards.

At St. Louis, pitcher Fred Martin Friday became the second league-jumper to rejoin St. Louis Cardinals. Owner Fred Saigh signed Martin for a reported $7,500, which is what he was making when he skipped to the Mexican League in 1946.

The first jumper to rejoin his mates here was Lou Klein, a utility infielder who already has played in several games.

At Ottawa, Wilf Tremblay, the speedy Ottawa Rough Riders halfback, Friday was named first winner of the Gil O. Julien Memorial Trophy, to be awarded annually to the outstanding French-Canadian athlete in Ontario and western Quebec.

The trophy is awarded by Le Droit, Ottawa's French language newspaper, to perpetuate the memory of the late Prof. Gilbert-Ovilia Julien, sports editor of Le Droit for 24 years.

Deadline for entries in the intermediate group of the Ontario Rugby Football Union is July 15, William A. Fry, group secretary-treasurer, announced last night at Toronto. New affiliations will not be accepted after that date.

Veteran Luke Appling will play daytime baseball only for the American League's Chicago White Six, manager Jack Onslow Friday disclosed the plan at Philadelphia to newspaper men travelling with the Chicago Cubs. Appling, Onslow said, will play no more night baseball.

The 40-year-old shortstop, in 20 years as a White Sox infielder, has appeared in 2,289 games.

Dutch Harbor Friday night scored a neck victory in the North Dakota one-mile trot, feature of the Grand Circuit program at the Roosevelt raceway in Westbury, N.Y. Driven hard by veteran Henry Thomas, Dutch Harbor gave up an early lead but came on again to defeat Scrantonian. Dutch Harbor was heavily backed, paying $3.90, $3.30, $3.10. The time was 2:06.

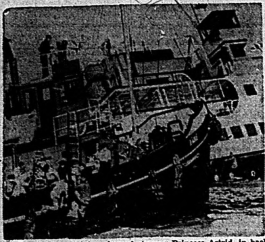
FIVE PERISH WHEN SHIP HITS MINE



The stricken Belgian channel steamer Princess Astrid, in background, keels over as survivors climb from the vessel and from lifeboats to one of the rescue ships alongside. The vessel carrying 218 passengers sank after hitting a mine planted during the war, three miles off Dunkirk, France. Quick rescue operations averted a serious disaster. All passengers were reported rescued by five crew members perished. (Central Press Canadian.)

Anglo-Argentine Trade Deal Arouses Senators' Criticism

Washington, June 27 — (AP)— Britain's trade agreement with Argentina touched off a chorus of bitter criticism among United States senators today.

Senator Kenneth Wherry (Rep. Neb.) accused Britain of "selfishly promoting" her own economic interests at the expense of other European countries and the United States.

"This pact defeats the very purpose of recovery and free exchange of goods in the world," Wherry told a reporter.

Senator Guy Cordon (Rep. Ore.) declared he still wants to question state department officials on the agreement and on commitments made by Britain in borrowing $3,750,000,000 from the United States.

Other senators said privately the Anglo - Argentina Pact is certain to create strong resentment among Senators who had hoped the European recovery program would promote freer world trade.

News of the signing of the trade pact came while the Senate appropriations committee was questioning Paul Hoffman, the economic co-operation administrator.

Hoffman said he still is violently opposed to this type of "bilateral agreement." But he added that Britain had no other means of obtaining meat except from Argentina.

Buenos Aires, June 27 (Reuters) — The Anglo - Argentine trade agreement, which has drawn protests from the United States, was signed here today.

The object of outspoken misgivings in the United States, the pact is expected to result in trade between the two dollar - starved countries worth at least £1,000,000,000 ($4,000,000,000) during the next five years.

Under the terms of the pact the Argentine will deliver to Britain in the first year "not less than" 300,000 tons of wheat.

In addition, Argentina will "use her best endeavors" to raise this figure to 400,000 tons annually.

97-YEAR-OLD MAN VOTES

POLICE INTENSIFY HUNT FOR KILLER OF TWO WOMEN

Chief Believes Man Has Three Other Names "On Death List"

Mission, B.C., June 27 — (CP) —The hunt for Ivar Johnson, who shot and killed two women in cold blood, was pressed with added intensity today.

The 70-year-old recluse has been sought since Thursday when he shot the two elderly women after taking objection to the construction of a road on his property. An armed posse hoped to capture the bachelor-farmer before he is able to add to the number of his victims on his "death list."

Phil Catherwood, superintendent of roads for Mission municipality, said he believes Johnson has three other people, including himself on the "death list."

Police said Johnson went berserk following a prolonged argument concerning construction of a new road which he contended infringed on his property.

The two women who fell victim to blasts alleged to have been fired by Johnson were Mrs. Marie Lindberg, 68-year-old widow, and Mrs. George Barrette, 66, mother of three children. A double funeral is planned for them Tuesday.

Catherwood said that, in addition to himself, he believes Johnson will attempt to take the lives of Police Chief Peter Bergen of Mission and neighbor Ivar Ericson

"He hates all three of us and thinks we tried to rob him of part of his land in putting in this new road. I think he will attempt to avenge his hatreds."

Johnson has spent 36 years as a farmer in the hilly and almost impenetrable Silver Hill area, but Catherwood does not believe that the United man has escaped the district. He described the elderly farmer as an uncanny woodsman who knew every foot of the rugged terrain in the Silver Hill area.

He said his guess was that Johnson would come out of hiding "just before dawn so that he can see where he's shooting."

10,000 LAMPREYS DESTROYED

5-WEEK STRIKE IN BERLIN WILL END ON TUESDAY

Workers Bow to Orders Of the Western Allies

Berlin, June 27 (AP)—The five-week railway strike which has blockaded almost as effectively as did the Russians is scheduled to end Tuesday morning.

The executive board of the anti-Communist Railway Union (U.G.O.) bowed to the orders of the western allies Sunday and ordered members back to work on the Soviet-controlled railways at that time.

The British, American and French commanders in Berlin had warned that if the strike were not called off by Tuesday, the west Berlin city government would quit relief payments to the strikers.

They said the strike could no longer be justified because it was seriously damaging Berlin economically, was blocking the Paris four-power agreements to revive east-west trade, and was laying a big burden on the western powers in maintaining the airlift.

Strikers won two of their three major demands.

All salaries will be paid in west marks. Since this currency has a purchasing power four to six times as great as the Soviet sponsored east mark, railway strikers have won one of the greatest wage boosts in industrial history.

The railway management will convert 60 per cent of each employee's east mark salary into west marks; the west Berlin city government will exchange the other 40 per cent.

The Russian-controlled railway management has given assurances there will be no retaliation against strikers.

The workers' third demand — recognition of the U.G.O. as official bargaining agent—was denied.

Nevertheless, success of the strike has been such that the U.G.O., which began it with 3,000 members, now has 14,000.

The end of the strike clears the way for initiation of four-power consultations by Deputy Military Governors this week on encouraging a return of east--west trade. This conference was agreed on by the foreign ministers at Paris.

Skymaster Plane Crashes in Nfld., No One Injured

Harmon Field, Nfld., June 27. (CP)—A United States military Skymaster plane crashed at this Newfoundland base last night but all 33 passengers and nine crew members escaped without serious injury.

The Skymaster had arrived from Westover Field, Mass., at 10.30 p.m. E.D.T., and went out of control on landing. Occupants escaped before it burst into flames and was destroyed on the runway. Three of the passengers suffered minor injuries but none required hospital treatment. The aircraft's home base was Pantuxent River, Md.

Cause of accident was unknown but will be investigated by an official board of inquiry.

Problem of Dividing Tips Among Employees Worries British Hotels

London, June 27—(CP)—British hotels and restaurants are having tipping trouble.

It's not that customers are too cagy. In fact, some proprietors say patrons tip not wisely, but too well. What worries them is how to share gratuities fairly among all employees.

A year ago, a government commission decided that basic wage rates among catering staffs should be fixed without reference to tips. Managements says this has just increased the difference between a person who doesn't get tips and one who does.

For instance, a doorman who once received a basic wage of 10 shillings ($2) a week and gratuities now receives £4 10 s ($18) plus tips.

The same applies to porters and waiters. On the other hand kitchen administrative staffs seldom share in extra money, some establishments use a pooling system, but most regard tips as a personal reward for services rendered.

A committee looked into the problem two years ago, and decided there was no solution. Now the British Hotels and Restaurants Association is asking for another review. This time they say they will submit a plan of their own, if necessary.

The question was in the news recently when a restaurant in Leeds was ordered to pay a total of £1,052 back wages to 11 waiters. The management was found 15 shillings a week instead of £4 guilty of paying the waiters only 10s.

Testimony showed the waiters averaged £10 a week in tips Some made £20.

The money the management was ordered to pay is the difference between the basic pay the waiters received and the amount they should have drawn under the Catering Wages Act.

Ideal Weather Conditions Favorable to Record Vote

Toronto, June 27 (CP)—Voters went to the polls in Eastern Canada today under almost ideal weather conditions in the Dominion 21st general election since Confederation. Although one Ontario Centre—Belleville—reporta "terrifically heavy" vote, in the Maritimes and Quebec generally the early vote appeared light.

No incidents were reported in the east as in Belleville the heaviest advanc poll in the history of Hastings south constituency was recorded.

The weather forecaster indicated that in the Maritimes during voting hours it would be fairly cool and cloudy, with only occasional rain. In Quebec and Ontario, except for the "hot and humid" Windsor area, it will be cloudy but generally fair.

Some Rain in West

In Manitoba the sky is overcast, with scattered thunderstorms and showers forecast. Saskatchewan and Alberta voters will enjoy a fairly clear, cool day to cast their ballots. In British Columbia it will be cloudy with occasional rain along the coast.

In Toronto returning officers reported line-ups in front of many of the polls. Officials said the fine weather and temperature in the 80s would contribute to turning out the highest vote in the city's history. There are 750,000 in the 15 Toronto and York ridings.

Early voting at Stratford was heavier than in previous elections, Roy Butson, returning officer for Perth riding, reported.

Mr. Butson said the early vote, added to a heavier-than-usual vote in the advance poll which ended Saturday, indicated that final returns would show a greater precentage of voters exercising their franchise in the riding than in the 1945 general election.

Light Voting in Kingston

J. S. MacDonell, returning officer for the riding of Kingston City, said 23,904 persons are eligible to cast their votes in the riding, but during the early part of the morning, polling booths had seen only a percentage of the total district electorate. However, it was expected that voting would become heavier as the day goes on.

Fifty-three votes were cast in advance poll for the federal riding of Kingston City, Mr. MacDonell announced today. The poll, which opened Thursday, and closed Saturday night was held for those persons whose occupation would take them away from their own ridings today.

Greatest Tourist Invasion Of Britain Now in Full Flood

London, June 27 — (Reuters)— The greatest tourist invasion Britain has ever known now is in full flood.

The appearance of parties from the Commonwealth, the United States and Europe in small towns and villages of the most-rural parts of the country is giving Britons a new "tourist complex."

The idea of Britain as a playground for visitors from overseas has been slow to germinate in the minds of provincial folk, in spite of official encouragement. This year seems likely to mark a big change. Hotel and restaurant proprietors, transport operations and manufacturers and publishers are working with new enthusiasm and sense of purpose.

By the close of the year the British government hopes that 560,000 overseas visitors will have spent more than £55,000,000 ($220,000,000) on British vacations. Statistics published by the Travel Association of Great Britain show that such figures would substantially exceed previous tourist records.

In 1947 a total of fewer than 400,000 overseas visitors spent about £31,000,000. Last year 504,000 visitors spent £47,000,000.

Britain, short of dollars, is particularly anxious to welcome United States visitors and at present about a third of the money spent on British vacations by overseas visitors is American. The harvest of dollars is bigger than from exports by any single British manufacturing industry.

The Travel Association—which last year sent 7,528,000 publications and 340,000 posters to all parts of the world to attract visitors — believes "it can truly be said that almost every British town has played host to overseas visitors.

Popular Vote Over 6,000,000 Is Expectation

Ottawa, June 25 (CP)—The popular vote in Monday's Federal election is expected to hit a new peak and could, given a heavy turnout, roll over the 6,000,000-mark.

Unofficial estimates, based on the percentage of eligible voters using their ballot in the last three general elections, indicate a popular vote of somewhere between 5,600,000 and 6,000,000. This covers a range of approximately 70 to 75 per cent of the nearly 8,000,000 Canadians who have a vote.

There is no exact total of the number of registered voters in this election, but official sources place it at "nearly" 8,000,000.

In the 1945 general election, 5,246,130—or 75.45 per cent—of the 6,952,445 voters cast their ballots. This is the record popular vote to date.

In 1940, 4,672,531 (70.90 per cent) of 6,588,888 registered voted and in 1935, 4,452,675 (75.06 per cent) of 5,918,207 registered voted.

Adrift 24 Hours Couple Are Being Towed Back

Beaverton, Ont., June 27 (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. John N. Lancaster of Toronto are being towed into harbor here today after spending nearly 24 hours adrift in a crippled motor boat on Lake Simcoe. Their boat was sighted by a provincial police chartered plane early today.

Police said the couple left their cottage at nearby Orillia Park Sunday on a fishing trip. When they failed to return, neighbors notified police and an intensive search of the surrounding water was begun. All available boats joined the search and beach fires were lit to guide them back to shore but no trace of the missing launch could be found.

Early today provincial police chartered a light seaplane and sighted the boat about five miles west of here. The Lancasters indicated that their engine was dead but the plane was unable to land on the choppy lake.

Returning to shore the police located the launch and made contact with the Lancaster launch off Thorah Island. As the lake became calmer the hungry couple were taken to the mainland and landed at Beaverton dock.

The disabled boat was left on Thorah Island. Police said the Lancasters were unhurt with the exception of slight sunburn.

CANADIANS WILL ELECT NEW HOUSE IN TODAY'S VOTE

8,000,000 Are Eligible To Register Franchise

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

This is election day.

In Canada's 21st federal vote since Confederation, Canadian voters go to the polls in their millions to elect 262 new members of parliament and, by their ballots, determine the political stripe of the new federal government.

The polls opened at 8 a.m. and close at 6 p.m., local standard time.

The number of registered voters is nearly 8,000,000 and the actual turnout may reach a record total of 6,000,000. In the 1945 general election, 5,246,130 of the 6,952,445 eligible voters used their franchise. That was a record figure.

Today's voters will make their selection of new Commons members from among 848 candidates, including 260 Liberals, 249 Progressive Conservatives, 180 C.C.F., 55 Union of Electors, 27 Social Credit, 19 Communist Labor-Progressives and 58 representing miscellaneous political groupings.

The Liberals have been in office since 1935, when they ousted a Conservative government headed by the late Viscount Bennett.

To obtain a clear working majority, the winning party must capture 132 or more—just over one-half — of the 262 seats in the new House of Commons.

There were 245 seats in the last House. For this election, the total has been raised by 17 by the addition of seven for the new province of Newfoundland and 10 for new constituencies created since the 1945 election.

Standing at Dissolution

At dissolution April 30 this year, this was the standing:

Liberals, 125; Progressive Conservatives, 69; C.C.F., 32; Social Credit 12; Independent, three, Bloc Populaire, two; Union of Electors, one, vacant, one.

The long campaign leading up to today's voting produced no over-all issue.

While the Liberals campaigned largely on the government's legislative and administrative record, the Progressive Conservatives hammered at trade, housing, taxation and agriculture and criticized the sale of the $22,000,000 Canadair Aircraft Plant at Montreal to a United States firm, the Electric Boat Company of Hartford, Conn.

C.C.F. speakers brought both of the older parties under fire and promised, if elected, to bring National industries, including the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, under public ownership.

AUTO WRECKED BY TRAIN

Oshawa, June 27 — (CP) — An Ottawa - bound passenger train smashed into a stalled automobile Sunday, seconds after the car's six occupants jumped clear.

John Hymson of Scarboro Junction, 27-year-old driver, stopped the car at a level crossing, two miles from here, to await the passage of two Ottawa - bound sections of the Canadian National Railways train. The auto was hit by the third section when it stalled as Hymson started it up again.

Hymson, his wife and two young daughters and two aunts escaped injury.

Church Accuses Czech Government Of Deceit, Fraud

Communicants Told Hour Of Trial May be at Hand

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

Prague, June 27 (AP)—Roman Catholic sources charged today Communists have seized virtually all church administrative offices in Czechoslovakia and arrested priests who resisted.

The informants said reports from various parts of the country showed repressive measures against the church are increasing. Some priests reported police charged them with "inciting unrest" after they had read from the pulpit Sunday the Catholic hierarchy's accusations of deceit, fraud, kidnapping and robbery against the Communist government.

The denunciation, in the form of a pastoral letter, was a virtual white book catalogue of alleged anti-church actions by the government, which is accused of aiming at the "extermination of the Church of Christ." The letter told Catholic communicants their "hour of trial" may be at hand.

Prague priests said they believed the pastoral letter, signed by Archbishop Joseph Beran of Prague, Archbishop Joseph Matocha of Olomouc and the country's other Catholic bishops, had received wide circulation despite police attempts to prevent the letter from being read in pulpits.

Warned Against Pastoral Letters

Priests have reported they were warned in night police visits against reading pastoral letters, the only means for the hierarchy to tell its side of the church-state fight since the Roman Catholic press was shut down by the government.

The pastoral letter supported reports of the seizure of the archbishop's administrative offices at Prague and his virtual captivity in his palace.

Churchmen said the government also took over nearly all administrative offices in the archdiocese and the diocese of the country and installed, instead, officials of the Communist-sponsored Catholic Action, an organization which the archbishop has denounced as a tool of the state. Those who joined willingly have been excommunicated.

Report Priests Arrested

The informants said some priests who objected to giving up the offices were arrested. They said they had confirmation of the arrests of two priests on the staff of Archbishop Matocha — Rev. Joseph Mostek, his secretary, and Rev. Bruno Sklenovsky, former secretary of Catholic Action, the original church-sponsored group.

From the occupied offices, the Communist-supported groups are said to be issuing their own orders and attacks on the hierarchy. In the Nitra diocese the Action Committee confronted Bishop Edvard Necsey with a demand that the church stop penalizing persons who joined the government's Separatist Catholic Action. This group accused the church of misusing its authority "for political purposes" and terrorizing those who disagree with the hierarchy.

LEVEL CROSSING CRASH KILLS TWO AT HAMILTON

Fourteen Weekend Fatalities Reported in Province of Ontario

(By The Canadian Press)

A level - crossing accident which claimed the lives of a 26-year-old mother and young daughter topped the list of 14 weekend fatalities reported in Ontario during the weekend.

Mrs. Marcel Germain, 26, and her daughter were killed when a train smashed into their auto which stalled on a level crossing in southeast Hamilton. Her 28-year-old husband and a daughter, Sandra, four, were injured.

In Toronto, Mrs. May Sewell, 82, died in hospital after being struck by an automobile while crossing the street, and 19-year-old Mrs. Lionel Smith plunged to her death over a bannister from the third floor of a rooming-house. At nearby Port Credit, William Dunbar, 41, was drowned at the mouth of the Credit River when he had an attack of cramps while swimming.

At LaSalle, near Windsor, the body of four-year-old Mavis Lynn was recovered from a slip of the Detroit River four hours after she was reported missing. Police are investigating circumstances leading to the death of Kathleen Pottinger, 30, who either fell or was pushed down a flight of stairs in her Windsor home. Police said they believed the mishap followed "a brawl."

Drag for Bodies

Dragging operations were under way at Sudbury, where Rheal Carriere, 17, was drowned while swimming in Chelmsford Creek and at Espanola, 40 miles west, where 11-year-old Richard Coutemanche was drowned when he tumbled into a log chute.

Douglas Shearer, 20, was drowned in Lake Ontario near Beamsville when he tried to swim to shore from a raft which had blown out on the lake. At Oshawa, 17-year-old Stewart Bice was drowned when he waded beyond his depth into water in a marsh.

Joseph Edward Heitzner, 54-year-old Mara township farmer, was found dead at Orillio, his head almost shot away. He apparently shot himself accidentally after he left his home to hunt foxes and skunks.

Orele Laframboise, 15, was killed when struck by a taxi five miles west of Mattawa in Northern Ontario. At Timmins, Stefan Brozozek, died four hours after his bicycle was in collision with a car.

SWIMMERS LOSE CLOTHES

Toronto, June 27 (CP) — Two unidentified couples went to swim at Toronto's Centre Island Sunday and came back to the mainland in a life-saving launch. They were unharmed, but minus their clothes. The quartet left their clothes on the beach and came back to find them stolen. Luckily an embarrassing trip through Toronto by street car was avoided when one of the men found some change in the pocket of his swim trunks.

Denmark Plans Great Development Of Greenland's Rich Resources

Copenhagen, June 27—(Reuters)—An army of scientists, technicians and workers—more than 6,000—is going to Greenland this year in the greatest development drive ever planned for Denmark's Arctic colony.

The lives of the 20,000-odd Eskimos who live in the world's largest island will be radically changed by some of the proposed expansion schemes.

To the Greenlanders, most remarkable of the early improvements will be the introduction of electric light and power in four of their biggest settlements.

Many Greenlanders will soon hear radio for the first time while also new to many natives will be electric irons, electric kitchens and many other electrical devices.

Eske Bruun, chairman of the Greenland board which administers the colony, said a large slaughterhouse and a tinning factory is to be built near Julianhaab.

Bruun said that great efforts were going to be made to increase the fishing industry in Greenland and to nationalize it.

Other scientific expeditions are also going to Greenland this year. most vital to dollar-short Denmark may be the expedition which is to investigate the lead deposits found on Greenland last year.

The lead finds, made in September of last year, were three-five and 10-yard-wide veins. These were followed for some six miles. It is believed that other veins exist in the vicinity of these finds.

Uranium was also found last year but not in "sensational" quantities. Traces of gold were discovered together with a vein of silver which, it was estimated, would produce 300 grams of silver a ton.

Safecrackers Busy Over Weekend, Two Business Places Entered, Small Amount Taken From One

Would-be safecrackers were busy in the city over the weekend with two business premises being entered and attempts made to crack office safes.

In both instances the safecrackers were unsuccessful in their efforts, but in one case they escaped with the cash contents of a drawer, the money not having been placed in the safe for the weekend.

Premises entered were the Weston Bread Company warehouse on Parker street, and the Neilson Company plant on Wellington street. The money was taken from the Neilson Company office drawer.

Inspector J. C. Hayes of the local police department stated the two break-ins occurred Saturday night and that he was satisfied the two attempts at safebreaking had been by the same party or parties.

Amateurish Says Inspector

"It was evident the would-be safecrackers were amateurish," stated the inspector. "In both instances they depended on tools found on the spot for their attempt in opening the safes."

It is believed that two patrol officers, P.C. Thompson and P.C. Moore interrupted the safecrackers at the Weston plant, the safecrackers making their escape through a back door before it was checked by the police.

About three o'clock Sunday morning the officers checked the front door of the plant and it is believed the rays of their flashlight shining through the windows scared off the intruders. One minute later officers found the back door unlocked.

Considerable damage had been done by the intruders who had knocked out a light partition to get at the back of the safe. A crowbar found in the warehouse was used to attack the back panel of the safe and the panel had been sprung before the intruders were scared away.

At the Neilson Company plant the mode of operation was quite similar with an axe found in the plant being used to knock the combination from the safe.

The manager of the Neilson plant lives above the warehouse but had gone out of the city for the weekend. The cash was taken from an office drawer.

Entrance to both premises was gained by breaking windows, it was stated.

Exceptionally Heavy Vote At Advance Poll

Indication of an exceptionally heavy vote in the city was evident early today, according to poll clerks who reported a large number of voters having cast their ballots immediately after nine o'clock.

The advance poll also indicated a heavy vote with Returning Officer M. C. Burgess today reporting that 209 voters had cast their ballots in the advance poll — the largest number to do so in the history of local elections.

The advance poll was open for three days, commencing Thursday afternoon and closing at ten o'clock Saturday evening.

Kinsmen Club's Boys' Band Wins Highest Praise

A large and appreciative audience had nothing but praise Sunday evening for the performance of members of the Kinsmen Boys' Band who under the direction of their bandmaster Alf Cooper, staged their first band concert since their inauguration some months ago.

The fence of the armouries lawn was lined with listeners throughout the concert program which got underway at eight-thirty, while motorists double parked, to hear the concert.

It was the first public appearance of the Kinsmen Boys' Band since the Kinsmen convention in May when they headed the parade of delegates.

Favorable comment on both the band's appearance and performance were heard on every hand as the boys played difficult band numbers like veterans.

Formed by the local service club for the purpose retaining the boys interest in music, the band is made up of musicians of high school age who have put in a great many hours of training and practice. They are a credit to their bandmaster Alf Cooper.

A silver collection was taken during the concert, the proceeds to be used to further the community swimming pool project in this city.

Youth on Bicycle Hurt in Collision With Motorcar

Struck by a motorcar as he rode his bicycle onto the highway near Tobe's County Gardens, Percy Luffman, 17, of Mountain View, R.R.I Ameliasburg, was seriously injured Sunday evening and was rushed to Belleville General Hospital.

Luffman suffered head injuries, a broken leg and other lacerations.

In company with three other young boys on bicycles Luffman was leaving Tobe's for the city and had just entered onto the highway when his bicycle was in collision with a southbound car driven by Bentley Hennessy, R. R. 7 Belleville.

Luffman was third in the line of four bicycles being ridden onto the highway and apparently had swung a trifle too far onto the road. He was taken to hospital by Bush's Ambulance where he was attended by Dr. Bateman and Dr. F. R. Ross.

Provincial Constable Tinkess from Belleville investigated the accident.

Pays Tribute To Character of Late W. M. Eaton

Sterling tribute to a former industrial worker now deceased, is contained in the current edition of the American Optical "News and Views". In a full page article written by the firm manager Mr. Gilbert Scott reference is made to the character of the late William Malcolm Eaton, 154½ Church Street.

"Whatever Mac did, he did in a straight-forward, honest and sincere manner. We all saw him as a representative of the employees when he was chairman of the Union; we saw him as part of the management when he was foreman of the night shift; and we saw him as an individual employee in our stores department. In all these positions Mac's integrity could be relied upon; in every case he gave his best."

"As long as this county continues to produce industrial workers of Mac Eaton's calibre there will be no need to worry about its industrial future."

Air Exercises 'Too Realistic' For Londoners

London, June 27. (AP)— The first phase of air exercises to test the defences of industrial Britain against an atom bomb blitz ended today with one major complaint. London residents said they were "too realistic".

Referees and high air officials of three countries were cagey about preliminary results of co-operation foil" in which British bombers and fighters, United States Superforts and Jet Fighters, and Netherlands Jet Fighters participated.

There were indications from other observers and from the sound of heavy bomber formations over the metropolitan area that the capital had been "heavily pounded" in two night attacks.

"Operation foil" will continue for another week as fighter and bomber squadrons, reinforced during the week-end by Reserve Air formations of British pilots, test plans for protecting Britain in war. An Air Ministry spokesman said conclusions from the exercises will probably not be made public.

Dies After Injury In Flash Fire

Brantford, June 27. (CP)— Bernard Anderson, 26, of Brantford, died early today, 50 hours after he was injured in a flash fire in a mixing room at the Canadian Durex Abrasives here early Saturday morning.

Doctors made a vain attempt to save the Canadian Army veteran's life. Many of his friends volunteered as blood donors to help in reducing severe shock as the result of the burns which covered 85 per cent of his body.

Mr. Anderson was formerly a coal miner at Sydney Mines, N.S., and came to the Durex plant two years ago.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 27 (CP) — Prices moved narrowly as traders spent more time discussing today's Dominion elections than in buying and selling of stocks. A few industrials slipped slightly from early firmness and junior gold producers tended lower. Base metals were about balanced.

Opening industrial prices were the best as some key stocks climbed fractions. Prices began to weaken in mid-session and fractional declines appeared in papers and a few utilities.

Junior gold producers opened on a softer trend as some profit-taking cut into recent gains. Lake Shore eased ¼ at 13¾ in seniors while Teck-Hughes was ahead five cents.

Consolidated Smelters and Noranda added ½ in a balanced base metals list while Quemont and International Nickel lost ⅛. A few issues churned slightly for penny changes.

Says Cathedral 'Just Like Piece Victorian Furniture'

London, June 27 (CP) — To Canon Lewis Collins, St. Paul's Cathedral is just "a piece of Victorian furniture".

Canon Collins is on the cathedral staff and he wants the old London landmark spruced up.

"People want warmth and color, and unless we are careful St. Paul's is going to look to them more like a museum than an edifice built to the glory of God."

He pointed to a group of memorial statuary.

"Can you imagine anything more preposterous? Most of them are sculptures commemorating some military achievement about which nobody either knows or cares these days."

Canon Collins wants to see modern statuary and reliefs along the aisles. He thinks there should be modern religious music in place of some of the less distinguished Victoria scores still in use.

Stained glass windows? "I think we are fortunate that some of the old ones were irretrievably lost during the war."

Little Girl Finds Companions Too

Toronto, June 27 — (CP) — With her two brothers off playing Sunday, it was a little lonely for three-year-old Patricia Denby. Pushing her doll's carriage, the little girl went out to find someone to play with, and was returned to her frantic family more than 11 hours later.

When her father discovered her absence about 11 a.m., he started a search and, as the hours dragged on, his wife, two sons and the police department were all looking for Patricia. Eleven hours, six gallons of gas and 42 cigaret butts later, police found her two miles away playing with three other little girls. When she was brought home and carried upstairs to bed her only comment was "close the door."

Hop From Europe To Australia In Midget Plane

Darwin, Australia, June 27 — (Reuters) — Two Swiss immigrants arrived Sunday in a plywood midget plane after an island - hopping flight from Europe that took them three months with 35 stops. Dr. Rudolph Brunnschweiler, a geologist, and Otto Hegetschweiler, a woodworker, flew the 925-pound plane, the smallest ever flown from Europe to Australia.

No Referendum Possible on Return Of King Leopold

Brussels, June 27. (AP)—Tabulation of about 70 per cent of 5,000,000 votes cast in Belgium's parliamentary elections made it clear today there would be no referendum on the possible return of exiled King Leopold.

The Social Christian party, only pro-Leopold group, led in the tabulation with 1,523,324 votes or 44.4 per cent of the 3,431,630 ballots counted—but was far short of the absolute majority it had campaigned for.

They had pledged a referendum if they received an absolute majority in the voting Sunday.

The election returns also indicated a smashing defeat for the Communists, who lost at least one-fourth of their 1946 supporters.

The Liberal party, which campaigned principally on a plank urging a 25-per-cent tax cut, was registering gains everywhere.

Socialist Premier Paul-Henri Spaak admitted the returns constituted "a small defeat for my government (a coalition of Socialists and Social Christians)".

The cabinet resigned today after a short post-election meeting. This is in accordance with custom, which calls for such an action following an election no matter what the result.

A referendum on the return of the King was opposed by the Socialists and Liberals. The Royal question dates back to 1940, when the King surrendered his army to the Germans and remained in the occupied country against the advice of his ministers, who fled to England and formed a government in exile.

His opponents claimed the King showed no sympathy for the underground forces resisting the Germans. After the liberation in 1944, the parliament elected Leopold's brother, Prince Charles, as regent. Parliament voted that the King could not return without its permission.

May be Two Years Before Arthritis Sufferers Can Get Wonder Drug

Chicago, June 27 — (AP)—If you are an arthritis sufferer, you probably can't obtain treatment with one of the new wonder hormones for a year — possibly two years.

Dramatic arthritis relief with compound E and A.C.T.H. has been demonstrated in recent weeks on patients who submitted themselves as human guinea pigs for clinical tests.

The drawback is that both substances are so scarce there isn't enough of either yet for necessary experimental work.

Doctors and Pharmacists have been careful to point out this scarcity. When Dr. Philip S. Hench of the Mayo Clinic told of the effective results of compound E, he said there wasn't enough of it in the world to treat 20 persons. Compound E, not to be confused with vitamin E, is an adrenal hormone.

A. C. T. H. is a pituitary hormone which acts upon the patients' adrenal glands to produce compound E by natural means in the body.

The magic of their remarkable relief of arthritis symptoms is still a mystery to researchers. They only know immediate results have been swift and effective.

A spokesman for the manufacturer of A. C. T. H., explained that the pituitary glands of 400,000 hogs can be made to produce only one pound of the dry powder form of the hormone.

Nevertheless, arthritis suffers ers by the thousands have written, telephoned, or made their painful ways in person to see the doctors, researchers, hospital officials and manufacturers who are working on the new way to lick the painful affliction. They all want to get some of the new product soon to ease their joints.

Huge Pike Landed

Winnipeg, June 27 (CP)—Dr. F. E. Weed of Park River, N.D., Sunday brought up a 34½-pound Northern Pike from Lake Athapapuskow, the Northern Manitoba lake which annually produces some record-breaking fish.

In 1930 the world record lake trout, a 63-pounder, was caught in the same lake by Miss L. L. Hayes.

The scrappy, long-nose caught by Dr. Weed put up a struggle for more than half-an-hour before being brought to boat. It was 47 inches long and 22 inches in girth.

Last year, the record pike entered in an international contest (Field and Stream) weighed in at 35 pounds. It was caught in Kaskatong Lake, Que. Record pike is 46 pounds.

CHURCH

The separatist group also was said to have accused the hierarchy of balking a church-state agreement. The pastoral letter said that under present circumstances, no church-state agreement is possible.

"We desire an agreement, not a dictate," said the 4,000 - word letter read by priests in churches throughout the country to congregations of Czechoslovakia's 9,000,000 Catholics.

Archbishop Beran did not leave his police - guarded palace to read the letter in person at St. Vitus' Cathedral. He left the pulpit there last week after communist hecklers broke up his sermon.

A priest who read the letter at St. Vitus was heard by parishioners to war "if necessary, you must be prepared to follow the hard path of the Christian martyrs."

Prayed for Mercy

The letter itself prayed for divine mercy "under false and unjust sentences," which was taken as an indication that Archbishop Beran and his bishops expect to be jailed.

It bore a postscript urging priests not to let threats keep them from reading it. At the same time it warned them of church punishment if they did not.

Through the last week government officials have accused the church of anti - state agitation and threatened legal action.

The Ministry of Justice accused the archbishop of "spreading lying reports about the government and trying to turn citizens against the rime.

The communist press, meanwhile, claimed big new gains for the government - sponsored Catholic action group. It said more than 1,700 "patriotic priests" had pledged their support and there were hints the government might by-pass the stablished church hierarchy and make a religious agreement with this group.

The pastoral letter commanded communicants to boycott the "Catholic action" movement.

Australian Coal Miners Strike On Coldest Day

Sydney, Australia, June 27 (CP) — Australia's 34.000 coal miners today began a countrywide strike as Sydney experienced its coldest day in 11 years with a low temperature of 39.1 degrees.

Heating was banned in houses and offices as a coal conservation measure. Approximately another 500,000 workers were idle because of drastic fuel rationing imposed to eke out coal supplies.

Coal stocks in industrial Sydney, a city of 1,500,000 population, are expected to last only eight days at the present rate of consumption.

Negotiations between the coal tribunal and the miners' federation broke down Sunday. The miners demand a weekly wage increase of 30 shillings (about $4.85). A reduction in their work week from 40 to 35 hours and nationalization of the industry.

Prime Minister Chiefly conferred in Canberra with cabinet ministers on emergency regulations to deal with the stoppage, which he said last week would cause economic chaos.

Williams said the strike will last until the government agrees to an "amicable settlement that will bring industrial stability to the coal-mining country and contribute to the ending of these constant crisis."

The impact of the strike was most severe in New South Wales. But employment officials said the effect on jobs will begin to be felt in other states if the strike lasts more than a week.

In South Australia 30,000 workers were idle as a result of a 10-day ban on power for industry.

Power for industry in Sydney and other New South Wales cities has been drastically reduced. Even hospital services have been cut to the point where only urgent and maternity cases are admitted

Drew Plans Early Vote and Visit To Polling Booths

Ottawa, June 27 (CP)—George Drew Progressive Conservative leader, today will join millions of Canadians in going to the polls to elect Canada's next government.

Mr. and Mrs. Drew will go to a polling booth not far from their home. They will cast ballots at 9:30 a.m. EDT. Mr. Drew can not vote for himself. The polling booth is outside the neighboring constituency of Carleton where he was first elected to the Commons last December. He is seeking re-election in Carleton.

Mr. and Mrs. Drew spent a quiet Sunday in their apartment after attending a morning church service. In the last seven weeks they have travelled more than 18,000 miles in all parts of Canada.

Mr. Drew completed his campaign Saturday at a rally in the Ottawa auditorium. He criticized the Canadian institute of public opinion which predicted a Liberal victory in the election.

He said Canada still is a democracy and elections are decided at the polls and not by an organization that makes election predictions. He recalled how public opinion polls had forecast victory for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey over President Truman in the last United States election.

He criticized the Toronto Daily Star and described it as a disgrace to the newspaper profession. The Star's Saturday headline was "Keep Canada British— Destroy Drew's Houde—God Save the King."

Mr. Drew said the Star had stated that the way to keep Canada British was to vote against him. The newspaper had done more to undermine confidence in Canada's system of government than any other publication in the country.

It had done more than any other newspaper to spread Communist propaganda, publishing news handouts from the Russian embassy in Ottawa.

The Star, he said, had refused an advertisement announcing that George McCullagh, publisher of the Globe and Mail and the Toronto Telegram, would make a radio speech Friday night. It had accepted, however, an advertisement announcing a speech by Tim Buck, leader of the Communist Labor-Progressive party.

If Prime Minister St. Laurent wanted to associate with the Star "then may I remind him that those who lie down with dogs always get up with the fleas."

CROW SHOOT NETS 24 BIRDS

Toronto, June 27 (CP)—Thirty-five shotguns and a pop bottle were the weapons used to kill 24 crows at the Toronto Anglers' and Hunters' Association annual crow hunt Saturday. The pop bottle was used when Dr. Norman Grace knocked a crow over a bluff with his shotgun, then clambered down the rocks and clubbed the stunned bird.

Announcement is made of the election to the Board of Directors of A. E. Ames & Co. Limited of W. P. Spragge and William Robson, both of whom have been associated with the organization for many years. Mr. Spragge is Ontario Sales Manager. Mr. Robson is in charge of the Company's Bond Trading Departments.

A. Turpin Given Managership Appointment

Tweed—Armand Turpin, assistant to the general manager of the Hastings Cheese Company, Tweed has severed his connection with that organization and has been appointed office manager and production superintendent of the new W. T. Hawkins Ltd. plant which is locating a branch in Tweed.

In Chicago, the headquarters of the company operates under the name of Confections Incorporated. The Hawkins firm, which manufactures a special type of confection is located in the new Tweed Steel Works building recently vacated by the Stewart Warner Company.

Mr. Chas. Bowers comptroller of the firm was in Tweed last Friday and appointed Mr. Turpin to the managership of the firm. Roy Schoen, superintendent of the Chicago plant and James Marker expert on production, both arrived from Chicago this week following the arrival of two truckloads of equipment from Ohio and Chicago. Mr. Schoen will remain in Tweed for about ten days, while Mr. Marker will be here for about six weeks supervising the early operations and getting production under way.

DROWNED IN CREEK

Iroquois Falls, June 27 (CP) — Orville Harrington, 16, of Killaloe, was drowned in the muddy swollen waters of Meadow Creek about a mile from Iroquois Falls Sunday afternoon. His body was recovered early today. Orville, youngest of a family of 14 arrived here Friday night to visit his brother Earl an employee of the Abitibi Power and Paper Company. Following a few hours fishing he decided to have a swim.

The Social Credit group urged the adoption of Social Credit monetary theories as a means of bolstering export trade and producing increased purchasing power on the home market.

The two constituencies in which the Liberals are not running candidates for this election are both in British Columbia.

The Progressive Conservatives did not nominate candidates in 13 ridings—five in Quebec, three each in British Columbia and Alberta and one in Manitoba. The 13th seat is far-northern Yukon-Mackenzie.

262 Seats Contested

There were no acclamations when nominations closed two weeks ago, all of the 262 seats being contested.

With the voting under way and a strenuous, seven-week campaign ended, the four major party leaders are close to their home constituencies to receive tonight's election results.

Mr. St. Laurent, contesting his first federal election as a party leader, is in Quebec East, the riding which returned him in 1945 with a majority of 10,768 votes.

Progressive Conservative leader George Drew, also leading a national party for the first time, is in Ottawa, near the capital district riding of Carleton, which he won in a by-election last December with a majority of 8,913.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, will receive the results in his home Saskatchewan seat of Rosetown - Biggar. His majority in 1945 was 4,866. Solon Low, Social Credit leader, is in Alberta's Peace River constituency which gave him a majority of 3,210 last time.

One man long prominent in Dominion elections is at the sidelines this time. He is Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, who gave up the Liberal leadership and the prime ministership last year because of ill-health.

SAFETY IN VACATION

Summer has come and with it the vacation period for young and their elders. Vacationists are full of the enthusiasm which goes with the change from the routine of the rest of the year and always look forward with intense interest to the holidays. The Health League has offered a number of suggestions which may be of importance in the preservation of health and in making conditions safe for the visitors in the summer haunts.

People going to resorts and other places of vacationing ought to learn the methods of resuscitation as they may have an opportunity to save lives if they know the means.

They are advised to be sure the water supply is pure and are advised to take proper care of milk.

There is a tendency to overdo tanning and sunburning. Accordingly holidayers are warned to take the tan by easy stages.

Everyone has heard of poison ivy and should know what it looks like so as to avoid it.

One of the essentials for a successful holiday is not to over-exert. Humans have a tendency to do this under the novel conditions of vacationing but they should take caution to exercise within reason.

More salt should be placed in the diet owing to the loss of salt by perspiration at this season, medical experts say.

Care should be taken of the food to see that it is not contaminated by flies and rodents and that it should be properly preserved.

When many people are starting on their way to the resorts and camps and lakes for the summer, the expert swimmer is ready for the enjoyment of the season but even he and others need to be cautioned that they should take ordinary care and measures for safety when they are in or on the water. Water sports bring immense pleasure but they also bring risks and dangers which are not to be overlooked. There are reasons for these precautions for the history of swimming and bathing is associated with accidents which often mar the joys and pleasures of the holidays.

People should learn to swim fairly well and be able to look after themselves in the water in case of accident and they should also be able to render artificial means of resuscitation to anyone who is the victim of a water accident.

Of course swimmers and bathers should know the nature of the conditions under the water where they are enjoying themselves, so as to avoid getting into deep holes, striking hidden rocks, or running into powerful currents which may sweep them away from shore from which help might reach them.

No one should go into the water alone. There should be others bathing so that there would be safety for all in the event of a mishap.

There is danger in long distance swimming for even the best of swimmers may take a cramp or become exhausted. If one must swim out far or across water the swimmer should have a boat accompany him for safety's sake.

Then there is the ancient advice not to swim too soon after eating or after heavy exercise and not to swim too strenuously.

In boating there are risks of upsets and the advice is to avoid unnecessary or careless movements in a boat or canoe such as standing up or upsetting the balance of the craft and its occupants.

For safety's sake one should not risk chances. The sensible swimmer avoids risks, takes things moderately, nows dangers and takes such steps as will avoid them.

CHERISHED MEMORIALS

Wood and masonry from the British House of Commons destroyed by Nazi bombers will be much sought for across the world among institutions of the free nations. The University of Pittsburgh has asked for mementoes to be embodied in the English room. Oak panelling and woodwork are now being inspected for shipment to Pittsburgh. Even from Oslo University there has come a request for remnants from the historic building and it is hoped to incorporate masonry from the former Commons in the English faculty building at Oslo. For that purpose photographs of masonry have been sent to the university to aid the authorities to make a selection.

It is not a matter of surprise that democratic nations cherish pieces of the woodwork and masonry from the building which represented so long a period in British history and the development of the spirit of democracy in Britain.

FLOWER ELECTION

A rose decided once to run
For office on the board of flowers,
To say how should be shared the sun,
The fertile soil, the wind, the showers.

A thistle ran against the rose
And waged a very shrewd campaign.
To every humble plant that grows
It promised more of sun and

The thistle went from field to field,
Where daisies in profusion grew.
It promised them a larger yield
And fewer hours of work to do.

Now study of the ballots shows
The same result we mortals note:
The roses voted for the rose,
The thistle won the daisy

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

TRUE—AGAINST ALL REASON

The history of the Christian Church reveals that in the early days the very persecutions designed to stamp out Christian faith promoted it with unfailing regularity. After every prosecution the Church grew in numbers and influence. The very people who persecuted the Christians and others who stood by and watched the infliction of torture with satisfaction were so impressed by the bravery of victims that many of them changed sides and cast in their lot with a hated minority. The unbelieving Romans were filled with superstitious awe as they beheld the spectacle of a church growing under persecution. Every time they killed a Christian, a new convert stepped up to take his place.

Now all this is at variance with the ways of the world. It astonishes us as much as it astonished the ancients. But the truth of the matter is that God wins some of His great victories through the feebleness of righteous men. They appear to have no strength whatsoever, yet these feeble men supported by an unseen power, devastate the strongholds of evil.

St. Paul explained this extraordinary situation when he said: "The foolishness of God is wiser than men; the weakness of God is stronger than men."

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Gillis Purcell, general manager of the Canadian Press, has only one leg. A crate of rations dropped from an airplane in the late war took the other one off. But none the less he is a great fellow to go fishing with, even in the wild and mountainous country He leaves Barney, which is the wooden leg's name, back in camp. And equipped with a pair of trick crutches, he goes stravaging over the tough and hilly portages and trails on a footing of equality with his two-legged companions.

There is suspicion amongst these companions that Purcell may select them on the basis of their short-windedness, age, waist measure and other handicaps in order to balance accounts with him. They in turn get even with Purcell by calling for frequent halts on the trails, and showing by their solicitude, that it is of Purcell and Purcell alone they are thinking.

On a recent trip into the Quebec hinterland fly fishing for trout, Purcell, accompanied by an aged and infirm companion and a guide aged 75 years, became involved in a muskeg. The stream by which they were attemting to negotiate a passage between two Laurentian lakes, had practically dried up, due to a beaver dam having gone out. The final stages of the journey—not in a canoe but in typical Vercheres boat weighing about 400 pounds soaking wet—were through what had been the stream bed in the middle of a muskeg.

The aged and infirm companion got out into the muskeg on one side, the 75 year old guide on the other; and heaved. Monsieur Purcell came amidship, stuck his one leg overboard into the muskeg, and heaved, employing the great cricle or arc system, so that from amidships, he would fall in a recumbent posture, into the stern seat of the craft, with each surge. It was a magnificent performance.

He is now known as Muskeg Leg Purcell. We got through to the lake of our desire and caught eleven beautiful trout. And the return jourey was a cinch.

PROVIDES LEAD ON SWINDLER TRAIL

YOU ONLY LIVE ONCE!

U. S. police are experiencing a new type of cross-country manhunt. They are seeking a 73-year-old swindler, Sigmund Z. Engel, who has skilfully extracted money from women from New York to San Francisco. Latest report of his handiwork comes from San Francisco where Mrs. V. R. Huebler, right, shown with her daughter, said she wed the gray-haired Don Juan on April 9 of this year. He posed as a $40,000,000 tycoon. Mrs. Huebler, an author, would not say that he swindled her of anything. (Central Press Canadian).

Mackenzie's Column:

Devaluation For U.K. Would Cut Both Ways

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

It's not surprising that Britain's economic crisis should have given rise to discussion on both sides of the Atlantic as to whether devaluation of the pound sterling would ease the situation.

Under England's managed (controlled) currency the pound now is pegged at about $4.03. It also has a fixed value in relation to the currencies of other countries. The point is lowering the value of the pound would be to encourage foreigners to increase their purchases in Britain.

It works like this: Say the value of the pound in United States money were reduced from $4.03 to $3.03. Then obviously an American would save a dollar on every £1 transaction he made, whether it be for a pair of gloves or for food. That would be a drawing card for tourists and likely would increase exports.

However, this would cut two ways for England. While she would be selling more goods, she would have to pay more for necessary imports, say from America, with her devalued pound. Britain is such a heavy importer that her increased expenditure for imports might more than offset her gain in sales.

So Britain thus far has turned thumbs down on any idea of devaluation. Apart from other considerations the psychological effect of such a drastic move might be shockingly bad both at home and abroad. After all, the value of the pound is John Bull's badge of solvency — the symbol of his ability to meet his obligations.

1931 Crisis

Back in 1931, during the great depression, England faced another crisis which forced her in effect to devalue the pound, and she did it by the sensational move of going off the gold standard—long her financial Rock of Gibraltar. That was Sept. 21, 1931, the memorable day on which the whole financial world was shaken.

..J. P. Morgan Interview

I was in London at the time and I decided to consult J. P. Morgan.

Morgan's statement described the British government's action as "a hopeful and not a discouraging event." This optimistic word from the sphinx of the House of Morgan was credited with having much to do with steadying international reaction.

Of course, a devaluation of the British pound now wouldn't have any such repercussion. Still, it would be a grave move which the government wishes to avoid.

PROTEST RALLY AGAINST REDS

Shortly after the lifting of the Berlin blockade, nine members of "Die Falken" (German Youth organization) were arrested and tried in the Soviet sector for distributing there the British licensed Telegraf. Two received sentences at the trial which was declared public. The chairman of Die Falken attended and when he left sourt to search for another member who had been removed by the Markgraf police, he was set upon by members of the FDJ, beaten up, taken to a police station and there charged and sentenced for "disobedience to the state's power." The Berlin Youth Circle (all youth organizations in West Berlin) met in protest at a rally in Berlin Neukoelin. Here the lord mayor of West Berlin, Ernst Reuter addresses the rally. IODIN RATION FOR ABSENT - MINDEDNESS

Four out of twenty letters taken at random from the iodin Ration file—letters from people who have taken the Iodin Ration (daily requirement of iodin) for months or years—mention either less forgetfulness or absent-mindedness. One man estimates he has saved at least three hats. He explains that he has long gone hatless except on special occasions when he has worn a hat for the sake of decorum—on such occasions he was apt to forget all about the hat untill the next time he looked for it. Since he got on the iodin ration he hasn't lost a hat. That's more than I can say for it—indeed I never lost a hat that way until I began fooling with iodin and since that time I have lost so many that now I'd as lief buy a toothbrush as spend my good money for a new hat.

The minimum daily requirement of iodin, according to recognized nutrition authorities, is a wee, wee mite, a small fraction of a grain of the pure element, something less than one-sixtieth of a grain. Minimum daily requirement means the least one can take, whether in food, drinking water or in the form of medicine, without developing signs or symptoms of iodin deficiency.

An optimal daily ration on the other hand, means several times as much as the minimum daily requirement, whether it be vitamin, mineral or other essential of good nutrition. In most instances of nutritional deficiency it is advisable to take an optimal daily ration of the element or elements, lack of which caused the trouble, in order to restore functional well being.

In my opinion the extremely small quantity of iodin designated by nutrition authorities is inadequate for the great majority of people. I believe the nutrition authorities who arbitrarily estimated the so-called minimum daily requirement leaned too far backward in their anxiety to appease the imperative will of the loud-speaking surgeons who were so positive that the incorporation of an iodin compound in salt would cause "toxic" goitre or change simple goitre into the exopthalmic (hyperthyroid) type. That notion, as experience proved, was wrong. Actually the popular use of iodized salt in place of ordinary salt, in cooking and at table, prevented what the noisy operators feared it would cause. A distinct decrease in the number of goitre operations in the hospitals throughout the goitre belt (Great Lakes area) followed introduction of iodized salt.

For my own health and well being I prefer the optimum daily ration of iodin, as advocated by D. T. Quigley, M. D., F. A. C. S., of Omaha, in the Nebraska State Medical Journal, April, '45.:

There are only three known areas in the U. S. where there are sufficient amounts of iodine in the soil. Iodine deficiency is therefore nearly universal. The quantities needed for optimum health have been very much underrated. These quantities must be raised to ten times or a hundred times the maintenance does where severe deficiency has existed over a relatively long period of time."

In the pamphlet Instuctions for Taking Iodin Ration (available on written request if you provide stamped envelope bearing your adress—a signed request, that is) I abide by the estimated daily minimum requirement, but as I say, for my own well being I prefer to take approximately as much as Dr. Quigley suggested.

This is not tantamount to approving of medical doses of iodine or iodide. I refer to nutritional quantities or rations of iodine or iodid. Readers who tell me how much iodine or iodide they take and ask whether it is all right will receive only this answer: Consult your physician.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

NICE PEOPLE

How pleasant it is to have nice people around us, or to select one or more as companions upon a journey or vacation. It is rarely comfortable to be alone. We need the stimulation and peace-giving qualities of nice people. Their good qualities add up to those we may possess, and thus we become enriched.

Pleasant people furnish an aurora that spreads warmth all about us, whenever we contact them We think better and more happily when they are around. And our entire physical and spiritual make-up is blessed. We like to meet nice people. They are the salt of the earth. They season it "to the Queen's taste," as the saying goes.

If we are nice to other people they, in turn, feel inspired to be nice to us—it's that simple. Even in the case of "difficult people it works like magic. How quickly the presence of a nice (pleasant) person seems to change the atmosphere of an entire assembled group! Such people abhor gossip and mean sayings. They see the good in people an take joy in advertising the fact.

The nicest people in the community are not necessarily the richest ones, or the most talked about, but the ones who are the most useful—the ones most welcomed because of their kind sayings and useful suggestions. They are usually the ones whom people look up to and honor and respect as well. They are the ones most missed when they are taken away.

I have referred in these talks to the monument on a little grave in New England, on which are engraved these words: "She Was So Pleasant." What memories these words must have brought to those who once knew this child, and to all who have ever stood and read them in years since. Just to be remembered because you were "so pleasant" would be an acheivement for any one of us.

Nice persons are always the ones who are considerate, non-critical, and tolerant of other people's opinions. They get along happily with everyone, because they are not disturbing or irritating. They are furnishers of cheer and good will. They are hunted out as friends.

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

HOUSE ESCAPES APARTMENT'S FATE

Recently, your J-M reporter learned of an apartment house that burned to the ground in an inferno that damaged the whole neighborhood. Yet the house nearest the burning apartment suffered the least because it was protected with Johns-Manville Asbestos Siding Shingles called Cedargrain.

J-M Cedargrains protect the sidewalls on thousands of homes all over the country — not only from fire, but from weather and wear. You see, they're made from asbestos and cement — they can't burn, rot or wear out! But they're beautiful — with all the rich graining of fine weathered wood.

Cedargrains are available in attractive colors of Dover White, Blended Gray, Tantone and Greentone. For free folder, write Johns-Manville, 199 Bay St., Toronto, or see your nearest J-M dealer.

Last year, the Kiwanis Club of Belleville celebrated the completion of 25 years of community service work in Belleville and the surrounding district. You are no doubt familiar with the many and varied works that have been undertaken and successfully carried out by the Kiwanis Club during the past quarter century, in the interests of building a better community and better citizens. Today, this club is a vital factor in the life of your community, as witness the maintenance and operation of the Kiwanis Centre on Dundas Street East and the Kiwanis Camp at Roblin Lake.

The operation of these projects requires funds. These funds must be raised through your generosity in supporting the money-making events put on throughout a year by the Kiwanis Club. At the present time, the by-laws of Kiwanis International state that no Kiwanis Club shall operate any game of chance or lottery for the purpose of raising funds, or use any method contrary to the laws of the city, province or Dominion of Canada. This, of course, makes it extremely difficult, inasmuch as the major portion of our funds in past year was raised by your whole-hearted support of such undertakings.

In order to carry on our work as in the past, and meet the ever-growing challenge to help the youth of our city, we have decided that there is only one way we can raise sufficient money. That is, to ASK you for it by making a personal visit to your home.

To this end, TOMORROW NIGHT, over one hundred business and professional men, members of the Kiwanis Club of Belleville, will canvass the entire city. They will knock at your door, say good evening, and ask you if you would like to help us "BUILD A BETTER COMMUNITY." Your contribution may be as much or as little as you think you should give to help us keep going. We know we can count on you to receive this Kiwanian in the proper manner.

There is hardly anyone in Belleville, in any walk of life, who is not affected by the operation of our Kiwanis Centre and our Kiwanis Camp. Just read over the lists below, and see for yourself the work that is being done in what might be called "Belleville's only community centre," and how many children (some of whom might otherwise never have a holiday) get a real camp vacation under expert supervision.

Over 12,000 children and adults, in the aggregate, have used Kiwanis Centre in the first half of this year. Taking the average, we can expect that at least ONE AND ONE HALF TIMES THE ENTIRE POPULATION OF THIS CITY will use the building before the year is passed.

WEDDINGS

POULOS—PAPPAS

One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place at St. Thomas Church, at five o'clock Sunday afternoon, when Dena, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Pappas, 158 George Street, became the bride of George Peter Poulos, 1001 North Mapleton Avenue, Oak Park, Illinois.

The Rev. Basil Demeroutis, of the Greek Orthodox Church, Ottawa, performed the colorful yet singularly impressive wedding ceremony assisted by cantors of the church.

The taper-lit interior of the church was crowded to capacity when the wedding party arrived a few minutes before the hour of the ceremony. The church was decorated with lovely floral effects. The pews were adorned with white satin wedding bows, and white stephanotis, the traditional Greek wedding flowers.

Chimes Ring Out

Across the street the chimes of Bridge Street Church rang out with appropriate wedding music as the bridal party arrived.

Sharp on the hour the wedding party entered the church. Preceded by winsome ring-bearer, Master Chris Rendell, appareled in white satin, and pretty Miss Marika Karis, who scattered rose petals on the spotless white aisle covering, the bride, lovely in a white Paris wedding gown with flowing train ,entered the church on the arm of her father. The strains of the Wedding March from Lohengrin pealed from the organ played by Mr. Ernest Wheatley, Mus. Bach., A.R.C.O.

The ceremony was performed with the impressive ritual of the Greek Orthodox Church. As Mr. Demeroutis chanted the various phases of the ceremony, the groom's chief attendant, Mr. George Prevolos, Chicago, placed the traditional white coronets of orange blossoms on the heads of the bridal couple changing and interchanging the coronets three times.

The bridesmaids and attendants performed the "Wedding Dance" with the bride circling the sacrament table three times as special prayers were chanted by the officiating priest.

Original Paris Gown

The bride was lovely in an original Paris wedding gown of French lace over taffeta fashioned with a moulded basque bodice and full length train. The bodice was fitted with sheath-type sleeves with a deep oval neckline encrusted with seed pearls. The hem of the skirt was caught in front to show a ruffled tulle underskirt and taffeta petticoat.

She carried a lovely bouquet of gardenias, fleur d'amour and stephanotis. The maids of honor wore full-length dresses of light blue with picture hats and the bridesmaids looked lovely in similar style dresses of white.

Mrs. Pappas, mother of the bride, looked charming in a cameo rose lace gown fashioned with full skirt and fitted bodice. Mrs. Peter Poulos, mother of the groom, wore a gown of iridescent taffeta reflecting orchid and chartreuse surmounted with orchid Chantilly lace.

The bride chose a blue dress with white vest and white shoes and accessories for travelling. Her shoes had hand-painted designs on platform soles. She carried a white purse and gloves.

Wedding Trip

The bride and groom left late last evening for a wedding trip through the United States to California and Mexico. On their return they will reside in Belleville.

The maids of honor were Miss Tula Letros, Toronto and Miss Dorothy Christopher, St. Catharines. The junior bridesmaids were Miss Mondo Pappas, sister of the bride, and Miss Dimitra Poulos sister of the groom. The bridesmaids included Miss Ethel Ladas, Muskegon, Mich., Miss Anna Tsekery and Miss Ann Theodosakis, River Forest, Ill., Miss Connie Tsakiris, Bellwood, Ill. The honor attendants of the groom were Mr. George Prevolos, Chicago, and Mr. Louis Sedares, Chicago. The ushers were John Theodorou, Kenosha, Wisconsin; Nick Theodorou, John Angelokos, Aldo Madrigana all of Chicago; William Pappas, brother of the bride, and John Poulos brother of the groom.

Wedding guests from Chicago, New York and other United States points were present with those from Toronto, Montreal and other Canadian centres.

Reception at Vanity Fair

Following the ceremony the bridal party and guests attended a reception held at the Vanity Fair on Front Street. Upwards of five hundred people including several Belleville guests were presented to the bride and groom. With the bridal couple in the reception line were Mr. and Mrs. Sam Pappas, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Poulos, Mr. George Prevolos, the groom's attendant, and the maids of honor and bridesmaids. Each guest was presented with a pretty white facsimile of the Prayer Book in box form with the names "George and Dena" inscribed on the cover. The box contained sugar-coated almonds, as good-luck charms.

Later a buffet lunch was served in the Knights of Columbus Hall adjoining Vanity Fair..

Greek Dances Presented

Later a Greek three - piece orchestra composed of Messrs. Theodore Paris, Tom Verutas and Steve Rousukos, of Toronto played the traditional Greek folk dance music on clarinet, violin and mandinola.

The beautiful rhythms of the sometimes plaintive music which in turn swept into fast tempos was a melodic background to the slowly swaying bodies of the dancers who formed circles in the centre of the floor and slowly danced their way in the wake of a leader. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Pappas led one party while the pretty bride and her handsome groom danced in another.

LAW—CLARK

A quiet wedding was solemnized at St. George's Anglican Church, Grafton, on Sunday, June 12, at 12.30 p.m., when Olive Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Truscott Clark; was united in marriage to Dennis L. Law, son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Law, Loughton, Essex, England. The Rev. T. A. Nind officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a wine gabardine suit with a white picture hat, with white accessories and a corsage of white gardenias.

Mr. Perry Baker, of Great Baddow, Essex, England, was groomsman.

Archdeacon, the Venerable Arthur Smith, officiated, before an altar banked with red peonies and baskets of snowballs.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, was charming in a gown of white slipper satin, having a slight train, trimmed with lace. The sleeves were long and close fitting, ending in lily points over the wrists. Her long veil of tulle illusion was held by a coronet of encrusted beads and she carried a shower bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Miss Olga Gurnick, sister of the bride was maid of honor, wearing a pink taffeta gown with matching headdress of flowers, with fingertip veil, and carrying a shower bouquet of yellow roses.

Miss Ann Gurnick was bridesmaid, gowned in blue taffeta, with matching headdress, and carrying a shower bouquet of pink roses.

Mr. Harold Latchford, R.R. 5, Belleville, was groomsman, and Mr. Fred Deveau, R.R. 4, Belleville, was usher.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents which was profusely decorated with pink and white peonies, bouquets of iris, and pink and white streamers. The bride's mother, wearing a gown of rose crepe with white accessories and corsage of red roses, was assisted in receiving the guests by the groom's mother, who wore grey gabardine suit with matching accessories, and corsage of red roses.

Bulge Too Much? Then Think Over Swim Suit Tips

By GLORIA YARBROUGH

Hollywood, —(AP)—There's good news for you women who shy away from the beach because you bulge too much in the wrong places or too little in the right ones. No longer need you bemoan your fate and cast envious glances at the slim young things.

The trick to this new transforming magic is the swim suit Esther Williams, who has made a study of the things, says:

"There is no excuse for all women to look sloppy on the beach these days. There are suits available which are designed especially for women with one or more figure problems."

Esther, who looks beautiful in any suit, was seated beside her tiny swiming pool.

"After all," she said, "It's in a swim suit that a woman shows most of herself. She should take as much or even more care to select the right one as she would for a dress. The right suit will accent her best features and take the emphasis away from the unattractive ones."

The one-piece suit is favored by Esther for all gals.

'Only the petite girl with a perfect figure can wear a two-piece suit. And if she looks cute, she will look even cuter in a one-piece.

Material Important

Material is another important factor in choosing a swim suit.

"Again, only the girl with the perfect figure shoulld wear a satin swim suit," said Esther. "The shiny material shows off all the bad points as well as the good." Cotton, nylon taffeta, and matelasse lastex are ideal fabrics for the average and problem figure.

Here are some tips from Esther to help you select the right swim suit:

If you are 'hippy' or have heavy thighs, a swim suit that waist, and a straight flared skirt, has fullness at the bust, a fitted is the one for you. This suit accents the bust, conceals the hips and minimizes thigh proportions.

If you are full busted, you should choose a suit with extra wide shoulder straps and a smooth fitting bust line. The wide straps are for extra support and minimize the size of the bust.

Should you be tall and lanky a swim suit with gathered fullness at the bust and a flared skirt is for you.

The older woman with several figure problems would be wise to invest in a custom-made suit which would give her the support she needs, believes Esther.

"It would cost no more than a good dress, and a swim suit that fits and flatters is an important item in any wardrobe."

The solid color, one-piece suit which she helped Fred Cole design is Esther's own favorite. The matelasse lastex of which it is made is a two-way stretch material with dull finish. The suit is cut low in the back and has a 'ballet bodice' that eliminates the usual accented bust line. Bust support is achieved with adjustable back straps.

Frozen Juices Big Business Florida Finds

By BEN SMITH

Lakeland, Fla., (AP) — The frozen orange concentrate business is only four years old, but the fast-growing baby already is the darling of Florida's big citrus empire.

This season some 8,000,000 boxes of Florida oranges, about 12 to 14 per cent of the state's crop, are going into frozen juice.

Many citrus men predict it will be the No. 1 item in the entire citrus line within a few years, so rapid has been its climb and so bright its future. This season's production is about three to four times as great as last season and next year is expected to see new gains.

Manufacturers of frozen products are just as enthusiastic. An authoritative national business magazine reported in March that frozen orange juice sales were greater than the combined volume of the leading vegetable and fruit items—peas and strawberries.

There are several reasons for the quick acceptance of the new product. Among them are convenience of preparation, unaltered fresh fruit taste, uniform quality, retetion of vitamin content, year-round availability and reasonable prices.

Just add three parts of water to the contents of the can and you have four parts of rich, chilled juice, ready to serve. It is packed in family size six ounce cans, which make a pint and a half of fountains and other large users; and 27-ounce cans slightly smaller than the quart size.

A six-ounce can equals 4 1-2 pounds of oranges, or from eight to 12 individual oranges.

Vitamins Retained

The frozen concentrate is produced without any detectable loss of vitamin C, said J. L. Heid, the director of research and development of the Florida Citrus Canners Co-operative. Orange juice is rich in vitamin C, in vitamin P and Inositol, he said. Vitamin P helps to keep the tiny blood vessels or capillaries strong. Inositol apparently aids in protecting the liver against damage from fat. The citrus juice also is a good source of other B vitamins.

Freezing of fruit juices is not a new idea, nor is concentration of juices. It is the combination of these without loss of fresh flavor which has brought about the booming development since the war.

The new process is a low-temperature evaporation operation under high vacuum, with an addition of freshly squeezed juice just before freezing. It takes less than 30 minutes from fruit bin to can.

All major manufacturers of the concentrate use the process developed and patented by the research department of the Florida Commission. The public service patent is assigned to the United States government.

The pioneer plant in Florida packed about 225,000 gallons of the product in the 1945-46 season. The following season production was 560,000 gallons, and last season four plants turned out 1,910,000 gallons.

Seven plants are in operation now, with the possibility of another starting up before the season ends in July. The total Florida pack this year is generally estimated at 8,000,000 gallons, each gallon representing a 1 3-5 bushel box of fruit. That means about 12,800,000 bushels of fruit.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Bon Voyage Party for Her Daughter

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is leaving soon for overseas with the Red Cross. I would like to have some sort of Open House for her to which all her friends could come: Saturday or Sunday afternoon 3-to-6 or 3-to-7 or 4-to-7. (1) What kind of invitations should I send? How should they be worded . . . could they state the "why" of the party or simply an "At Home?" (2) Because of the season I thought to serve punch and small cakes Is this correct . . . and enough? Should they be served from the dining room table, or passed from time to time.

F. M.

(1) Write the invitations on informals or on small invitation-cards or semi-note paper, perhaps somewhat like this:

Dear Florence,

Rose is leaving next month for overseas, to work with the Red Cross, and we hope that you and Jim will come here on Sunday, July 10th, to a gathering of her friends to say "Fare-thee-well" to her. Do make us happy by telling us you'll come in sometime between four and seven o'clock.

(2) You might serve punch, with hot coffee as an alternative (so many people prefer a hot drink, even in summer) and perhaps add some simple food-accessories to fill out the menu somewhat — potato chips, popcorn, nuts, candies. I'm sure you'll find it more convenient to have the dining room table set as a tea table, perhaps with the punch service at one end and the coffee service opposite.

The Bridegroom's Parents and Their Wedding Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister is to be married late this coming summer to a young man from another state. We are making the lists of guests to whom we will send invitations. Since the groom's parents live out-of-town, we do not know whether or not it is proper to send them an invitation. Is it?

A. M.

The invitation to the groom's parents is the most important of the wedding invitations, since the groom's mother and father are the guests of honor. Naturally, to their son's wedding, they are invited more intimately than by formal invitation . . . they are told by the bride-to-be and her mother of the plans as they develop for the wedding, and of the plans for their coming to the wedding. Then, when the invitations arrive, from the engraver, the bride encloses several of them, "as momentoes," in an envelope, with a happy, cordial little note, and sends them to the groom's mother and father.

Seated Service Not Necessary

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is to have a High Noon wedding, in church, rather on the formal side, and not very large. Is it absolutely necessary that we have a seated breakfast after the ceremony?

Mother.

No. You may correctly have a seated bride's table and buffet service for the parents and the guests. Or you may just as correctly have the breakfast served buffet style for everyone.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Disagrees With My Views On Criticizing Friends

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I don't agree with what you told the woman who complained that her husband was too outspoken.

If anyone has anything against me, I want them to tell me. I call the people that come to me that way my friends. You know where you are. It does some people a lot of good to tell them when they are getting in wrong. I have had my best friends tell me I was in wrong. I thought it over and I was. He did me a favor.

My neighbor would get mad at his wife or dog. Then, if his horses would do the least thing he would tie them to a post and pound them with a club. It was the talk of all, but no one had the courage to tell him. I couldn't stand it any longer so I went and told him I would notify the Humane Society if he did it again. Ever since, he has been as good as pie and we have no better neighbor.

Did I or did I not do the right thing? I don't think it hurts to tell someone when they are acting dirty.

"Old Farmer."

Dear "Old Farmer:"

Thank you for writing me your views on the subject of speaking frankly to one's friends about their faults. It is always interesting to hear what readers think of some of the problems discussed in this column.

I still hold to the opinion I expressed previously, however, in thinking that as a general rule, it is wiser to remain silent about a person's faults than to point them out. The sort of thing you speak of, where a man is abusing either a person or an animal, is something entirely different, and certainly needs to be dealt with. But unless someone is actually harming someone else, it is usually better to keep your mouth shut, unless you are very sure your friend is a person who is big enough to take criticism and profit by it.

Has Another Girl's Friendship Ring

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I go steady with a boy I have known all my life, and I like him very much. He gave me a friendship ring that belonged to his ex-girl friend who returned it when she broke up with him. I knew it was her ring when he gave it to me, but I didn't say anything.

Now I hear that the girl he used to go with feels hurt because he gave me her ring, and she says I should feel ashamed to show it to anybody because they all know it belonged to her. Please tell me what to do, because I feel very bad about the whole situation.

"Troubled."

Dear "Troubled":

I think perhaps it would have been a little more thoughtful of your boy friend if he had got you a ring of your own instead of passing on to you one that was returned to him.

However, since you accepted the ring, knowing it had belonged to the other girl, I think you had better let things stand as they are now, and try to ignore any silly gossip you hear. This other girl has no right to feel badly about the ring since she did not wish to keep it any more herself.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

(Mme. Qui Vive)

Temperamental Complexions

Some men, and many women, seem to enjoy lamenting about their sensitive skins. It is as if this affliction gives them a sort of social distinction. The girls bawl about cosmetic costs, tell how they have tried this cream and that, and nothing happens. The men diligently splash on lotions after shaving — also splashing the mirror over the washbowl, as every wife knows.

There are skins that belong to the touch-me-not class. They are temperamental, given to making themselves obnoxious — like some individuals. Some of them blaze up and look feverish when they come in contact with soap suds. There are others that let you know they don't like creams. All these are tough to deal with. But there is one way of getting the best of them, and that is to apply one of those soothing semi-liquid, milky hand lotions. They quiet down almost at once. But lotions are not cleansers, and something has to be done if one is to have a clean face.

The thing to do is to remove make-up with a thin cream; if the epidermal coating does not like it, remove the cream at once. Then dip a thick, large washcloth in warm water, sprinkle cosmetic meal over it, and pass it over the flesh lightly.

These toiletries are not as popular as they should be. They remove atmospheric dust and dead skin scales, performing perfectly as cleansing agents. The starchy content of the meal is soothing to a rebellious skin. When rinsing it away, use tepid water. Neither hot nor cold water is desirable for a skin that reddens easily.

The excessively dry skins needs corrective treatment, as it is in condition to take on premature wrinkles. A thin cream should be used for cleansing purposes, to allay the ravages of strong sunlight or harsh winds. A heavier cream should be frictioned into the flesh at bedtime.

The more massage the skin receives, the better the glands will function. Sebaceous glands, designed for the purpose of keeping the surface of the flesh soft and smooth, have practically gone out of business on arid flesh. It is believed that this sitdown strike is caused by insufficient amounts of fat in the diet. A normal complexion may become dry and flaked when the plump woman goes on a reducing spree, cutting fats down to the limit.

Massage should consist of light tapping movements. The flesh should never be drawn taut or pressed upward around the eyes. Never fail to give the same attentions to the neck, unless you want face and neck to have a color divorce, the throat appearing darker. When the skin is dry, allow the cream to remain on over night.

FRONTIER U.

By Oren Arnold

"Of course," Ken agreed. "Kill quickly, if it's a kill hunt. Otherwise be decent."

"That's the ticket."

"You say these cats are predatory?"

"Gosh, yes. Worst in America. They kill thousands of horses, calves, deer, antelope, goats and sheep. They killed the mother of Joy's fawn, remember? The U.S. Government has to keep professional hunters out all the time to keep the lions down. We ranchers help when we can."

"Think of that!"

"Look, Ken. This is your lion We'll string him on a long pole and get him to camp easy, then make a safe cage for him. But will you let me pay you the $100 for him?"

"I didn't get him!" Ken protested. "Joy did. And you!"

The girls hadn't heard that, were momentarily out of earshot.

"Nope. It was yours by rights. you just let her step in for fun, and I helped you. Now I'll pay you first thing back home. But need this cat right now. Promise?

Ken showed surprise, although he nodded. "Okay, but . . ."

Ward turned from him. "Miss Boone, ma'am!" he called, seriously. "Come here, please . . . Now Ken has given me this lion, and I hereby take pleasure in, uh . . ."

All at once Ward turned crimson. He couldn't have said why!

"Ward!" Joy breathed, stooping over. Ward was squatting near the beautiful beast.

"I'm aiming to say," he resumed "that you and him, you and he, are both blond, and both full of spunk, ma'am. You both got plenty of nerve in your respective fields, and we all admire you for it. Both of you. I figure you two ought to be together. You said you like pets. You helped rope this one. Well, ma'am . . . he's yours."

Joy's lovely blue eyes looked straight at Ward. The other people were silent. Ward stood up to take his hat and gesture it with at the lion there on the ground before them.

All at once Joy threw her arms around Ward and kissed him.

She backed away instantly and said, "Thanks! More than I can tell you! No man ever gave me such lovely gifts before! Not like the fawn and this!"

"HEY!" James Glenn the photographer shouted that. "I wasn't set for that one. You'll have to do it over, Miss Joy. Swell picture!"

"Hold on!" Ward looked distressed. But the others kidded him out of it, made him stand there while Joy gave him her kiss of thanks again.

This time, it seemed to Ward, the kiss was different. Before it had been of the "pop" variety, and could be accepted as such. But the re-enactment — lordy! Ward turned more crimson than ever. Her lips seemed to cling much longer, not just in posing, but in something more meaningful. Never, never in all his twenty-six years had Ward McMurray experienced anything so thouroughly delightful, so utterly overwhelming.

He didn't do or say anything about it. He appeared to dismiss it casually. But he turned more or less automatically to his sister, and realized guiltily that Polly had seen through his very soul.

"Sis, you . . . you know how I felt back there!" He murmured half an hour later when the party was riding slowly back to camp again. They were side by side, alone. The lion was tied to a long sapling pole, one end of which was dragging and the other tied to Ken's saddle, Indian fashion.

She nodded. "You impressed her, Ward," Polly whispered.

"You think, maybe . . .?" The yearning shone through him again.

"I know so, Ward! You're making headway. I can tell. Don't try to rush her yet. Keep acting indifferent. But you've made progress!"

"It's a hell of a thing, being in love!" the young man growled.

Polly said no more although she might have agreed to that. She herself had seen the man she loved "take hold" today. Seen him rise above his cloistered, bookish self and become the man she knew he could be in a man's outdoors. But she had failed wholly to find any personal encouragement.

Back at camp the captured lion of course created excitement in Dr. Palmer, Bettina Carlson, and Mr. McMurray, Sr. Joy Boone having a live panther was Joy Boone "in character" still, they all knew.

"I'm not sure what you can do with him," Dr. Palmer teased. "He might disrupt the college classes. But Fiesta del sol is coming up in a few weeks now, in Pheonix. Perhaps you and your lion . . ."

"What's that?" Joy asked. "Fiesta del what? What is it?"

"Fiesta del sol." Mr. McMurray supplied, affably. "Festival of the sun. Big Spanish celebration every autumn in town. Really big doin's, missy. The queen is always chosen from the Frontier University girls. Popular vote. Now you, with a pet lion . . . whoo!"

All eyes again were on Joy Boone, who stood there beaming.

James Glenn, picture magazine photographer, sent his negatives to New York by air mail and himself departed that night with Terry Brookfield. Glenn wired back two days later that the magazine would use four pages of Joy Boone and her western activities in the issue of November 1, also a cover in full color.

"That will be just before the Fiesta del sol starts," Polly told her. "It opens on Armistice Day."

Brookfield's syndicated features about Joy ran for a week in nearly 200 American newspapers. They too were illustrated, with some additional photos he had bought from Glenn. Joy Boone's fame soared to a new high—and with it this time was Frontier University. People coast to coast, who had never heard of this little college for girls at Phoenix, Arizona, now we're intimate with it in some detail. Hundreds of letters requesting catalogues or discriptive matter began to pour in . . . to the distress of Dr. Palmer.

"I deeply regret, Bettina," he said one October evening to Joy Boone's secretary, "that the university has to gain its renown on superficial publicity. That is to say, on extra-curricular activities, you understand. Why shouldn't its scholastic ideals have been the media for publicity approach?

Bettina smiled. "No, Kenyon. America isn't like that. We are a great, sprawly, hilarious kind of nation. Magnificent really, but a trifle devil-may-care. We like to read about our Joy Boones catching lions alive! Not that we dislike our colleges—but, Kenyon, why don't you take advantages of this yourself? You could write an article for one of the literary periodicals and present Frontier from your point of view! I'm sure of it. I know two or three of the editors myself who might be interested."

Dr. Palmer brightened. "Will you help me write it?"

"Of course. If I can."

"You can. We see eye to eye We have discussed it at length, have we not? I respect your critical acumen, your astuteness of judgement. You are not only a highly educated woman, you are a brilliant humanitarian, Bettina.

"Goodness!"

"I mean it! I hardly need say I admire you very much. Now as to our article—Frontier was established to preserve those very ideals of Americanism to which you refer,especially the western pioneer culture. It is ground into us. It is part of our western heritage here. This Fiesta del sol which is interesting the young folk now—it is but a tradition of beauty from the past. Quaint and lovely folk custom, brought somewhat into modern tempo. I am most anxious to see it. Now in our article, I suggest . . ."

They talked it out at length, and in three days they had written it and sent it in. Moreover, it sold at once. The editor telegraphed his acceptance and thanks. Dr. Palmer was elated. When Bettina Carlson refused to share in the $500 the article earned, he sent her a box of flowers and a beautiful new Indian rug for her room. He was like a boy with enthusiasms!

"You ought to see Tootsy Carlson," Joy confided to Polly that next day after the gift. "She giggles like a high school kid! Honest, Polly, she's the in-lovest somebody I ever saw."

"Isn't it sweet!"

"Un Hunh. But Tootsie's fourty.

"And Dr. Palmer's fourty-three. What does that matter, Joy? If you love somebody, you love somebody, and that's that! I think it's grand!"

"Do you think he'll ever ask her to marry him? Goodness, what would I do without Tootsy!"

Polly laughed. "She wouldn't necessarily desert you, would she? Anyway it might happen. He's shy like Ken. With girls, I mean. But he's so much fun!"

"I think he's more like your brother."

Polly looked closely at the other girl. "How so, Joy?"

"Oh, something solid and fine. And dignified. Hadn't you noticed? Dr. Palmer faces any excitement without loss of posie. So does Ward. And—" Joy sighed. "They are equally aloof. I never knew a boy as hard to make friends with as your brother!"

Polly's heart leaped a bit.

"The girls are all crazy about him," Joy went on.

"What girls?"

"All of them! Of us, I mean. The college crowd. Haven't you heard them talk? No, you wouldn't, of course; you're his sister. But they do! And he won't see a one of us for sour apples!"

"Why, Joy!" Polly pretended exasperation, smiling.

"It's a fact. Listen, you could do me a favor, chillun— that's Ward's favourite word for his friends—you could. You could put in a word for me. Rember, I'm your bosom pal!"

Polly laughed, happily. She didn't remind Joy of another bit of "fixing" a while back. She just said, "I'll try, maybe.But I have no power over Ward. He's independent as sunrise."

Joy sighed again. "You're telling me!"

But this week and the following, most of the 600 girls at Frontier University were increasing elaborate preparations for the Spanish fiesta. The celebration "feel" was already in the air

Great Spanish shawls, each 20 feet square, had been strung all over downtown Phoenix as street decorations, and every business house in the shopping area was festooned with the shawls and with gay banners in Mexico's red, yellow and green array. At Central and Adams, principal business streets, a sombrero as tall as a three story building occupied the intersection. A string orchestra played there from noon till midnight with radios carrying the music all over the state. More than half the population of Phoenix was already in Spanish costumes.

On the campus, the girls became senoritas about ten days ahead of time. Virtually all the parties and other social events were done now in Mexican or Spanish motif. Dances and songs from below the border soared with popularity. Young men even took to seranading their sweethearts with guitars outside the dormitory windows—while, incidently, all the other dormitory girls looked on.

Everywhere there was a 'spirit', as Dr. Palmer said. A feel of friendliness, of cares forgotten and let merriment reign. It was the genuine fiesta spirit taking hold.

Meantime, too, the Frontier campus was more and more astir about its selection of fiesta queen. Who would lead the grand parade on March 11? Who should be crowned in the great hall in Civic Auditorium? Who should accept all the gifts from neighboring cities in behalf of Phoenix? Who should pose for the news reels and the countless amateur cameramen, grant the press interviews, be the admired one for the whole five days of the fiesta?

Who indeed but Polly McMurray! Or Joy Boone!

This season Frontier had but two outstanding personalities among its students. They were "naturals", people said. But which? The rivalry was an inevitable as it was genuine.

"The choice is to be made by popular vote on the University campus," said the Phoenix morning newspaper, editorily. "So far every indication seems to point to Miss Boone. She is nationally renowned. Her backers say she has done more for Frontier than any other student the school ever had, by putting it in the national spotlight.. Miss Boone is known as America's personality Girl and as such is featured elaborately in the current issue of a national picture magazine. She also was the subject of a recent news reel shorts, and of a series of articles syndicated to leading newspapers everywhere. In each instance the university figured prominently also. The local Chamber of Commerce feels that this is extremely valuable publicity which could not be bought at any price, and that appreciation of some kind should be given to Miss Boone."

On the other hand, as the newspaper editor also stated, Polly McMurray had a powerful backing on the campus too. It grew more powerful after that editorial appeared and after a radio commentator made mention of it.

Matters snowballed in interest so that the excitement extended quite beyond the campus and town and out into the ranch country, all over the state! To Dr. Palmer's astonishment, rural residents began to write in their opinions; ranch men, and women as well. One and all sprung to defend Polly.

"It's high time we got to backing one of our own daughters," declared big Travis Cox, president of the Arizona Cattle Dealers Association. "We helped set up that university. Miss Polly is Buck McMurray's own child. I aim to stick by her, myself."

Travis Cox was a power in both business and politics of this state. His opinion and sentiment always carried weight.

"The upshot," said the morning newspaper a few days later, "is that a mass meeting has been called on the Frontier campus with the avowed purpose of 'doing something about it'. Exactly who will do that isn't known, but the ranchers are telephoning and talking and planning. In any event this year's fiesta will not lack interest for the public at large. And whichever girl is chosen,if it be either of these two, will rank high in both beauty and public favor."

As for Joy, she took all the hullabaloo of routine. Her life had been fraught with just such noisy attention. But Polly was shocked. She manouvered to stay out at the ranch as much as possible, away from people.

Losing interest—losing friends—she never went out any more—always too tired. "Nerves", she thought—but it was her kidneys—the filters of her blood—that needed attention. Both Wrestlers in Main Go Disqualified When Battle Continued Outside the Ring

Big Fred Atkins from away Down Under, British Empire wrestling champion, possibly had the better of his bout Saturday night with handsome Tug Carlson as the two were matched in a return bout at the Memorial Arena but in the end he gained no more plaudits than did his adversary.

For after some thirty-five minutes of heavy going in the squared ring during which time each had won a fall, the two wrestlers ended all even — both disqualified as they battered at each other on the arena floor. Even Referee Bert Maxwell was tossed out of the ring as at the finish Carlson went slightly berserk.

But the some fifteen hundred fans who attended the Saturday night wrestling card loved it and they yelled their collective approval as the two big men pummelled each other with their fists outside the ring.

Despite Atkins' roughhouse tactics which included more than a little hair pulling, the popular blonde lad from Arizona won the first fall after something like sixteen minutes when after bouncing off the ropes he secured a head scissors on the British Empire champion.

Both Disqualified

Carlson protested vigorously about the bandage which Atkins wore about his sore elbow but the referee ruled the bandage was to stay. And Atkins immediately took advantage to repeatedly rake the bandage across Carlson's eyes. The second fall went to Atkins in exactly ten minutes as the lad from Australia really roughed it up.

Disqualification of the both wrestlers came after only five minutes of the third bout when Carlson tossed both the referee and Atkins through the ropes and then went after Atkins on the arena floor.

In the semi-final Hi Lee from the Ozarks and Al. Lovelock of Kingston battled to a draw over the thirty minute route although Lee possibly was in better command of the situation.

After Lee had lugged Lovelock around with a punishing headlock the bout ended in a flurry of action as Referee Cliff Fox lost his shirt to Lovelock and the torn strips were used by both wrestlers in private neck - tie parties of their own.

Lee first got a bowline around Lovelock's neck and then that gentleman retaliated with a bigger and better one of his own.

In the preliminary Ben Sharpe won a popular decision over Frank Hewitt. Time 17 minutes.

Toronto Leafs Split Twin Bill With Buffalo

(By The Associated Press)

The pitching of Clyde King, cunning righthander of Montreal Royals, is one of the suprises of the International League pennant race.

The lanky King turned in his ninth victory as against only one loss Sunday as he twirled the Royals to a 6-2 victory over Baltimore Orioles in the second game of a twin bill. The Royals also won the opener, 4-1.

King limited the Orioles to four hits but two of them were homers by Ken Wood and Bingo Binks.

Clarence Podbielan, with help in the ninth from Turk Lown, stopped the Orioles on seven hits in the first game. John Bokan restricted the Royals to five hits but the five walks he issued cost him the game.

The victories enabled the Royals to move to within 2½ games of the leading Buffalo Bisons who divided a bargain bill with Toronto Maple Leafs, winning the nightcap 4-0 after dropping the opener 8-3.

Homers Did It

Toronto snowed the Bisons under with six home runs in the first game. Alex Garbowski, Hal Wagner, Bill Glynn, Johnny Welaj, Ed Sanicki and Johnny Blatnik walloped the roundtripps. Sanicki's belt was his 20th of the season.

Clem Hausmann shut the Leafs out on four hits in the finale. The Bisons scored all of their runs in the fifth with George Byam and Billy De Mars accounting for three of the markers with home runs.

Rochester Red Wings shelled Jersey City Giants 14-3 in a single game. The Wings piled up an 11-0 lead in three innings to enable Cloyd Boyer to coast to his seventh victory. Ed Mierkowicz hit hs eighth homer of the season for Rochester with two on in the second.

Syracuse's Chiefs turned back the last place Newark Bears twice 5-4 and 5-1. Johnny Hetki was pounded for 14 hits in the opener and finally gave way to Ken Burkhart in the ninth who stopped the Bears to protect Hetki's eighth victory.

Bud Byerly, former St. Louis Cardinal righthander, checked the Bears on six safeties in the nightcap.

North Electrics, Corbys Maintain Unbeaten Records

Both Northern Electric and Corbys maintained their undefeated and untied record intact last evening as they hammered out wins in a Commercial Softball League double leader at the Alemite Field. In the opener the Electrics downed Provincial Engineers 11-1 while in the nightcap Corbys swamped the Anti-Tank 21-1.

Two walks, two singles, and a double netted the Electrics three runs in the first frame and they were away and never headed. A single, two walks and a long fly in the third counted one more tally for Northern.

Bawden came in to relieve Farrar in the fourth and was hammered for a double, triple and single for three runs in the fifth and four more tallies in the sixth on Locke's four master to left centre field.

Engineers garnered their lone tally in the fourth when Bawden singled home Hanna who had reached first on an error.

Engineers started Farrar who worked three frames striking out four, walking four, and giving up four hits for four runs. Bawden went to the rest of the route walking none, striking out two, and giving up five hits for seven runs.

Big man at the plate was Northern first baseman Locke, with a homer, a double, and a single in three trips.

Romp To Win

In the nightcap Corbys romped through a makeshift Anti Tank squad scoring almost at will in every inning but the first, to take a lop-sided 21-1 win. The issue was never in doubt as Anti Tank shuffled twelve players in and out of the game in an attempt to halt the carnage.

Anti-Tank used three pitchers in a vain effort to stem the Corby tide rushing Keith Kimmett into the breach when starter Wright faltered in the fifth after walking five, and being nicked for nine hits and 13 runs, many of them unearned. Kimmett fared no better being knocked out in the sixth by Ray Nolan's grand slam homer to centre field after having walked four men, striking out one, and giving up one hit for seven runs.

Glen Kimmett came to his brother's rescue and was nicked for a walk, a single and another run.

Anti Tank scored their lone run in the third stanza when Lally, who had walked and stolen second, romped home on a single by Kokesh.

Corbys started Baldwin who worked three innings for the victory. He struck out three, walked one, and gave up two hits for one run. Halloran went four frames in relief giving up one hit, walking one, and striking out three.

GOOD CITIZENSHIP is a lot of little things

TRIBUTE TO A GOOD NEIGHBOR

Good neighbors mean as much to nations as to individuals. There's mighty little bickering over the longest border line in the world. And, as Canadians, we can be proud of our part in this happy relationship. Therefore, on the occasion of Independence Day, the Fourth of July, we salute the people next door—the people of the United States. Let us welcome those who spend the holiday in the Land of the Maple Leaf. Let us make their visit a pleasant one. That's "Good Citizenship".

You can help this public service effort. Make a note of some of the little things which, in your opinion, contribute to Good Citizenship.

Johnny Pesky 'Setting Tables' Again and Boston Red Sox Climb Into Thick of Race

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Boston Red Sox are devouring everything in sight these days, largely because little Johnny Pesky is "setting the table" for sluggers Ted Williams and Vern Stephens.

Pesky is the lad whose name you never see among the home-run and runs-batted-in leaders, but year in and year out, he's around the top in hits, runs scored and batting percentage.

Johnny has hit safely in Boston's last 12 games, scoring in all but two. The Red Sox have won 10 of them. Their 5-3 triumph over St. Louis Browns Sunday was their fifth in a row and moved them into third place by two percentage points over Detroit.

In Boston's four - game sweep over the Browns, Johnny collected 12 hits and scored nine times. Coincidentally, Williams batted in 11 runs and Stephens seven.

Boston now is only five games behind the league - leading New York Yankees. The Yankees were held to a split in their doubleheader with the Tigers. Ed Lopat ended a four - game losing streak, pitching the Yankees to a 6-2 triumph in the opener, but the Tigers came back to pound Vic Raschi and Frank Shea for a 12-4 second game win.

Pat Mullin replaced the slumping Johnny Groth for Detroit, and slammed out three home runs in the nightcap. He hadn't connected for any before Sunday. The loss was the second for the 11-game winning Raschi.

A's Divide

Runner - up Philadelphia also divided a twin-bill. The A's beat Chicago White Sox 4-2 on pinch hitter Wally Moses' three - run double in the eighth, but the Sox came back to win the second 3-0. Bob Kuzava and Marino Pieretti combined to spin the shutout. Pieretti replaced Kuzava with two on and none out in the eighth and halted the Mackmen.

A pair of walks, a single by Ken Keltner and a double by Bob Kennedy gave Cleveland two runs in the 10th inning and a 3-1 verdict over the Senators in Washington. Steve Gromek, who pitched one - hit ball over the last five innings, edged out Sid Hudson in the hurling duel.

Brooklyn protected its one - half game edge over St. Louis in the National League, running roughshod over Pittsburgh 15-3. A 10-run seventh inning broke up any semblance of a ball game. The second game of the doubleheader was called at the end of three innings because of Pennsylvania's Sunday curfew. The Dodgers were ahead 5-4 but all records are wiped off. In the opening game, Don Newcombe breezed through to his fifth victory. He has lost one.

Cards Keep Pace

The Cards kept pace with the Dodgers as Red Munger shut out Boston Braves 2-0 with a four-hitter. He also slammed his first major - league homer. It came off Glen Elliott, the loser.

Cincinnati Reds slowed up the onrushing Philadelphia Phils, knocking them off in both ends of a doubleheader, 4-3 and 5-2. The Reds won the opener in the 10th when pinch-hitter Homer Howell doubled Lloyd Merriman in from second. Herm Vehmeier gained his second victory in the nightcap.

Playing without Leo Durocher, their fiery manager, New York Giants salvaged the finale of a three-game series from Chicago Cubs 6-2. Durocher was penalized five days and fined $150 by league president Ford Frick for an altercation with an umpire Saturday.

Dave Koslo held the Cubs to seven hits for his third victory.

Robinson, Reese Sure Starters In All-Star Game

Chicago, June 27.— (AP) — Jackie Robinson and Peewee Reese, both of Brooklyn, have virtually cinched starting assignments in the National League's lineup against the American League in the 16th annual all-star baseball game in Brooklyn, July 12.

Robinson, Dodger second baseman and league batting star, is far ahead in the country-wide ballotting of his closest rival, Red Schoendienst of St. Louis Cardinals. He has polled 884,157 votes to Schoendienst's 506,214.

Reese has an advantage of 111,308 votes over his nearest pursuer, Marty Marion of the Cardinals. Reese's latest count was 693,945.

The poll will end at midnight Wednesday but it will take several days before final tabulations are completed.

Newark Paper Breaks Relations With Ball Club

Newark, N.J., June 27. (AP) —The Newark Star-Ledger and Newark Bears of the International Baseball League have broken diplomatic relations.

It all started Saturday night, when the Star-Ledger announced it would omit the Bears from the International League standings on its sports pages.

The newspaper said the Bears, who have been trailing the league lately, "obviously do not belong in triple 'A' competition."

It said it would list the Bears under the heading of "exhibition games" until the team's showing improved.

Parke Carroll, Bears general manager, didn't seem to see anything funny about it.

Sunday night he called the Stark-Ledger a 'fair-weather' friend, and wired that he assumed they would be recalling Jim Ogle, sports writer assigned to the club.

The Ledger promptly did so.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, June 27. (AP)—Latest gadget proposed for golfers, the United States Golf Association Journal says, is a golf ball containing some radioactive substance and a detector, like a pocket-size Geiger counter, to locate said ball when it is lost, by means of its radioactive emanations . . . .Honest to gosh, the U.S.G.A. was asked if it would approve such a gadget. . . What most golfers need isn't a Geiger counter, but an honest counter to record those strokes taken when he's in the deep woods with nobody in sight.

Monday Matinee

President indications are that Lloyd Mangrum (1946) will be the only United States open Golf champion on the Ryder Cup team this year. Cary Middlecoff isn't eligible; Ben Hogan won't be able to play and Lew Worsham hasn't reached enough tournament points. . . .Although nobody got rich from last week's pro tennis championships, one reliable report is that Elwood Cooke, a non-touring pro, earns $40,000 a year from his tennis activities.

End of Line

The argument between Madison Square Garden and the Boxing Managers Guild, supposedly settled a couple of weeks ago, is due for another airing in a day or so. . . . Mobile, Ala., fans wonder if any prep coach has a better record than Ray Dicharry of McGill High. In three years his football teams have won 18, lost nine and tied one; Basketball 71 and four and baseball 39 and four. Peppy Blount Texas' football-playing legislator, is considering making a race for either state land commissioner or commissioner of agriculture . . .

Trenton Tennis Club Victorious

The Trenton Tennis Club served up some smooth tennis Friday evening when they downed Section 2 of the Quinte Tennis Club four matches to one in a Bay of Quinte Tennis League set-to- in Trenton.

The visitors managed to salvage the first match of men's doubles after dropping the first set 5-7 to the host club. All other matches were fiercely contested with the winners being extended in almost every case.

2. Gerry Ireland and Gord Ault (Trenton) beat Dan Cowley and Jack Watson, (Quinte) 6-3, 10-8.

Dutch Harrison Wins Canadian Open With 271

Toronto, June 27 — (CP) — Wise - cracking Dutch Harrison of Little Rock, Ark., the affable golfman with the sharp answers at the right moment, today was off for more glory on the American tournament circuit with the Canadian Open crown the latest proof of just how good he can be.

Dutch matched wise-cracks for strokes in his 17-under-par total of 271 to take the title first-prize money of $2,000 cash and the Seagram gold cup in the 40th edition of the Dominion's golf classic ended Saturday.

Bashful Bill Kerr of Montreal led the Canadian contingent, just two strokes behind Jim Ferrier of Chicago who took second-place $1,400 with a 273 score.

Ferrier, on his final round, made a shambles of the par-72 St. George's Club layout with a blistering 65, an all-time low on the 6,645 - yard course. He birdied seven holes — three on the outgoing nine and four in the backstretch — and parred all others.

Australia-born Ferrier went practically unnoticed in the final 18-hole round. The crowds passed him up early in favor of the Harrison and Kerr three-somes, but a huge gallery bunched around the 18th green gave him a big hand when he two-putted the 460-yard hole for his final birdie.

Three Tied for Third

Jim Turnesa, the Elmsford, N.Y. pro, and Fred Hawkins of Antioch, Ill., shared third place with Kerr. The Montrealer, a big favorite with the gallery, received $816 for his third-spot effort and another $250 as leading Canadian pro.

Defending champion Chuck Congdon of Tacoma, Wash., picked $350 with a 280-total. Bespectacled Skip Alexander of Lexington, N. C., and Dick Metz, Virginia Beach, Va., won $500 each with their 278 total and Jerry Barber of Los Angeles, Cal., was one stroke ahead or Congdon and received $400.

Low amateur honors were taken by Nick Weslock of Detroit, with 287. Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener was second among the simon - pures with 294.

The 33-year-old Harrison made it look easy — and had lots of fun — in his successive 66-67-67 rounds. He joked with the crowds, sympathized or congratulated his opponents on practically every shot and when it came his turn he just "took deadly aim and fired."

Star Reward Scores Victory Over Coaltown

(By The Canadian Press)

Star reward scored an upset victory Saturday over the favored coaltown in winding the $27,800 Equipoise mile at Chicago's Arlington Park. Carrara Marble was third.

It was Coaltown's first defeat this season after registering eight consecutive victories. The Calumet Flyer went to the post a 1-to-5 favorite.

Edmonton Waterloo Mercurys, Western Intermediate "A" Hockey Champions last season, may be Canada's entry in the next world amateur hockey championships at London, England, Dr. George Hardy, executive member of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, announced at Edmonton. Dr. Hardy said he had been authorized by A. W. Pickard of Regina, C.A.H.A. president, to enter into discussions with the Edmonton Club's management.

At Montreal, Art Jackes, a member of Canada's 1948 Olympic team, leaped six feet, two inches to shatter the high jump record at the 90th running of the Caledonian games here Saturday which brought pipers, dancers and track men here from all parts of Ontario and Quebec. Jackes, of Montreal, jump added four inches to the former record set by Ian Hume in 1939.

Joan Gow of Cornwall, won the Lt.-Col. Stevenson perpetual cup for championship in highland dancing for entrants 16 and over.

Alberto D., the favorite and Heath Fire ran a dead heat Saturday to take the Appas Tappas Allowance, feature even at the Hamilton Jockey Club's second day of racing. Tularch ran a close third in a field of 10. Each jockey received from Charlie Oliver (Appas Tappas) after whom the feature is named, a taken one boot and a promisory note to pick up the other later.

At Forest Hills, N.Y., Bobby Riggs of Altadena, Calif., Sunday won the National Professional Tennis Championship by subduing Don Bulge of Oakland, Calif., 9-7, 3-6, 6-3, 7-5. It was the fourth time this pair of west-coast rivals had met in the finals of the pro event, and it was the third victory for Riggs.

The title last year went to Jack Kramer, who declined to defend in order to watch the Wimbledon championships in London.

At Ottawa, Carleton Place Canoe Club paddlers won top honors Saturday in a Canadian Canoe Association Northern Division Regatta. Carleton Place rolled up 45 points to beat out Ottawa New Edinburghs with 19 points and the Ottawa Rideau Club with 14.

At Edmonton, the Alberta Amateur Hockey Association tonight refused to sanction entry of the Edmonton Athletic Club into the Western Canada Junior Hockey League next season. Instead, the Association proposed that a composite Edmonton and District Hockey Association entry be accepted by the W.C.J.H.L. The club would be composed of the pick of the four junior teams which play in the Northern Alberta circuit.

Cincinnati Sunday welcomed home its new N.B.A. heavyweight boxing champion, Ezzard Charles, who won the title in a bout with Joe Walcott at Chicago last Wednesday, was greeted by thousands when he arrived back in his home town. Mayor Albert Cash proclaimed Sunday "Ezzard Charles Day".

Frankford Team Wins 2 Straight

Frankford— Frankford-Sidney League Softball Club made it two htraight over the Batawa team, as they handed the Shoemen a 17-3 shallacking on their own diamond Wednesday night. Montgomery started for Frankford, with Bates coming on in the third and Mikel in the seventh. Montgomery received credit for the win. Every player on the Frankford team hit safely, except Mikel, who did not have a time at bat. Batawa collected all three runs in the first inning, and from that time, were held to three scattered hits and no runs.

Batawa 300 000 0— 7 3 5
Frankford 123 036 2—22 17 1

Frankford-Sidney League Softball Club met Batawa in a postponed game in Batawa Thursday night. It was an entirely different club which took the field for Batawa, from the team that Frankford met the night before. The Batawa boys outplayed Frankford all the way, gained a well-deserved victory.

Batawa 512 405 0—15 17 3
Frankford 601 003 0—12 10 5

Frankford Merchants Softball Club really got a bad one out of their systems Tuesday night in Hastings, as they ended up on the short end of a 26-13 score. It was one of those games when the boys couldn't seem to do anything right. Rankin and Chase worked in the box for the Merchants, with Murphy behind the plate. In the opening game, with Hastings, Frankford had played to a 12 all tie.

Wooler and Frankford tangled in the best game of the Trent Valley League to date in Stirling Thursday night. Rosenplott besteo Boyle in a real pitching duel, winding up with a 5-3 victory for Wooler. Chase homered with one on for Frankford, and Rankin singled in the other run. Boyle was out in a close play at the plate. This play might have been the turning point in the game, as it was very disputable as far as the Frankford team was concerned.

Batawa Shoemen Take Firm Grip On First Place

Batawa Shoemen took a firm grip on first place in the Bay of Quinte Soccer League Saturday afternoon when they handed Belleville United a 7-1 defeat at the Fair Grounds.

The Shoemen played a superior brand of ball as they swept to victory, dominating the play at all times. Centre forward Hrywnak for the Shoemen had a field day as he accounted for six of his team's seven counters. Zriebel got the other Batawa tally.

United's only goal was scored by left inside, Lane. United did get the ball in the Batawa goal a second time but the goal was disallowed because of an off-side.

Belleville United: goal, Blaker; backs, Hay and Findlay; halves Gee. Blakely and Finden; forwards, Wilkinson. Scott, Farara, Lane and Cathcart; subs, Rudd, Terry, Colclough.

Referee: Les Digby.

Oshawa Defeats Bata Shoemen By 4-3 Count

Oshawa, June 27 — (CP) — Oshawa Merchants, although spotting Batawa Shoemen three runs in the first inning of their Central Ontario Baseball League game Saturday, were extended to the limit to nose out a 4-3 decision and keep within a half game of the pace-setting Peterborough Marines.

Ross Knights got off on the wrong foot when the first batter Cec Solmes dropped an unattended pop near the box and the next, Ken Peacock, bunted safely. A bad error throw to first by Knights, a fumbled ball on a tag out, a timely single by Mac Watson gave Batawa three runs on as many hits and the two errors.

After that Knights settled down and scattered only four hits over the distance.

Mac Smith hurled good ball for the Shoemen but one error proved costly. He blanked the Merchants until the sixth when Johnny Kitchen singled with one out and George Ticcony was safe on an error at short. Both scored on Fred Bidgood's sharp double but two more mates couldn't bring him home.

Oshawa won the game in the eighth when Hill Cook opened with a two bagger and Ticcony singled with one out. Bidgood failed but with two out "Red" Jubenville poled a double to centre, scoring the tying and winning runs.

Powerful 6 RD Team Defeats Northern Electric

The powerful 6 R. D. entry in the Bay of Quinte Soccer League booted in two goals without a reply in the first half of their game with the Northern Electric squad at the air station Friday evening and shut out the planters in the second half to take a hard fought 2-0 victory.

A wet slippery field handicapped the fast stepping squads and kept down the scoring.

Law, at right wing for the airmen, drove one post Northern goalie Jones, at the ten minute mark of the first half. Davidson at left wing added the clincher at the 35 minute mark.

Northern Electric: goal, Jones; backs, C. Williamson and Murphy; halves, Longhurst, Cartier and J. Williamson; forwards, Rappel, Salter, Cully, Cathcart, O'Bryan.

6 R. D., goal, Hodgeson; backs, Whyte and Adcock; halves, Hughes, Walls and Evans; forwards, Law, Johns, Miller, Faulkner and Davidson; subs., Bauron, Vaudrey and Angus.

Referee: Eaton; linesmen: Wilkins and Shettler.

Seldom will bidding go wrong if it follows the order of choice in T-A-N; takeout, assist, no-trump. It is first necessary, of course, for each player to know the basis of tricks for his first bid.

An opening one bidder promises, among other things, five tricks. Before hearing from partner, two tricks are assumed to be there. Each raise in number by either shows another trick.

Bid this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠K Q 10 9 6 2
♦A K 6
♣Q 5

NORTH
♠J 4 3
♥K 4 3 2
♦Q 8 5 2
♣A 4

Bidding goes thus:

South	North
1 S	1 NT
2 S	3 S
4 S	Pass

South showed five tricks by his opening. Over one no-trump, his raise to two spades showed a sixth trick. Over three spades, his raise to four spades shows a seventh trick. He has them.

North has no biddable suit for a takeout. Nor has he adequate support for an assist of spades bid only once. Therefore, his first response is one no-trump to show his three high cards.

When south rebids spades, three cards in that suit are enough for support. So, following T-A-N; north assists on the second round. How many tricks has he promised so far?

Over one spade, one no-trump is not a raise. When this happens, it is usually just as well.

Leave well enough alone.

Little Benny's Note Book

This morning ma was eating her grapefruit diet with a thawtful expression, saying to pop, Do you beleeve in mental affinity, William? I mean do you think it's possible that an ordinerry husband and wife, after they've shared the same life for years and years, can grow so mutch alike that they actually share each other's thawts and know each other's feelings? she said.

I can only speek for myself, my dear, and speeking for myself I'll go on record as saying that I am like a weather vane terning in the slightest breezes of your inmost thawts, pop said. I am as responsible to your mood as a poet is responsive to the changes of Nature, and if I don't anticipate your every wish it's only because I am occasionally inclined to be a bit absent minded, he said, and ma said, Then in that case, you have absolutely no excuse.

Really? pop said, and ma said, Absilutely. Last nite I didn't get to sleep for hours, thinking of the thousand and one things I'm planning to do today and wondering how I'd ever get started, much less finished. I tossed and terned as quietly as I could, so as not to wake you up, she said.

I'm sure I appriciate your thawtfulness, pop said, and ma said, And I must say I'd be appriciated of your thawtfulness if you had reterned mine. I mean there's a grain of truth in your statement that you feel a subconscious reflection of all my thawts and feelings, it was nuthing but pure selfishness that kept you from waking up and advising me to stop fretting and go to sleep, she said.

My dear, let me anticipate a couple of your desires rite now and suggest that we eat up on the Avenue and take in a movie this evening, pop said.

Being the end of a happy subject.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma took me down town on account of us both needing things, and we went into the Zipper Tea Room for some ice creem to cool off, and ma said, My, what a sad and folorn looking person.

Meening some lady drinking tea at a little round table by herself, being a thin lady not big enough for her clothes, and ma said, My, look at that hat, it looks like a remnant from last year's Ark. And with all that she reminds me almost of Arleen La Roo in a dim way. I meen her general feetures. If anybody ever told that woman she looked like one of the best dressed movie stars, the poor soul would probably faint with bliss, ma said.

Well jimmies, ma, why don't you pretend you reely think she's Arleen La Roo and go over and ask her for her autograff and make her happy for the rest of the day and maybe for the rest of her life? I said, and ma said, Don't be silly, and yet why not? Women are so vain, she'll probably never sispect I'm not really serious. After all, if I have a chance to do a good deed, who am I to be held back by a little white lie? she said.

And she took her paper napkin and went over to the lady, saying, Oh, Miss La Roo, will you please autograff my napkin so I'll always remember the Zipper Tea Room with a thrill?

This too mutch, the lady said. Here I go to all the bother of borrowing some old clothes from the hotel chamber maid and going out with my hair stringy and my face a neglected mess, and I'm reckonized by the ferst person that sees me, she said, and ma said, Oh dear, I had no idea you really were Arleen La Roo.

You better have your head examined, the lady said, Excuse me, I'm sure.

And she went out quick without finishing her ice creem or even letting me finish it.

REDCOATS RETURN — Troops in authentic uniforms of 1749 marched under the eye of a 1949-vintage sergeant-major in the parade opening Halifax's bicentennial celebration. More than 3,000 servicemen from Maritime points took part in the three-mile-long march-past. (C.P. Photo).

Golf Chatter

The Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club retained the Branscombe Challenge Cup over the weekend by defeating the Port Hope golf team 2 up. Dr. Faulkner and Harry Ridley were the local shotsmiths. A. J. Kemlo and Cecil Clarke made the unsuccessful challenge for Port Hope.

The Bay of Quinte Golf Club downed the Port Hope Golf Club by six points in an inter club match on Sunday.

Sweepstake winners on the weekend were: Low gross, Dr. Faulkner and Mike Aquafredda tied with 81. First low net went to Bill Miller Jr. with a sizzling 66. He was trailed by A. Lauzom, Port Hope with 69, B. Ashby, Port Hope, 71, and W. Meadows also of Port Hope with 72.

Honest score went to Pug Bradden with a whooping 142.

The Port Hope Golf Club will play host to local golfers in an inter club match Sunday, July 10.

The 36 hole Quinte Cup match will be played off Wednesday, June 29, with many players from the surrounding district expected to take part.

Ontario-Wide Drive For Safety Planned

Widening its cospe to include all Ontario, the Kiwanis Safe Driving and Walking Campaign for 1949 will be the most auspicious and widespread non-governmental traffic safety drive in the history of Canada.

In making this decision, the Kiwanis Safety Council is influenced by the striking success which the campaign achieved in 1948 when, as a crusade organized by a public-spirited group of citizens, it was operated in the Toronto area only.

Officials of the Kiwanis Safety Council emphasize that, while the activity is sponsored as a public service project primarily by Kiwanis Clubs throughout Ontario, all service clubs and other organizations in urban and rural communities throughout the province are invited to participate.

The campaign will continue this year from June to December, and will have the support of Lieutenant - Governor Lawson, Prime Minister Frost, Highways Minister Doucett, Toronto's Mayor McCallum and Chief Constable Chisholm, and the mayors and provincial and municipal police throughout Ontario.

It is anticipated that the Campaign will continue right through to the end of December in order that its effect will be reflected in traffic accident figures during the high-accident-rate months of October, November and December. Distribution of prizes will again be on merit and observers will include the provincial and all other Ontario police.

AGED SURVEYORS

Established in 1842, the Geological Survey of Canada has had a continuous history from that time to the present and is one of the oldest in the world.

FRANKFORD

Frankford — The Frankford Scout Troop has gained the friendship and services of a very fine leader. Mr. T. Churchill, assistant lockmaster at No. 6 lock, has been a Scoutmaster for a number of years in Belleville, and was in charge of one of the finest troops in the district.

Mr. Churchill attended the weekly meeting of the Frankford troup on Thursday night in the Community-Memorial Hall, and gave them a great deal of valuable instruction. Plans were made to have Mr. Churchill's former troop from Belleville out to Frankford for a camping holiday in the Tourist Park. The Frankford Troop will go all out to make them welcome.

The boys were offered the use of Mr. Churchill's boat in the Trent Canal, with the condition that it be properly used.

The local troop spent the earlier part of the evening raking up leaves and paper in the Memorial Park.

The Frankford Boy Scouts gave valuable assistance to the Lions Club in the booths, and in sale of tickets at the street carnival Wednesday night.

Glad to see that Scout John Bennett, Patrol leader of the Eagles is around and well again after suffering a sun stroke.

Allan Bamber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bamber, suffered severe cuts to the face when he fell from a swing at the Public School grounds on Monday.

The Lions Club street dance and carnival was in every way a great success. One of the largest crowds seen in years at a street carnival thronged Mill St. Wednesday night for the event. Games, bingo and dancing provided a full evening of entertainment for the citizens of Frankford, and the many visitors from out of town. Music for dancing was provided by Sherwood Reid and his Circle R. Rhythmers.

The Lions Club is truly grateful to the many friends who supported this project, and good substantial donation for the Trenton Hospital is the reward for their cooperation.

Study Expansion Of Generating Facilities at Falls

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 27 (CP)—American and Canadian officials will meet here today to study possible expansion of the power-generating facilities of Niagara Falls.

Representatives of the United States Federal Power Commission, the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, the New York Power Authority and the Niagara Falls Power Company will attend the conference.

Under consideration will be proposals for new Hydro plants on each side of the Niagara river below the falls. Such plants would take advantage of the full drop, or head, or about 310 feet.

The present facilities nearer the Falls use heads of water varying between 135 and 215 feet.

The Ontario Commission is prepared to spend $70,000,000 to $80,000,000 for such new generating facilities. The Niagara Falls Power Company is ready to spend $60,000,000 for a similar project on the American side of the river near Lewiston, N.Y.

Both projects would take water from the river above the Falls and carry it through conduits or canals four or five miles downstream to make use of the greater drop.

The projects depend upon a new international treaty which would make permanent the present temporary emergency diversion of water for power purposes.

Emergency diversion authorized in 1940 increased the allowances for the United States and Canada from 56,000 cubic feet a second to 89,000 cubic feet. These are due to end April 15, 1951.

The International Joint Commission reported 20 years ago that probably 100,000 cubic feet a second could be diverted without changing the appearance of the crest of the Falls.

The sessions of the conference will be closed to the public.

Skull of Priest Placed in Shrine

Midland, June 27 — (CP) — The skull of Saint Jean De Brebeuf, martyred Jesuit priest, was brought back to its original burial place here Saturday, for the first time in 300 years.

In a drizzling rain, hundreds of spectators watched as four men carried the skull in a silver reliquary and placed it overlooking the site of Fort Ste. Marie, where the Jesuit missionary was massacred in 1649 by the Iroquois Indians.

Following religious ceremonies the skull was taken back to Quebec, where parts of the skeleton are kept at the Jesuit College and the Hotel Dieu Convent.

Brebeuf was hacked and burned to death at the nearby Huron village of St. Ignace. His body was interred shortly afterwards beside the fort.

Three months later, the Jesuits were forced to burn Fort Ste. Marie because of Indian uprisings and they took Brebeuf's crudely-preserved body to nearby Christian Island. It was later buried in Quebec.

Clergy accompanying the pilgrimage included Archbishop Maurice Roy of Quebec, Bishop Chamemaut, Auxiliary Bishop of Montreal, and several Jesuit priests.

Strawberries Not Plentiful On Local Market

Strawberries appeared near the end of an exceptionally short season when on the Saturday market only a comparatively small quantity of berries were offered for sale.

Most of the berries offered were dark and small indicative of the tail end of the strawberry season. Prices ranged from 35 to 40 cents per box.

Gooseberries were offered for the first time with vendors asking 25 cents the box.

On the inside market eggs appeared a bit easier in price although the majority of farmers were asking 58 cents the dozen. A few farmers quoted 55 cents the dozen for firsts with mediums bringing two to three cents less.

The offering of fowl was fairly large with spring chicken selling at around 50 cents the pound. Mature fowl was to be had at prices down to 45 cents.

On the outside market new potatoes sold at 30 cents the berry box or at 85 cents the half peck. Old potatoes were 50 cents the peck and $2 per bushel. Lettuce was a dime per head; onions a dime per bunch; radishes a nickel and beets 15 cents the bunch.

Shelled peas were 35 cents the pint with unshelled peas selling at 15 and 20 cents the berry box.

Whitefish sold at 40 cents the pound.

Young pigs were plentiful with prices ranging from $12 to $13 each.

6 R.D. Defeats Electrics 2-0 In Soccer Match

Northern Electric Football Club was defeated by 6 R. D. 2-0 in a scheduled match in the Bay of Quinte District Association Football League on Saturday. The game was played on a rather wet field at the air station. Despite the weather a fair crowd was on hand to see the game.

From the first whistle 6 R. D. took control of the game and maintained it to the end. Northern, however, made many sudden attacks into the Air Force territory but lack of final polish in the goalmouth failed to register a tally.

6 R. D. scored both goals in the first half, both goals being scored by the outside men. Law, the outside left scored the first tally on a splendid rush at the eighteen minute mark. Eleven minutes later Davidson the outside right scored a similar goal from the right side.

Angus the starry 6 R. D. centre forward missed many a chance to add to the score but good defensive work on the part of the Northern defence and the wet ball prevented Angus from giving the final touch to the ball.

The second half saw no change in the scoring, but both teams missed many excellent opportunities. The game ended at 4:35, the final score 6 R.D. 2, Northern 0.

Police Blotter

City police on Saturday reported the recovery of a stolen auto which had been taken at Madoc last May 30th.

Robt. Poole, 122 South John Street, early today reported a car had been parked at that address since the carnival had played in the vicinity of the C.P.R. station. Investigation revealed it to be one stolen at Madoc more than three weeks ago.

Smith's Cartage on Bleecker Avenue, reported a break-in at their warehouse. Two windows were said to be broken but nothing was reported missing.

At midnight last night a woman on Bridge Street West reported that a man was attempting to molest young girls on that street at the top of Murney Hill. Police in the cruiser patrolled the area but were unable to find anyone answering to the description given. A Dufferin Avenue resident reported a tropical suit and matching tie had been taken from his auto parked in front of his home.

Vancouver —(CP)— A lantern-slide lecture on how to handle snakes held a practical twist when the American Society of Ichthyologists and Herpetologists met here. LIBERALS WIN 193 SEATS TO SCORE VICTORY

Two Senior Naval Officers Face Courts Martial

Each Facing Four Charges Arising From Carrier Mishap

Halifax, June 28 .(CP)—Separate court martial of two senior Canadian naval officers were scheduled to open here today. The hearings arose from the grounding of the aircraft carrier Magnificent off southwestern Nova Scotia, June 4.

The officers are Commodore G. R. (Gus) Miles, O.B.E., of Rothesay, N.B., and Lt.-Cmdr. W. D. F. Johnston, native of Barnstead, Surrey, England.

Each officer faces four similar charges. Commodore Miles was Magnificent's commanding officer when the Canadian Capital ship grounded on what an officer aboard that flat-top called a "submerged, unchartered rock" off White Point Beach, 70 miles from Halifax. Cmdr. Johnston was the carrier's navigating officer.

Charges Released

The charges were released in Halifax Monday by a naval court of inquiry. They said the officers:

"1. Negligently or by default stranded H.M.C.S. Magnificent;

"2. Negligently or by default hazarded H.M.C.S. Magnificent;

"3. Negligently or by default suffered H.M.C.S. Magnificent to be stranded; and

"4. Negligently or by default suffered H.M.C.S. Magnificent to be hazarded."

While Commodore Miles appeared today, the hearing of Cmdr. Johnson was scheduled for Wednesday.

The flag officer Atlantic coast—Rear Admiral E. R. Mainguy, O.B.E.,—presided over Commodore Miles' hearing. The court martial of Cmdr. Johnston will be presided over by Capt. E. P. Tisdall of Ottawa.

Cmdr. V. W. Howland was named judge advocate of both hearings. Hearing of Commodore Miles, like that of his junior officer, opened with the traditional one-gun salute and a bare sword will be used to indicate the verdict. If an officer is found guilty, the bare point of the sword is turned toward him.

Flung From Ladder By Electric Shock

Oakville, June 27—(CP)—Two volunteer firefighters were tossed from an aerial ladder Sunday while fighting a blaze in a maple tree. Fire Chief Fred Shaw said the men were climbing the ladder when it came into contact with a 220-volt hydro line.

Neither men were hurt as water from the hoses apparently acted as a conductor on the ladder and they were flung from the ladder by the shock.

RECOUNTS LOOM AS POSSIBILITY IN 9 RIDINGS

Eight Votes Separate Candidates In York W.

(By The Canadian Press)

The possibility of recounts loomed today in at least nine Federal ridings where the winning candidates squeezed through with margins tight enough to give their opponents hope of upsetting the verdicts.

Progressive Conservatives were declared winners in five of the tight-squeeze constituencies and Liberals in three. The ninth is held by Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal, who ran as an Independent in the new seat of Montreal Papineau.

With all 154 polls reported, the Mayor held a bare 85-vote edge over his nearest opponent. He polled 12,719 votes Monday compared with 12,634 by Liberal J. A. Meunier.

The closest margin reported was in the Ontario riding of York West, where Progressive Conservative A. R. Adamson was declared elected by eight votes. He polled 18,595 votes compared to 18,587 by Liberal K. Thompson.

Other ridings where Progressive Conservatives were declared elected by slim margins include:

Brant-Wentworth—J. A. Charlton re-elected by 6,728 votes against 6,691 for Liberal J. A. Talfer, with George Cox, C.C.F., trailing with 2,254.

Middlesex East—N. O. White re-elected, polling 9,202 votes against 9,158 for Liberal F. O. Kime; M. Stewart of the C.C.F. trailing with 2,759.

Camillien Sore At Photographers

Montreal, June 28 — (CP) — At this late date — and after his election to parliament too — it turns out Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal is touchy.

When his election to the Commons was made known early today newspaper cameramen came around to his home. Mayor Houde remembered a photograph taken of him during the election campaign which showed him shirt-sleeved and so great of girth as to make a California redwood feel like a child. His edict: No pictures.

Frank Follwell Wins Riding Of Hastings South To Join Liberal Landslide In Canada

Traditionally "Tory" Hastings South figuratively "walked across the floor" in the Federal elections yesterday to join a triumphant Liberal party in its march to a Dominion landslide.

The first Liberal candidate to win the riding since Mr. Justice Cameron won it from Conservative W. Ernest Tummon and Mr. Laurie Lewis running on the Stevens ticket in 1935, Frank S. Follwell won a convincing victory over R. D. Arnott, Progressive Conservative and Arthur Cole, C. C. F. standard bearer.

Complete official figures released early today by Returning Officer M. C. Burgess gave Follwell 12,703; Arnott, 10,276 and Cole 1749. Follwell's majority was 2,427.

The Liberal victory was never in doubt. Mr. Follwell piled up a substantial margin from the moment the first returns were filed and was never headed. The riding which sent in solid Conservative majorities with the exception of Tyendinaga and Trenton in the 1935 elections did a complete about-face with only Stirling. Thurlow and Frankford giving Arnott minor majorities yesterday.

City Does About Face

The City of Belleville which gave a Conservative majority of 434 in the 1945 elections turned heavily to the Liberal party giving Follwell an overall majority of 1099. The town of Trenton which gave the Liberals a majority of 200 in 1945 gave the suc-

$15,000 Loss At Peterborough

Peterborough, June 28—(CP)—Fire razed the main buildings of the Peterborough Block Supply Monday night. Damage is estimated by the co-owners Jack Buchanan and Leo Mountney at between $10,000 and $15,000.

Fire Chief George Smith said the origin of the fire is unknown.

An air compressor, a welding machine, two block machines, a skip and a mixer were lost. Most of the machines were new. A small wooden building at the rear of the company was also gutted. It contained 400 bags of cement.

Magnesium plates, used in holding the fresh hot cement blocks to cool, made the fire spectacular and flames were visible for miles.

Liberals Receive 49.7 P.C. of Vote

(By The Canadian Press)

Liberal candidates polled almost half of a record national vote in the Dominion election, it was indicated in incomplete compilations today.

With the national vote totalling more than 5,000,000, Liberals received 49.7 per cent of it, compared with 399 per cent in the 1945 election and 51 per cent in 1940.

The Canadian Press compilation showed Progressive Conservatives polled about 30 per cent, compared with 27 per cent in 1945, and with 30 per cent in 1940 as National Government candidates.

The C.C.F. percentage was 13 per cent, compared with 15 per cent in 1945 and eight per cent in 1940.

The popular-vote compilation, with about 90 per cent of the Dominion's polls reporting, showed the vote would total around 6,000,000, compared with the 1945 total of 5,246,130, and the 1940 total of 4.620.260.

56 OF ONTARIO'S 83 SEATS NOW IN LIBERAL COLUMN

Cut PC Holdings in Province to 25 Seats

Toronto, June 28 — (CP)—The Liberals, riding a new flood tide of fortune, today hold 56 of Ontario's 83 seats in the Commons.

Part of a cross - country sweep by their party in Monday's general election enabled them to cut Progressive Conservative holdings from 48 Ontario seats in the old 245-seat Commons to a scant 25 in the new 262-seat House.

C. C. F. representation remained at one riding and one Independent - Liberal was elected. The lone C. C. F. member is J.W. Noseworthy, veteran political skirmisher, who regained York South.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, won re-election in Carleton. an Ottawa area riding. In Peel, near Toronto, Gordon Graydon, regarded as the party's expert on international affairs, was returned.

The Liberal victory sweep cost several veteran Progressive Conservatives their seats. J. M. Macdonnell, Progressive Conservative financial critics, lost out to hockey player W. K. (Bucko) McDonald in Parry Sound - Muskoka. And in Toronto Davenport, John R. MacNicol went down to defeat after 19 years in office, beaten by 25-year-old Paul Hellyer.

Rival Papers View Election Results

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto Star (Independent-Liberal)—"The election is over and the heat which it engendered should be over too. The St. Laurent government has been given an endorsation beyond what its most enthusiastic supporters anticipated. It remains for the victors to be 'good winners,' and the defeated parties 'good losers'. There is one cause common to all—the promotion of Canada's welfare. That this is to be an easy task in view of world conditions, no one need imagine."

Toronto Telegran (Independent)—"The country has spoken and paid generous tribute to Mr. St. Laurent. In the result the Conservatives have no ground for self reproach. They presented the issues fairly and squarely. Their leader, George Drew, conducted a vigorous and straight - forward campaign. That these efforts were not crowned with success may be attributed to a trend all over the world. The people will not vote against Santa Claus.

Will Be Canada's Governing Party For Next Five Years

Parliamentary Majority Of 121 Seats in New House

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and his victorious Liberals today moved confidently into another five years as Canada's governing party in the wake of the greatest political triumph in the history of this Dominion.

Monday, with a smashing general election victory that was as breath - taking as it was decisive, they captured 193 of the 262 seats in the new House of Commons to command an unprecedented parliamentary majority of 121 votes.

Putting "1949" into an impressive roll of Liberal election victories over the past 14 years — 1935, 1940, 1945 and 1949—they reduced the Socialist C. C. F. to minor - party status and crushed the hopes of George Drew's Progressive Conservatives that they might this time regain the Federal power they lost in 1935.

Early today, when the final votes were counted and the last seat won and lost. the party standing fell into this Liberal-dominant pattern:

Liberals, 193; Progressive Conservatives, 42; C. C. F., 12; Social Credit, 10; Independents, four; Independents - Liberal, one.

By contrast, this was the standing after the 1945 election for a 245-seat House:

Liberals, 118; Progressive Conservatives. 66; C. C. F., 28; Social Credit, 13; Independents, eight; Independent - Liberals, seven; others. five.

As Canadians voted in record numbers, the government rolled up roughly 50 per cent of the popular vote, with the Progressive Conservative total just over 30 per cent and the C. C. F. between 13 and 14 per cent.

Election Triumph

It was an election triumph that outdid any previous political victory on Canadian record. It built up swiftly on the eastern seaboard, where the government captured 25 of the 34 Maritime constituencies, steam - rolled through Quebec and Ontario and rolled steadily westward, province by province — Manitoba, Saskatchewan, British Columbia.

Only in Alberta, where the Social Crediters have held provincial power since 1935, did the Liberals fail to emerge as the dominant federal party. But, even there, they reduced the Social Credit holding — from 13 to 10—as they won five seats. The Progressive Conservatives retained two.

Elsewhere across the land, the Liberals were unbeatable.

They trimmed the C. C. F. decisively on their own ground—in Saskatchewan. Here, where the C. C. F. held 18 seats in the last

LIBERALS TAKE QUE. PROVINCE WITH 68 SEATS

Have Chance to Increase That Number by One by a Recount

Quebec, June 28 — (CP)—This largely French - speaking province got behind Canada's second French - Canadian Prime Minister in Monday's federal election and helped to return Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent to office with an overwhelming majority.

In one of the party's greatest triumphs in this traditionally Liberal province, the Liberals took 68 of the province's 73 seats and had a chance of taking another on a recount. Records indicated that the party's greatest triumph was scored in 1921 when it won all the 65 seats then established. It won 61 out of 65 in 1940 and 60 out of 65 in both 1925 and 1926.

For this election the province's representation was increased from 65 to 73 under the 1947 redistribution bill.

The Progressive Conservatives elected two men, one by a narrow margin in Trois Rivieres and another by a majority of 312 in Labelle. Three Independents, including Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal who stood as a candidate in Montreal Papineau were elected.

P. E. Gagnon, Independent member of the last Commons for Chicoutimi, retained his seat and R. Poulin, another Independent, defeated Ludger Dionne, Liberal member for Beauce in the last House. Other Independents of various stripes, including Adrien Arcand, former leader of a Quebec fascist group, were defeated. Union of Electors, which had 50 candidates in the field, and the C. C. F. which had 20 candidates, failed to win a seat.

Recount Likely

In Trois Rivieres an official recount appeared likely. The returning officer first declared Wilfrid Gariepy, the Liberal candidate, elected with a majority of 13 votes. Later, he said that with 130 of 133 polls heard from Leon Balcer, Progressive Conservative, had a majority of 55. The count then was 9,757 for Balcer and 9,702 for Gariepy.

Speaking in Quebec after the party's triumph was conceded, Mr. St. Laurent said "It is a brilliant victory." The 67-year-old lawyer who took over the prime ministership last November said "It is a great comfort to see that Canadians feel that I am still able to render service to the population in spite of the old age which some attributed to me."

Quints' Mother Hopes to Visit The Pope on Trip to Rome

North Bay, June 28 (CP)—Mrs. Oliva Dionne, mother of the Dionne quintuplets, will leave her Corbeil home early next week for a trip to Rome, Mr. Dionne said today.

It is expected that Mrs. Dionne will have an audience with the Pope while visiting the Vatican.

She will be accompanied to Europe by Soeur Aimee Des Anges, Superior of Villa Notre Dame, the quints' school.

Mrs. Dionne will carry a letter from her world - famous daughters sending greetings to the Vatican.

This is Mrs. Dionne's first trip abroad and excited preparations are being completed in the busy Dionne household. All of the children are home for the summer holidays now, and 21-year-old Rose will take charge of the domestic affairs of the family until her mother returns. She will have able assistance from her younger sisters, Therese and Pauline, and, of course, from the quints, who have already proved themselves capable cooks. When Mrs. Dionne made a trip to Ottawa this spring it was the quints who teamed up to operate the household for their dad and brothers.

Mrs. Dionne is taking a train to New York and will travel to Europe by boat, taking a week for the Atlantic crossing.

Mr. Dionne said his wife would be visiting France — probably Paris — during the trip.

Asked if his wife was besieged with wheedling requests from her daughters for Paris souvenirs and especially dresses, the father of the quints chuckled — "That's too much in the feminine world for me . . . I'm leaving that to the girls."

OLDEST VOTER

Hamilton, June 28. (CP) — Probably the oldest person in Canada to cast a ballot in Monday's federal election was Mrs. Susan Partridge who will be 108 years old on August 6 of this year.

Her steps slowed by age but still able to get around on her own, Mrs. Partridge went to the polling station in the more than 90 degrees heat. Her son, Alfred Partridge, with whom she lives, drove her there and assisted her to the station where she cast her vote.

Tells of Interviews

Secretary Says Veterans' Records Were Given Little Consideration

A majority of the members of Board of Education in private interviews with R. C. Hewson, secretary of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, in the main, agreed that little consideration had been given to the overseas records of veterans who had applied for the positions of public school principals in the city.

This was stated by Mr. Hewson in a letter to the Ontario Intelligencer explaining the stand of the Army and Navy with respects to the appointment of non-veterans for the position.

Did Not Know Positions Open

"It is true that Veterans' Associations made no protest till the appointments were made," the letter stated, "but this was for the simple reason that they had no knowledge that the positions were open until Lt.-Col. P.H. Wills' letter appeared in the press."

Mr. Hewson went on to say it was a shame that a veterans' association had to publicly remind the citizens that if it had not been for the service rendered to their country by veterans, nobody would be in the secure and favorable positions they are today.

It was a fact, he pointed out, that during the last two wars the country had prospered more than at any time since confederation --all at the expense of the soldier who fought and won.

Should Get Preference

"Surely this fact should be acknowledge by giving the soldier a preference in civilian life if he has equal qualifications and ability."

He said the Belleville Board of Education had ignored consideration of the principles involved and should be reminded of it if, and when, they stand for re-election.

Following are letters which passed between the Army and Navy Veterans organization and the board of education.

Miss J. Tickell,
chairman Board of Education,
Belleville, Ontario.

Dear Madam;

There has been so much discussion by members of our Unit and a demand for some action pretaining to the recent appointment of the Principals of the Public Schools, that we are again requesting that the Belleville Board of Education reconsider the matter and give the Veterans who are qualified more consideration.

The veterans feel that little emphasis was attached to the applicants who are Veterans and who served in an actual theatre of war. It is an undisputable fact that the men who served in action preserved our liberty and kept intact all the possessions and customs we hold most dear. If it had not been for our soldiers who actually were in combat, you or any of our countrymen would not be in the secure and select positions they hold today. We therefore feel that it is a duty and right as a Veterans' Association to support the veterans who applied for the positions.

The length of service, the type of service and their rank is of paramount importance and they should be rated accordingly.

Much thought should be given to the fact that while they were serving in the defence of their country, their colleagues in the teaching profession who remained in civilian life were in a position to better their academic qualifications and entrench themselves in their positions. Did the board consider the probability that some of the applicants, who successfully competed with the Veterans may have been physically fit and eligible as a soldier? If such is the case are they rewarding such an applicant for a lack of duty by appointing him to office? What respect can the children of a veteran have for a principal who may have evaded his foremost duty?

Did the Board consider that a soldier returning to civilian life requires time to re-establish himself and did they make allowance for that in their selection? Habits acquired in the Army that may be objectionable in civilian life are corrected in time.

Much discussion centres around the apparent influence of the Boards Business Adminstrator Mr. Kells. The fact that he holds a dual position of Public School Inspector and Secretary of the Board of Education places him in a strategic office whereby it could be used to an unfair advantage in the selection of an applicant, especially as his was the only Inspector's report considered.

Trusting that the Board will reconsider the matter and correct an injustice.

Yours very truly
R.C. Hewson
Secretary A.N.&A.F.

(REPLY FROM BOARD)

Mr. R.C. Hewson, Secretary,
Army and Navy Veterans in Canada,
187 Front Street,
Belleville, Ontario.

Dear Mr. Hewson:

The Board of Education has directed me to reply to your letter of June 4 and June 14 addressed to the Secretary and to the Chairman of the Board of Education respectively.

(1) The Board cannot re-open the matter of appointment of Members to the positions opened this year.

(2) While the support of the men who were appointed was only that of substantial majority of the Board, the motion confirming their appointment was unanimous; that is, it was supported by every Member present at the meeting.

(3) The Board regrets that the Veterans and their representation on the Board did not make their attitude known at some time during the three months when this matter was under consideration and discussion, rather than after the matter had been concluded and announced to the teachers concerned as well as to the public.

Yours very truly
Board of Education,
L.A. Kells
Secretary

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 28 — (CP) — Mining issues were pushed downwards by slightly increased selling pressure here today. The Liberal victory in Monday's election had little apparent effect on the market. A few industrials moved narrowly, tending to weaken in mid-session.

Gold began to show easier tendencies in yesterday's session. Junior producers continued downwards as losses broadened over a wider list of issues and ranged up to 20 cents. Seniors were quiet.

Almost all base metals trading were depressed by steady selling. Consolidated Smelters lost 1½ at 83½ and Noranda was down ¼. Labrador, United Keno Hill, Falconbridge and East Sullivan showed losses up to 35 cents.

The election result barely created a ripple on the industrial board. A few issues opened fractionally higher but had their gains whittled away in mid-session.

HOGS

Toronto, June 28 (CP) — There was no definite settlement of hog prices at Stratford today.

At Hull, dressed grade hogs were up $1.50 at $31.75.

Motorist Has Narrow Escape From Drowning

Missing a sharp curve on the West Lake-Sandbanks road early Monday morning, William Lynch, 25, of Pine Street, escaped possible drowning when his car struck the guard rail of the culvert spanning Trout Creek.

The car smashed the guard rail and settled into the mud at the edge of the creek but was prevented from going into deeper water when the momentum was reduced by the collision with the guard rail. Lynch was able to climb out of his car and wade ashore.

The motorist said he was unfamiliar with the road in the district and had driven around for some time trying to find the highway. He was alone at the time the accident occurred.

New Styles Make Fat, Short Men Look Taller

Toronto, June 28 — (CP) — There's good news in store in 1950 for men who are short, fat, and falling at the belt-line.

Delegates to the 79th semiannual convention of the International Association of Clothing Designers here say lightweight cloths, brighter colors and a "taller" look will feature Monsieur's 1950 wardrobe.

Designers say the new styles will give the male "a more upright and executive look" than he's had for some years. This will be achieved by making shoulders, lapels and trousers slightly narrower, they say.

Messages From Three Leaders

St. Laurent

Quebec, June 28—(CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent Monday night broadcast the following message on the outcome of the Federal election:

My fellow Canadians:

I am naturally delighted at the result of my first general election as national leader of the Liberal party.

I thank you sincerely for the wonderful expression of confidence you have given today to the government — your government — of which I have had the privilege since last November, to be the head.

The decisive verdict you have rendered will strengthen the government in carrying out the program we laid before you during the election campaign.

We shall continue to strive resolutely for peace and prosperity and, with peace and prosperity, for the fundamental aim of the Liberal party — which is to ensure to all Canadians, in every province, of every race and creed and class, and of all political parties, the closest possible approach to equality of opportunity and to a fair share of the bounties with which Providence has endowed our favored land.

I wish to congratulate individually each successful Liberal candidate and thank all our friends who helped them achieve that success.

Those who were unsuccessful this time and their friends will rejoice in the victory of the party and continue to work with the rest of us for the full realization of Liberal policies.

Marvellous Reception

I should like also to thank the thousands of Canadians from one ocean to the other for the warm welcome I have received everywhere in my travels since I became prime minister; and I am sure my fellow citizens in the older provinces will join me in expressing appreciation of the truly marvellous reception I was given by our fellow - Canadians in the province of Newfoundland.

The welcome they accorded to the prime minister of the nation of which they have so recently become a part promises well for the future of the greater Canada of 1949.

It will continue to be, as it has always been, my highest ambition to contribute something to the strengthening of the spirit of harmony and goodwill and co-operation between English and French-speaking Canadians which is the one sure foundation of our unity as a nation.

It is my conviction that the vote of confidence of today will strengthen that unity. And now that you have given to my colleagues and to me the vote of confidence for which we appealed, I wish to repeat the promise — which is my only election promise — to give you the best service of which I am capable. And I make, with assurance, the same promise for the able and devoted colleagues who, with your endorsement, will continue to share with me the responsibility—and the high honor — of carrying on the government of Canada.

Drew

Ottawa, June 28 — (CP) — George Drew Monday night called on Progressive Conservative supporters to start "building immediately for the future."

He said the Liberals had been returned by a "decisive majority" in Monday's Federal election but "we will start immediately to build a strong party for the service of our country."

Mr. Drew issued a formal statement from his office at National Progressive Conservative headquarters here as a crowd of party workers and supporters milled around outside. Mrs. Drew and his two children — Edward, 11, and Sandra, nine — were in his office with him.

Mr. Drew's statement said the Progressive Conservatives will support the Liberals "in everything they do which is to the advantage of our people and our country. We will oppose everything that should be opposed. We will start immediately to build a strong party for the service of our country.

"The Progressive Conservative party has a great role to play in the future as it has in the past."

Congratulate Leaders

John McDonald, defeated Liberal candidate in Carleton where Mr. Drew won re-election to the Commons, came to party headquarters in downtown Ottawa to congratulate the Conservative leader on his victory.

Mr. Drew and Mr. McDonald were photographed together. shaking hands. When a photographer suggested that Mr. Drew put his hand on McDonald's shoulder, Mr. Drew smilingly objected. "Let's have a perfectly natural picture," he said.

At a brief press conference, Mr. Drew was asked if "you're going to go ahead." He replied "I've never done anything else."

Asked about the statement's reference to building a party, Mr. Drew said "There's not much doubt about what I mean about that."

Mr. and Mrs. Drew listened to early returns in an Ottawa hotel suite. Then they drove to Carleton constituency committee rooms where Mr. Drew told workers the election signified a return to a two-party system of government. He stayed at the Carleton committee rooms long enough to thank his workers then went on to national party headquarters.

Drew's Statement

Text of Mr. Drew's statement:

The people of Canada have made their decision and the Liberal party has been returned by a decisive majority. We will support them in everything they do which is to the advantage of our people and our country. We will oppose everything that should be opposed. We will start immediately to build a strong party for the service of our country.

The Progressive Conservative party has a great role to play in the future as it has in the past.

I do want to take this opportunity to thank all those who have worked so hard for the principles we supported in this election. To all those who have extended such great kindness to my wife and myself during the campaign, I wish to extend our warmest thanks.

I would also ask those who have supported our party in every riding to start building immediately for the future. To the young people particularly, I would urge still greater political activity in the interests of Canada and the great challenging future of the country that we love.

Coldwell

Biggar, Sask., June 28 (CP) — M. . Coldwell, C.C.F leader, said Monday night his party will continue to fight for the policies in which he believes

"The C.C.F. has not made the substantial gains we hoped for but I believe we have consolidatwhich he believes.
dation of intelligent co-operation for the building of a better Canada," he said in a statement.

The C.C.F. leader, who won re-election in his own constituency of Rosetown-Biggar, congratulated Prime Minister St. Laurent on the overpowering Liberal victory and said he hoped the people of Canada will have all they desire under their new government.

Mr. Coldwell's statement:

Canadians have spoken in a democratic manner today. We accept their verdict in that spirit. May I take this opportunity of wshing my fellow countrymen all they would desire under their new government. I wish to couple with this my congratulations to the Prime Minister and his party upon whose shoulders great responsibility now rests again.

The C.C.F. has not made the substantial gains we hoped for, but I believe we have consolidated our support upon a solid foundation of intelligent co-operation for the building of a better Canada. This means that we shall continue to fight for the policies in which we believe and to which the democratic world is turning. Thus in the not too distant future I believe the Canadian people will be glad that the C.C.F. has been built.

Today we have lost in a Liberal sweep. May I now say that I believe grave problems face this country. The economic outlook is far less bright than it has been in recent years. I am certain that neither the policies adverted by the Liberals or the Conservatives can give our people the standard of living they expect and deserve.

It will be our duty to continue to advance our policies in the interests of the ordinary, plain people of Canada.

I wish to thank all those who support our cause today and to express my regret that several of my former colleagues were defeated. One other thing I would like to say is that whatever mistakes were made in this campaign will be rectified in the next year or two. We shall use the next few years to strengthen our organization and to serve the Canadian people so that we may serve them better in the years to come.

Former P.M. Much Pleased Over Results

Ottawa, June 28. (CP)—Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King's 40 years in politics were climaxed Monday night as he watched "with delight" the Liberals sweep back into power for a fourth straight term.

"Naturally I am delighted with the victory of the Liberal Party," he said in an interview, then added nostalgically:

"I would have liked to have gone back to parliament myself."

Because of his 74 years and state of health he had declined to run again.

Now, Mr. King said, he would take up a new task, that of writing his memoirs, but as long as he lived he would keep up his interest in politics, and as long as he lived he would remain in Ottawa, his home for the last half-century.

Turning to his successor, Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, who took over the reins of the party and the government last year, Mr. King said "too much credit cannot be given to the Prime Minister, Mr. St. Laurent, for the splendid leadership he has given the country in parliament since his appointment to office."

The Liberal victory also marked "no uncertain approval by the people of Canada of the Liberal Party's administration . . . over the last 14 years and in particular since the last general election in 1945."

Mr. King headed the government during most of that period.

It also was a victory "for the application of Liberal principles and policies to the solution of national and international problems and as such is not without significance to all countries," said Mr. King.

Canadian Press Sets New Record

Toronto, June 28. (CP)— The Canadian Press set a record for speed and completeness in reporting the Dominion election result. For the first time, the decision was flashed while ballots were still being marked in three western provinces and Yukon-Mackenzie.

Re-election of the Liberal government was flashed over the news association's coast-to-coast wire network at 8:16 p.m. E.D.T. Polls closed in Alberta and Saskatchewan at 9 p.m. E.D.T. and in British Columbia an hour later.

Despite the . fast progressive coverage of the largest vote ever cast, returns were not published in newspapers or broadcast in any province before the close of that province's polls. This was in compliance with a 1938 Election Act amendment following claims that speedy CP reporting of 1935 Dominion election returns in the east affected voting in the west.

The Canadian Press staff of 250 in ten bureaux across Canada was aided by the staffs of the association's 90 daily newspapers which collected returns from their respective areas. Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Telegraphs set up special teleprinter circuits parallelling CP's 13,000 miles of leased teleprinter wires.

Jules Castonguay, chief electoral officer, assisted in the record-breaking performance by instructing his more than 100,000 election employees in 260 constituencies to give every possible assistance to the press.

All seats had been decided by 2 a.m. E.D.T. the first time a Dominion election standing was complete the same night.

2,000 Japanese War Prisoners Are Repatriated

Maizuru, Japan, June 28 (AP) —Russia Monday repatriated 2,000 more Japanese war prisoners, who showed every evidence of having been well indoctrinated with Communism.

Half of those interviewed said they intend to join the Communist party at once.

"First thing I will do when I get home," said one former soldier.

Repatriation of Japanese prisoners from the Soviet Union has been proceeding slowly and with long winter interruptions since the end of the war.

Russian slowness in resuming repatriations this year has been criticized by Gen. McArthur, and even by the Japanese Communist party. The occupation commander has said 408,000 Japanese still are held. The Russians have claimed they had only 95,000.

Monday's first shipment of the year arrived aboard the hospital ship Takasago Maru from Nahadka, Siberia. They were obviously well-fed and clad in rough but sturdy clothing.

The repatriates tended toward vagueness on any other subject but Communism. But on that subject they were voluble.

None of the repatriates knew how many Japanese the Russians still are holding captive.

MARCH OF DIMES TOTAL

New York, June 27 — (AP) — A record total of $25,728,000 was raised in the 1949 "March of Dimes" for fighting infantile paralysis, it was announced by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. The total collected in 1948 was $21,600,000.

DUTCH IS HAPPY — Big Dutch Harrison, the old Arkansas Traveller, smiles happily as he clutches the Seagram Gold Cup, emblematic of his spectacular victory in the Canadian Open Golf Championship at St. George's Saturday. Dutch was 17 under par with a four round total of 271, four strokes better than his nearest competitor. He also picked up a cheque for $2,000.

80 Per Cent Eligible Voters In City Registered Franchise

Eighty per cent of the eligible city electorate went to the polls in the federal election held yesterday. Of the 12,408 voters of the city, 9,930 cast their ballots. This is an increase of nine per cent over the total city vote in the 1945 elections, according to Chamber of Commerce figures released today.

The increase in city voting is due in a great measure to the concerted efforts of the Chamber of Commerce, the combined service clubs of Belleville and the Canadian Legion, which sponsored a "Vote as You Like — But Vote" campaign.

Nearly Complete Coverage

Coverage of the city was practically complete through the use of telephones, automobiles and speakers at service clubs and public meetings.

Central depots for the campaign were located at Queen Mary School and the Collegiate Institute. Cars operated all day from Parkwood Heights and Churchill Heights, new residential parts of the city where telephone service has yet to be installed.

Twenty-five automobiles driven by volunteers covered the city and on receipt of telephone instruction drew voters to the polls in a steady stream all day.

Eighty volunteers, consisting mainly of wives of members of city service clubs worked like Trojans all day. Each had a section of the voters' list and telephone calls streamed out all day from their various homes. The entire residential telephone list of some 5,600 users was used.

Those desiring cars had little time to wait. Phone calls flashed through to waiting cars and within a short time the voter was conveyed to his or her polling booth.

Purely Non-Partisan

The campaign was purely non-partisan. Voters who desired transportation were quickly accommodated regardless of political affiliation. There was little delay and the whole campaign went smoothly forward, functioning like a well-oiled machine.

Officials of the sponsoring organizations today expressed their appreciation of the fine co-operation afforded them by members of the combined service clubs, their wives, the Canadian Legion and other volunteers who assisted in making the campaign an unqualified success.

Appreciation of the splendid service given by the Bell Telephone Company was expressed by the committee. A list of 80 phones was earmarked for special service during the day.

Hamilton, O.—Who sits with the baby's mother when the baby sitter is sitting with the baby?

Judge Fred B. Cramer got the answer to that one Monday when a Hamilton woman appeared before him in a divorce case. She said she earned $2 a night "baby sitting" for the children of a girl friend.

That was all very fine until she learned that on the nights she was "baby sitting" her husband was out with the mother of the children.

Judge Cramer granted the divorce.

A blind bridesmaid and a blind best man will witness the ceremony. A blind pianist will play the wedding march.

The minister is Rev. Robert S. Kieser, pastor of Fourth Presbyterian Church. He said his guide dog will help make everything "work out all right."

Clifford English will marry Ida Mae Weddle. The witnesses will be Mr. and Mrs. Verne Campbell. Mrs. Margaret Howse will play the piano.

London — Women— thousands of them—ignored the blistering heat and staged bargain basement free-for-alls in London's shopping centre Monday. Their menfolk fled in terror.

While the mercury reached 91 degrees and groped for a record lady shoppers lined up hours ahead of time for the first couponless mid-summer sales of the big stores since 1940. At one store, 500 dresses were snapped up in five minutes.

One shop which advertised dresses at 15s. 9d. ($3.15) each said "The women were tearing them to pieces and fighting each other to get them."

Another store reported a milling battle of sweltering lady shoppers at one of its counters. It featured bargains in Christmas gift neck-ties.

ELECTION RESULTS

Prime Minister St. Laurent and his Government have received an overwhelming majority at the polls. The measure of the Liberal victory is a tribute to the Prime Minister and the policies of the Liberal regime. The vote of confidence which they received from the voters from coast to coast must come with a deep sense of gratification to both the Prime Minister and his cabinet.

The strength which the Liberal Government showed in Monday's election is the assurance of a strong government, having no doubt of the support it has in the Canadian people. The St. Laurent Government's return to power is a vindication of the policies it has sponsored in recent years. The nature of some of the policies is such that it would have appeal to a large mass of voters of all political classes. The fact that gains were made at the expense of the two other major parties indicates the popularity of the Liberal program.

The election campaign was marked by a bitterness that has not been matched for a long time. This served a good cause for it brought out into the open some of the thinking on all sides. It helped to clear the air as it were and expose weaknesses in policies that would, otherwise, not be brought to light. A keen opposition is desirable and it can be assumed that Progressive Conservatives will prove to be a force in parliamentary life although greatly outnumbered by the Liberals.

The Liberal Party's majority is so overwhelming that there will be no need for compromise with any other group. Mr. St. Laurent and his Government now have a clear mandate from the electors to proceed with a program in keeping with the best interests of Canadians.

COLONIES ILLUSTRATED

The feature of the displays in London in connection with Colonial Month recently inaugurated in London by His Majesty, is an exhibition giving a cross-section of the life of the peoples in two million square miles of Colonial territories which extend to the east and west hemispheres and to the Antarctic. The entrance is through a jungle clearing complete with mahogany trees, orchids blooming in sweltering heat and chattering monkeys. So easy is it for the Londoner or the visitor in London to leave Oxford Street and find himself in the genuine atmosphere of the jungles of Africa. Immersion heaters in hidden water tanks maintain temperature and humidity at the levels of the jungle.

In this setting is a section showing examples of the craftsmanship of the Colonial peoples. There are displays of articles of silverware from Hong Kong and Malaya, pottery from Cyprus, wood carvings from Jamaica and paintings from Gold Coast.

Such exhibits can give an idea of the work that Britain is doing in the colonies. Another part is devoted to the exhibition of the enemies of Colonial progress, such as the menaces of climate, extremes of heat and rainfall, the tsetse fly, mosquito, carrier of malaria, live locusts, impure water, erosion and malnutrition are all graphically illustrated. There are also films dealing with particular aspects to these barriers of progress in the Colonies.

With British thoroughness and appreciation primitive art which has inspired so many famous western painters and sculptors is exhibited and attention is given to the fine traditions of highly cultivated are dating back to the earliest civilizations.

The vast colonial enterprise of groundnuts gets a showing in the exhibition. It is doing much to clear the bush and turn thousands of acres of uncultivated land into good farming terrain and has already produced 25 products from the humble groundnut, ranging from dynamite to industrial alcohol.

Altogether one hundred organizations are taking part in the Colonial Month. One of the exhibitions depicts the association of the Royal United Services Institutions in Whitehall, showing the association between the Colonies and the fighting forces.

Here is a visible presentment of the possibilities of the Colonies and the opportunities which await development. In this cause Britain is performing a task of civilization which is one of the greatest tributes to the blessings of Britain as a colonizing power.

LETTER XXIV

Beloved, here's our day again! The best of all for me.
The little house on Commonwealth again I seem to see;
The daisies you had gathered, and the smilax from the wood,
And that borrowed little altar where the smiling rector stood;
The friend at the piano and the wedding march she played,
And that silver, velvet cushion which we knelt on as we prayed.

Beloved, I remember the old coachman on the hack,
Who drove us to the steamer at a pace that wasn't slack.
And the friends who followed after just to shower us with rice,
And the tricks they played upon us and you didn't think them nice.
The days of honeymooning! Can so many years have flown
Since first we crossed the threshold of a dwelling all our own?

Oh, so often on this morning with a smile you used to say:
"Do you happen to remember it's once more our wedding day?
Can it be that you've forgotten?" That I had, I knew you thought,
Then I'd suddenly surprise you with some little gift I'd bought.
Well, I'm writing you this letter for this morning just to say
That I never have, and never will forget our wedding day.

A fast and interesting game of baseball was played on the Ann Street School grounds between the Y.M.C.A junior League teams, the Tigers and the Maple Leafs. The game lasted nine innings and the final score was 8-7 in favor of the Tigers. The game was very close all the way through and at first it looked as though the Maple Leafs would win, as the first five innings ended with a score of 3 to 0 in favor of the Maple Leafs, but Ed. Lowe, 3rd. baseman, broke for the Tigers and scored a run in the 6th. innings. Harold Barriage tied the game in the last of the 9th. innings with a daring steal from third base to home making the score 7-7. A bunt made by Ed. Lowe fetched in the runner Gordon Storks and that ended the game with a score of 8-7 in favor of the Tigers. Every man played well. W. Buskard of the Tigers made a sensational catch in the second innings and robbed Kerr of the Maple Leafs of a three-bagger.

HARD WORK NEVER HURT ANYONE

What most often breaks a man down? Overwork? Very seldom does overwork break any man down. It is generally not overwork but under-living that makes a man snap.

Psychologists express it by saying that hard work within reasonable limits never hurts anyone, but that almost any effort, or in fact no effort at all, accompanied by inner conflict will eventually break down the health of body and mind. Such a person is broken not by lack of circumstances which impinge upon him from without, but by a lack of inner adequacy—a starved soul, a vacant mind, an aimless life which leads first to restlessness then to ennui and finally to despair.

What people need to get rest from is not from their work, but from themselves. An arousal of purpose, determination, and grit would cure half our cases of nervous breakdown. Most people's need is not a better fortune with reference to curcumstances, but a better co-ordination of fundamental impulses and desires.

It is not anything from without that as a rule breaks a man down; it is some dreadful conflict being carried on within the confines of self.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

In business and industry, real executives are few and far between. The executive talent is an art, the same as the talent for music, painting, poetry. Top ranking artists are as rare in the executive field as in any of the others.

According to a famous publisher now dead, who was recognized in his time as an inspired executive, the ordinary executive observes these rules:

(a) What should be done?
(b) How should it be done?
(c) Who should do it?

But the really great executive adds a fourth:

(d) Has it been done?

That last little query makes all the difference. The business world is full of bounding fellows who are awfully quick at determining what should be done. They are also smart at deciding how it should be done and who should do it—which, in the lower orders of enterprises is known as passing the buck. But then these agile minds promptly go bounding off to play golf or attend a convention, cigar gripped in the molars. They feel like executives. But business gets snarled up.

They should have stayed home, like the real artists of their profession, and in thin, bitter voices, kept asking:

(d) Has it been done?

Then business would have hummed, everything would have flowed as smooth as a great river of oil, millions would be made, everybody would be unhappy, everybody would be afraid, nobody would sleep of nights, and it would all be a tremendous success.

Really great executives are a divine blessing to the nation's well-being. But nobody would want to go fishing with them.

Mackenzie's Column:

American Policy May Soon be Told Regarding China

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

State Secretary Dean Acheson says the complete inside story of United States relations with China may be told soon. It should be a best seller.

This statement was more or less coincident with two striking developments in the United States Senate. In one case several Senators took the floor to criticize the United States policy toward Nationalist China.

In the other, 21 Senators (15 Republicans and six Democrats) sent President Truman a letter asking for assurances that the United States wouldn't recognize the Communist regime but would continue to support the Nationalist government.

It will be passing strange if the State Department hasn't had some poignant criticisms to make of Chinese Nationalist inefficiency. That wouldn't be of much comfort or aid to a government fighting for its life against Communism.

Top Questions

Thus far Washington has taken the general attitude that it wouldn't recognize any Communist regime so long as a responsible Nationalist government existed.

But how much of the country must the Nationalists control to be "responsible?"

Then of course there arises the red-hot question of whether the United States, in conflict with Communism the world over, should recognize a Chinese Communist government at all.

In the past the international practice frequently has been to grant recognition to a government when it was a going concern—really in control of the territory it represented.

Such recognition didn't in itself mean an endorsement of the government or an expression of approval.

Of course the question of recognition in China hasn't yet arisen. When it does one should expect that the big western powers—Britain, the United States and France—would act in unison. And there are many observers who won't find it surprising if they grant recognition to a Communist regime if it is a going concern in control of a large part of the country. And if the Nationalist government at the same time is a going concern in another part of China, why its recognition would be continued.

Went To Country With 14 Vacancies In the Senate

Ottawa, June 28 (CP)—When Prime Minister St. Laurent went to the country in Monday's general election with 14 vacancies in the Senate it was an almost-unprecedented action in Canadian politics.

Usually, all the Senate seats are filled before an election.

It probably was an indication of his confidence that his government would be returned. Six of the vacancies are in Newfoundland, and eight are in the other provinces.

Probably he felt that while his party would be victorious, some of the old stalwarts might fall by the wayside and he wanted vacancies in the Upper House for them. But all these old warhorses came through as winners.

The speculation now is that while these veterans won again, the Prime Minister may feel the party still owed them a debt of gratitude and may elevate them to the safety of the Upper House.

There are three vacancies in Ontario and names mentioned as probable choices to fill two of them have been Joseph Bradette, re-elected for Cochrane, and L. O. Breithaupt for Waterloo North.

Two vacancies are in Nova Scotia and J. R. Kirk, member-elect for Antigonish-Guysborough, G. B. Isnor for Halifax and H. R. McCulloch for Pictou have been mentioned for the Senate.

J. E. Matthews who defeated John Bracken, former National Conservative leader in Brandon might be the likely man to fill the Manitoba vacancy if the Prime Minister decided to reward veterans.

The other vacancies among the old provinces are one each in Prince Edward Island, Alberta and British Columbia. And Liberal sources said they believe these will be filled by persons outside the Commons.

WHAT TALK A BIT OF LACE CAN CAUSE!

Gertrude "Gorgeous Gussie" Moran, tennis player of Santa Monica, Calif., is pictured in her London, Eng., hotel packing the cause of it all. Miss Moran's subsequent appearances on the courts were conventional in dress. (Central Press Canadian).

Sailor Is Lowered 70 Feet by Rope To Rescue Kitten

Edmonton, June 28 (CP)—Fluffy a six-month-old gray kitten, is purring happily today and making up for lost sleep and food.

The pet was re-united with Ralph Pashmore, her eight-year-old master, after a weekend rescue from a two-day ordeal on a log in the Saskatchewan River here.

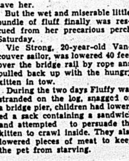
Believed to have been tossed into the river by young holligans last Thursday, Fluffy clung to a log underneath the Dawson Street bridge while police and firemen made unsuccessful attempts to save her.

But the wet and miserable little bundle of fluff finally was rescued from her precarious perch Saturday.

Vic Strong, 20-year-old Vancouver sailor, was lowered 40 feet over the bridge rail by rope and pulled back up with the hungry kitten in tow.

During the two days Fluffy was stranded on the log, snagged on a bridge pier, children had lowered a sack containing a sandwich and attempted to persuade the kitten to crawl inside. They also lowered pieces of meat to keep the pet from starving.

PENAL GUINEA PIG



This Sing Sing prisoner recently gave 18 pints of blood in a futile attempt to save an eight-year-old girl from dying of leukemia. He is Louis Boy, 49, native of Sicily. He is now being tested weekly to determine if he contracted the dread blood disease in his voluntary effort to save the child who died June 10. Boy is serving a life sentence for complicity in the death of John T. Moore in a garage robbery. His death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment by the late Franklin D. Roosevelt, then New York governor. In 1942, Boy helped medical experts test the effectiveness of atabrine as a malaria treatment and in 1943 he volunteered to test an influenza medicine. BREATHING EXERCISE FOR VARICOSE VEINS

W. H. D.—Writes:

About 14 years ago you recommended that anyone with varicose veins lie on the back and go through the motions of riding a bicycle. I did it faithfully and in about eight months all the dark coloring, the size of my hand, and the swelling were gone. I still keep it up and my feet and legs are in good shape now. I've told many about it. Our city clerk, for example, now wears shoes 1½ smaller than for years. Thought belated I want to thank you....

Varicose means irregularly swollen or enlarged veins, dilated veins. Veins anywhere on the surface or deeper may be so swollen or dilated, although the veins in the legs are most frequently varicose. Varicocele is the name of the veins in the scrotal sac. Hemorrhoids or piles is the name given to varicose veins about the anal canal.

Most persons with varicose veins in any of these situations may or may not be aware of the condition, for aside from more or less swelling or perhaps some dark coloring of the skin over the affected vein or veins, there are no serious symptoms. In many instances, however, the weakness gradually increases, owing to bad hygiene (as I shall describe in a talk to follow), and the man or woman complains of crampy pains upon rising, which pass off after he or she moves about, and late in the afternoon a sense of fullness and heaviness with more or less dull pain or ache in the legs. There is generally some swelling of feet and ankles toward the evening—which accounts for the familiar "My feet are killing me."

The unsightly knobs or bunches of swollen veins in the legs and the puffiness and swelling of ankles and feet after hours on the feet every day are the chief complaints in some cases.

Every individual who has varicose veins in any of the situations mentioned above should make it his or her inflexible habit to do the belly breathing exercise every morning before getting out of bed, every night after getting into bed, and, if at all possible once or twice in the course of the day—say at noontime, or still better at mid-forenoon and mid-afternoon.

In a good many cases this exercise, if faithfully done as described in the booklet How to Breathe—for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope—will correct the trouble or at least prevent it from growing steadily worse.

The simple instructions for belly breathing — that is, natural breathing as distinguished from unnatural chest breathing — are given in a pamphlet available to any one who asks for it in writing (a clipping will not suffice) and provides stamped self addressed envelope.

I have found that the simple instructions do not impress the laymen who has learned that he or she regards as the proper way to breathe from some physical culture charlatan or from some algebra teacher doubling in physical ed. So I offer a lesson in the anatomy and physiology of breathing in the booklet. This is not my invention and belly breathing is not my method, except by adoption. All of the facts are available in any standard text-book of physiology.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Itching

Just a line (that's all the time you can give me, eh?)—a constant itching that sometimes just about maddens. (M. J. T.)

Answer—Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing (clippings bring no answers) for pamphlet on Pruritus.

Price of Saccharin

I dislike your statement that you buy the "cheapest saccharin tablets the druggist can supply." That is equivalent to advising readers to buy the cheapest meat or the cheapest milk or the cheapest shoes. (S. W., Druggist).

Answer—It is unladylike to buy the cheapest meat, milk or shoes? We do at our house—of course we are low down characters. I still say I prefer the cheapest saccharin a reputable druggist sells—likewise aspirin and numerous other medicines.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

OUR FRIEND THE CROW

I love to view a field of cows at pasture. They are gentle animals and they make up a wonderful picture in a landscape. I have a friend whose home is filled with only paintings of cows. Cow paintings are his favorites. I can understand why. I like them too.

Just think of the great service cows render to mankind—just mentioning one service that they render——the giving of their milk to millions upon millions. Keeping babies alive, and furnishing their milk, that is the most perfect food in all this world. Imagine for a moment what in this world. Imagine for a moment what a tragic happening if all cows should be suddenly banished from the earth! How difficult it would be to find a substitute.

Hardly a meal is served without some product from the gift of these fine animals—milk butter, and cheese. How little we think of the blessings that are offered us from this rich earth, and its inhabitants outside that of man. Instead of bronze statues of military heroes, scattered all over the land, what an inspiration a few erected to the glory of the cow! Many a boy and girl would do a deal of thinking when viewing one thus placed in a prominent location.

What a picture of peace and contentment is that of a herd of cows in a pasture, idly chewing their cuds! I have stopped my car by the roadside many times just to take note of such a scene. And what memories are aroused by the tinkling sound of a cowbell in the fertile valley or range.

Then there is that early visit of the milk-man, who often awakens us to an early start for the day. But his service is not to be forgotten, for without him that milk, which we so much prize, would amount to major tragedy and loss of much health. Babies especially, would miss his call, not realizing the meaning, but suffering the loss.

As a farm boy I milked many cows and can testify to their gentleness and seeming willingness to unconsciously give of their substance, though they have no idea of their usefulness. All glory to them! They are mankind's greatest friends.

Port Royal, S. C. — (AP) — Mrs. Eileen Mayhue, Australian war bride of a Marine Corps sergeant, isn't homesick any more.

She doesn't have time to be.

Pining to hear from her native land, she ran a small advertisement in her hometown Melbourne Sun May 4. She offered to exchange American papers and magazines for Australian.

The results were startling—in a single day she received nine sacks full of mail. She and her husband had to borrow a pick-up truck to haul it to their trailer home.

They now are working day and night answering the mail.

FRANK FOLLWELL

cessful candidate a majority of 917.

Sidney Township, a strong Conservative stronghold in former elections gave Follwell a majority of 234. Thurlow decreased its 1945 Conservative majority of 451 to 24. Deseronto, Tweed and Hungerford reversed traditional Conservative form and gave Follwell majorities.

The first returns arrived at the Ontario Intelligencer news rooms at 7.29. Five polls gave Follwell a majority of 131. At the nine poll mark Follwell increased his majority to 267.

At the sixty-two poll mark, the Liberal candidate had increased his majority to 1796. It rolled on and upward as returns came in from outlying parts of the riding.

Election Conceded

With one hundred polls heard from, the Follwell majority was well over the 2,000 mark and the Liberal party was conceded the riding of Hastings South. When it reached 2,200, Mr. Arnott gained some strength when returns from Frankford and Stirling were reported.

But the gain was shortlived and was quickly absorbed after returns came in from centres that showed a strong Liberal tendency.

Hastings South was the only riding in the "central block" in this part of Ontario usually considered "safe" by the Progressive Conservatives to "go "Liberal" although Durham and Northumberland on the west returned a Liberal candidate, a gain from the Conservatives.

Veteran House of Commons member for Prince Edward Lennox, George Tustin of Napanee retained his seat as did Fraser Aylesworth in Frontenac-Addington and George S. White in Hastings Peterborough.

Tustin's majority over Gordon Bell, Picton, Liberal was well over 1,000 with the greater part of the majority coming from the eastern part of the riding.

The electorate polled one of the heaviest votes seen in a Federal election in years. According to unofficial figures 24,724 voters of the riding went to the polls as compared to 20,000 in the 1945 election. This is roughly a twenty per cent increase.

Every Voter Voted

Something of a record in voting was established at the Centre Poll in the town of Deseronto. With 187 voters on the voters list for the poll, exactly 187 voted, a one hundred per cent "turnout."

Yesterday's election created more visible interest on the part of the general public than has been seen here for years. Crowds of people forsook radio and other outlets of election news, and wandered downtown in expectancy of seeing "something happen."

A large crowd filled Front Street outside the Ontario Intelligencer offices, where a public address system was installed and periodical reports of the riding and Dominion results were aired. The Liberal Committee rooms on Lower Front Street also broadcast results over a loud-speaker system.

In the outer fringes of the city as well as downtown, a public address system-equipped automobile paraded giving out systematic reports of progress of the election.

Gather About Cars

Radios in cars parked on Front Street and other main thoroughfares blared the news as commentators come on the air at farious intervals. Knots of people gathered about the cars to hear the "latest." But some gradually dispersed and went homewards after the Liberal victory was a foregone conclusion about nine o'clock. At this point the Hastings South riding was conceded to the Liberals by the Conservatives after Mr. Follwell's majority hovered about the 2,000 mark and was steadily rising.

The election in Hastings South was one of the "quickest" in years, as reports of voting filtered in from various parts of the riding. All centres, with the exception of Marlbank had turned in returns by eleven o'clock. The office of Returning Officer Mac Burgess was a hive of activity all evening as adding machine clicked in a cross check and double check of incoming returns. The reports were relayed to newspaper offices, radio station and party headquarters as soon as received.

A Busy Place

The news room of the Ontario Intelligencer was one of the busiest places in the city from eight o'clock until 11.30. A battery of telephones specially installed for the purpose shrilled and buzzed all evening as an augmented editorial staff relayed results to the people. It is estimated that over 1,000 calls came through the office switchboard. The operators of the Bell Telephone Company did yeomen service in handling the many calls that came through offices to newspaper and radio station.

The first call to come in to the offices of this newspaper was from a gentleman who apparently figured the returns would be available at mid-afternoon. He called at 4.30 and wanted to know if Prime Minister St Laurent was re-elected.

"You're a bit early, aren't you" said a young lady member of the business staff.

"Am I?" came the reply. "That's a h of a newspaper you're running."

The second call filtered at a few minutes before five o'clock when a lady inquired if any information was available on Frank Follwell's standing in the election.

First Call at 7.20 p.m.

The first call in the evening came at 7.20, and from that time until well after eleven o'clock the phones and those manning them were busier than the well-known one-armed collection taker with the hives.

The sense of defeat coming early in the evening cast gloom over the headquarters of the Progressive Conservative candidate, Mr. Arnott. And reports from the Dominion which at an early hour indicated a Liberal landslide did not help matters any. Mr. Cole's CCF headquarters did not dispense much hilarity as the fate of the party became known.

But in Liberal headquarters it was a different story. Hilarity reigned from the moment that Mr. Follwell was given a substantial majority in the first half-dozen reports, and as his majority mounted did the spirit of the party adherents.

Visit Whole Riding

This was climaxed shortly after eleven o'clock when a triumphant motorcade paraded through the city with sirens wide open. The long parade wound slowly along streets on which crowds of people appeared as if by magic. To the accompaniment of cheers, the parade swept through the city to honor the first Liberal victory in Hastings South in ten years.

Exuberant Liberals shouting and cheering waved to friends and political "enemies" as the parade of cars proceeded on its way.

"This is our night to howl, and brother we're going to do just that" shouted a smiling, excited Follwell follower.

And they did just that. Later the motorcade visited various parts of the riding when other joyous celebrations were held and the successful candidate going through the conventional handshaking as happy Liberals congratulated him on his outstanding victory.

Prime Minister Given Ovation In Old Quebec

Quebec, June 28 (CP)—This old capital city Monday night acclaimed the second French-speaking Canadian Prime Minister since Confederation.

Slightly flushed and wearing a broad smile, Prime Minister St. Laurent got a thundering ovation when he came out of his home on Broad Grande Allee Avenue shortly after nine o'clock as news of the Liberal sweep of the country came in.

Thousands massed in front of his home cheered and hundreds of autos splashed with pictures of the Prime Minister and bunting tooted their horns.

Escorted to St. Fidele parish, in his own riding of Quebec East, the Prime Minister had to be assisted by a half dozen police officers as he pushed through crowd waiting for an hour to hear his first words of victory.

Spoken in French, they were: "Thank you my friends."

The crowd, not giving him a chance to continue, raised a big cheer. Then he said: "It is a brilliant victory."

"It is a great comfort to see that Canadians feel I am still able to render service to the population in spite of old age which some attributed to me," Mr. St. Laurent said with a broad grin. The crowd cheered again.

The St. Fidele parish playgrounds, a whole street block, was jammed to capacity.

The 67-year-old Prime Minister, his white hair shining under the platform lights, recalled for his Quebec East constituents that it was 70 years ago that this same Quebec riding had given Canada a Liberal Prime Minister — Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

"I am told I have a majority of 15,000, this shows that the province is attached to the Liberal doctrine," he said.

Mr. St. Laurent who repeated his words of thanks in English then turned the microphone over to happy Mrs. St. Laurent who said with emotion:

"Thank you, from a full heart."

House, the Liberals drove them out of 13 to raise their own riding-total to 15, leaving the C.C.F. with four and the Progressive Conservatives with one.

But it was old Quebec, the traditional Liberal stronghold, that built the foundation for the government victory — electing Liberals in 68 of the province's 73 seats. The Progressive Conservatives won two ridings and Independents took the other three.

Ontario Turns Over

Traditionally-Conservative Ontario gave the Liberals 56 seats where they had held only 34 before and cut the Progressive Conservative strength from 48 to 25. One riding went C.C.F.; another Independent-Liberal.

Newfoundland, the virgin political territory which was voting in a Dominion election for the first time, elected five Liberals and two Progressive Conservatives; Prince Edward Island three Liberals and one Progressive Conservative; New Brunswick eight Liberals and two Progressive Conservatives, and Nova Scotia nine Liberals, three Progressive Conservatives and one C.C.F.

All the four major party leaders —Mr. St. Laurent, Mr. Drew, C.C.F. leader M. J. Coldwell and Social Credit Leader Solon Low— came through with personal victories in their home ridings.

Mr. St. Laurent's 19 cabinet ministers and their parliamentary assistants also were returned along with Hon. Gaspard Fauteux, Speaker of the last Commons.

Communists Defeated

Tim Buck, the pint-sized Communist leader, and all of his 17 Labor-Progressive party candidates were defeated.

The 67-year-old prime minister weary but happy, standing on the steps of his home on Quebec's broad Grand Allee, told an election night crowd that it was a "brilliant" victory, and grinned:

"It is a great comfort to see that Canadians feel I am still able to render service to the population in spite of the old age which some have attributed to me."

The crowd cheered.

The victory was heart-warming, too, for Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, the ailing former prime minister who handpicked Mr. St. Laurent for the Liberal leadership, and saw his choice confirmed at a national party convention last August.

At Ottawa, he expressed his "delight" at the result.

For Mr. Drew, the 55-year-old, hard-hitting former premier of Ontario, whose colorful campaign had raised Progressive Conservative hopes for victory, his party's setback meant more spadework for the future.

No Women Elected

In a formal statement from Ottawa, he called upon his supporters to start "building immediately for the future."

Mr. Coldwell, 61, whose hopes had been for a C.C.F. official opposition in the new Commons, said at Biggar, Sask., that his party will continue to fight for the policies in which it believes.

This will be the first stag Commons since 1921. Fifteen women candidates were defeated and along with them went Mrs. Gladys Strum, the Prairie housewife and mother who held the Saskatchewan constituency of Qu,Appelle for the C.C.F. in the last House.

Only one of the many Liberal members of the last Chamber who ran in this election was defeated. He was E. O. Bertrand, who lost to an Independent-Liberal in Prescott.

One of the defeated Progressive Conservatives was John Bracken, the one-time Manitoba premier who took over leadership of the Progressive Conservatives in 1942, when they held only 39 seats., and guided them to victory in 66 ridings in the 1945 vote. He was defeated by a Liberal in the Manitoba riding of Brandon.

Familiar Faces Missing

While familiar faces were missing, there was new blood for the new House.

Camillien Houde, the broad-waisted, flamboyant mayor of Montreal, won Montreal Papineau, a new seat, in his third bid for election to the Commons. Running as an Independent, he defeated three other candidates.

In Ontario, J. W. Noseworthy, the C.C.F.-er who won a 1942 by-election in York South, defeating Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen only to be trounced himself in 1945, came back again in the same riding.

Members of the armed services —permanent force men and reservists in training—voted for candidates in their home ridings special polls held last week. This provision covered an estimated 50,000 though many were expected to vote at the civilian polls instead.

The service vote, which will not be known until July 2, could conceivably alter a narrow-margin civilian victory in an individual riding. This happened three times in 1945, when 750,000 service personnel were eligible and 300,000 voted.

Editorial Comment On Election

(By The Canadian Press)

Winnipeg Free Press (Ind.-Lib) —"The victory of the St. Laurent government in yesterday's election, surprising only in its overwhelming dimensions, shows that the Canadian people approve the present policies of the nation and, with equal clarity, that they reject the lack of policy in the Conservative party. As for the third alternative before the voters, socialism has met a shattering and, as it may prove, a fatal defeat. Electoral landslides have hitherto occurred only in the crisis of war. Nothing like this has ever happened in peace..."

Ottawa Citizen (Ind-Lib) — "The people have returned Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and his cabinet with a solid mandate to press forward their program for social and economic justice for all Canadians...At the same time the Canadian electorate has devastatingly repudiated the negative, destructive, divisive policies of Mr. George Drew...The rebuke to the Drew-Duplessis-Houde-McCullagh forces of reaction was on a scale unprecedented in Canadian politics..."

Edmonton Bulletin (Ind.) — "The Liberal victory was due entirely to the fact that the Liberal government was close to the realities and requirements of the people as a whole, while the Progressive Conservatives were remote from them. The Conservatives talked down to the voter. The Liberals talked with the voter. That was the secret of the election."

L'Evenement - Journal Independent)—"As the oldest daily of French expression in Canada L'Evenement-Journal claims that the result of the election is the foundation of a new bonne entente of the loyal support of both the French and English speaking Canadians."

Saint John Telegraph-Journal (Independent)—The Liberal gains from the C.C.F., Social Credit and other experimental parties in the west have raised the hopeful possibility that one day in the not too remote future Canada may return to the time-tested and proven system of two strong National parties, each serving as a balance and check on the other when not in power.

Charlottetown Guardian (Progressive Conservative) — "... Gratifying to both parties is the fact that the results were decisive, leaving no room for third-party manipulation of the balance of power...The results also showed the fallacy of the Conservative strategy of attempting to outbid the Liberals in socialistic panaceas."

Halifax Chronicle-Herald (Independent)—"The government of Mr. St. Laurent is going to be able to carry on with a clear majority of members who were the accredited candidates of the government party and there will be no need for the kind of political 'log-rolling' that has been practised so assiduously in other times."

Victoria Colonist (Progressive Conservative)—"What will hold the Liberal party in check? Will the Progressive Conservatives reform under Mr. Drew and prepare for a comeback...? Is the C.C.F. way down and out?....Mr. St. Laurent and his cabinet have been given an embarrassing and unhealthy degree of power..."

Election Highlights

Bowmanville (CP) — John James, 38-year-old red-haired part-owner of The Canadian Statesman won his feud with his uncle-partner. John James, a Liberal, won Durham constituency, despite his partner, Progressive Conservative George W. James, who controls the 95-year-old weekly's editorial policy and banished John to a back-room as "production manager". John defeated his Progressive Conservative and C.C.F. opponents.

Toronto (CP)—Walter Martin, Davis Cup tennis player, formerly of Regina, was defeated as Liberal candidate in York East by Progressive Conservative R. H. McGregor.

Peterborough (CP) — A. V. (Dit) Clapper, former National League hockey star and Boston Bruins coach trailed Progressive Conservative G. K. Fraser in Peterborough West by 58 votes with one poll to be heard from. Clapper, Liberal candidate, had 11,022 votes to Fraser's 11,180.

Qu'Appelle, Sask. (CP)—Mrs. Gladys Smith, C.C.F., only woman member of the last parliament, was defeated in Qu'Appelle constituency as were the other 14 women candidates. Mrs. Strum, 43-year--old former teacher was defeated by A. Dewar, Liberal.

Ottawa (CP) — Two of three holders of the Victoria Cross who sat in the last House of Commons will sit in the next parliament. Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, Progressive Conservative, was returned in Nanaimo, and Veterans Minister Gregg won York-Sunbury. Lt.-Col. Cecil Merritt, the third V.C., lost out to a Liberal candidate in Vancouver-Burrard.

New York (CP)—Canadians living in the New York area deluged offices of The Canadian Press with telephone calls to learn how the election was going. Canadian Information Service officials, also pressed by homesick expatriates, had to put on a special night staff to answer calls.

Toronto (CP)—Paul Theodore Hellyer, who will be 26 on Aug. 6, defeated J. R. MacNicoll, Progressive Conservative, in Toronto Davenport and will be the youngest member of the new parliament. MacNicoll held the seat for 19 years. Hellyer, a Liberal and a native of Waterford, Ont., graduated this year in arts from the University of Toronto.

Toronto (CP)—Thomas Langdon (Tommy) Church, Progressive Conservative veteran of political campaigns since the turn of the century, was re-elected in Toronto Broadview with a plurality of more than 1,000 votes over 25-year-old Ruth Radford, Liberal candidate.

Ottawa (CP)—Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King voted as a private citizen Monday for the first time since 1919 when he succeeded Sir Wilfred Laurier as national Liberal leader. The former prime minister drove to a Charlotte street polling booth in Ottawa East at 5:45 p.m. E.D.T.

Montreal (CP)—J. L. Sainte-Marie marked two ballots but it was all quite legal. He marked one for his wife who is blind. At their polling booth, Mrs. Sainte-Marie took an oath on the Bible that she is blind and needed the assistance of another person to fulfil her duty as a voter. Her husband then marked her ballot, after which he voted for himself.

Halifax (CP)—W. F. Carroll, former Justice of the Nova Scotia Supreme Court, won as Liberal candidate in the Nova Scotia riding of Inverness-Richmond. He defeated Progressive Conservative Dan Lewis MacDonald, brother of Liberal Premier Angus L. MacDonald of Nova Scotia.

Ottawa (CP) — Senator J. Gordon Fogo, president of the National Liberal Federation, described the Liberal victory as "a magnificent tribute from every province of Canada to our distinguished leader and prime minister of Canada, Louis St. Laurent."

Vancouver (CP) — Mrs. Grace MacInnis, daughter of J. S. Woodsworth, founder of the C.C.F., was defeated as C.C.F. candidate in Vancouver South by Liberal A. Laing. Mrs. MacInnis had hoped to form a parliamentary husband-and-wife team with husband Angus MacInnis who was re-elected in Vancouver East.

Ottawa (CP)—Strict enforcement of election regulations today prevented E. W. King, an arthritic cripple for 14 years, from voting in Ottawa West. He was unable to enter the polling booth and in previous years the ballot box has been brought outside to him. This year, the practice was stopped because of regulations that said ballot boxes must not be removed from the polling booth.

Montreal (CP)—Montreal Cartier provided a lively fight between Harry Binder, Labor Progressive, and Maurice Hartt, Liberal member of the last House, with Mr. Hartt winning re-election. Cartier returned Fred Rose in the 1945 general election as the only Labor Progressive ever to sit in the House of Commons. When Mr. Rose was sentenced to penitentiary for espionage activity, a by-election was held in March, 1947, and Mr. Hartt won.

Toronto (CP)—Nina Petruck, 21, entered a polling booth and identified herself as Mrs. Ogle of Niagara street. "Why that's my mother!" said Mrs. Anne Andrechuk, who was standing nearby. "You are certainly not my mother!" Miss Petruck was charged with impersonation.

St. John's, Nfld. (CP) — Canada's weather ship, the frigate St. Stephen, left her station midway between Labrador and Greenland for St. John's, where ballot boxes were put aboard. After the crew voted, boxes were flown to Halifax. Ballots will be counted later with remainder of the service vote.

Quebec (CP) — Ludger Dionne, Quebec textile manufacturer who set off sharp controversy when he brought 100 displaced Polish girls from Europe after the war to work in his St. George de Beauce mills, was defeated in Beauce riding by R. Poulin, Independent. Mr. Dionne was Liberal member for Beauce in the last Commons.

Valleyfield (CP) — Liberal R. Cauchon won Beauharnois from Progressive Conservative and Union of Electors candidates in a three way fight. For many years the seat had been held by Maxime Raymond, originally a Liberal who became leader of the Bloc Populaire party during the war. Mr. Raymond did not run in the 1949 election.

Vancouver (CP) — Ralph Campney, Liberal, scored a surprise landslide in the key seat of Vancouver Centre easily outrunning Hon. Harry H. Stevens, the 70-year-old Progressive Conservative warhorse who returned to the political arena after a nine-year retirement. Mr. Stevens, three times a minister, would have made his 30th appearance in the Commons if he had won.

North Bay (CP)—J. R. (Jack) Garland, former Ottawan and active in North Bay civic politics, retained Nipissing for the Liberals. J. L. Gauthier, who sat for Nipissing in the last House, ran and won in Sudbury, formerly part of the Nipissing riding, which was split by redistribution. In Nipissing, Mr. Garland polled more than 10,000 votes, defeating his Progressive Conservative opponent by a majority of 6,000.

Halifax (CP)—One Canadian returning officer was sworn in while swaying in a dory on the North Atlantic. When a ballot box for 23 voters on Lonely Sable Island, 100 miles east of Halifax, was flown out last week, the amphibian's pilot found rough water barring a landing near the island's rocky coast. He landed well offshore and Capt. Pat Solomon rowed out in a dory. After he was sworn in, he returned to shore with his ballot box. Later he radioed returns to the Halifax returning officer.

It Was Uncle Louis' Election

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, June 28 (CP) — It was Uncle Louis' election all the way.

No one could deny that today any more than they could deny the political dynamite in the campaign Prime Minister St. Laurent charted and fought in his own way, going to the people in his own fatherly way, talking to them quietly of peace and a fair share for all in villages and towns and cities from one ocean to the other.

Veteran reporters who followed him for thousands and thousands of miles said no Canadian prime minister had ever tried anything like it before.

He said there were no major issues and he made it stick. He went into villages and small towns he probably had never heard of and dozens of them said they hadn't seen a prime minister in years. He spoke 10 and 12 and 13 times a day until his throat gave out and then he rested and came back for more.

But above all he let the people come near him so they could hear him talk and see his face and decide "if you think you can trust me . . ."

So bilingual that his French flowed into his English without a halt or hitch, inevitably immaculate, powered by the energy accumulated in 67 years of a model life, he spoke a campaign that was largely one of quiet words, that championed the Liberal past and Liberal policies.

But they were words sparked fairly often by eloquence and by drama. There was profound emotion when he went home to his native village of Compton, Que.; courage when he went into big, tough Hamilton and said labor should have its fair share but should not dominate the land; something approaching religious fervor in the reaction to him in French-speaking eastern Ontario.

And one night particularly, at Owen Sound, his voice caught fire as he retorted to Tory advertisements intimating he was not a good Catholic and not a good French-Canadian. Reporters found themselves so awed by his sudden, burning eloquence that their pencils missed what he had said. He spoke of religious tolerance, of the values of a religious people with such powerful conviction that night that his predominantly-Protestant audience sat hushed and moved until he had had his say and then they cheered his words.

56 OF ONTARIO'S

Forty-five years of Conservative representation ended in Toronto Rosedale with the victory of Charles J. Henry, Liberal, over Harry Jackman. Mr. Henry was a long-time member of secretarial staff of former Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

The Liberals captured the newly-created Northern Ontario ridings of Timmins and Sudbury and held the Lakehead, Nipissing, Timiskaming and Rainy River ridings as well as Algoma East and Algoma West, elsewhere in Northern and Northwestern Ontario.

All the cabinet ministers representing Ontario ridings — External Affairs Minister Pearson, Trade Minister Howe, Revenue Minister McCann, Transport Minister Chevrier and Resources Minister Gibson — were re-elected.

All the women candidates in Ontario, in common with those in other provinces, were beaten. They were Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, Progressive Conservative, in Hamilton West; Myrtle Morrison, C. C. F. in Frontenac - Addington; and Ruth Radford, Liberal, in Toronto Broadview.

Some sports figures fared little better. A hockey player, A. V. (Dit) Clapper, Liberal, lost to Progressive Conservative G. K. Fraser in Peterborough West. Walter Martin, former Davis Cup tennis player from Saskatchewan, ran as Liberal candidate in York East and lost to R. H. McGregor, Progressive Conservative.

More successful was Lionel Conacher, Canada's greatest all-round athlete, who won Toronto Trinity for the Liberals from L. W. (Larry) Skey, Progressive Conservative. In doing so, he defeated Tim Buck, national leader of the Labor-Progressive party.

WEDDINGS

ATYEO—LOBB

Before an altar banked with ferns, white gladioli, blue delphiniums, pale pink peonies and dracaena, a pretty wedding of wide interest was solemnized on Saturday, June 25th, at 2 p.m., in Picton United Church, Picton, Ont., when Helen Carol Lobb, daughter of Mrs. George Emlaw, Milford, Ont., was united in marriage to Captain Gerald Leroy Atyeo, R.S.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Leroy Atyeo, Charles St., Belleville. The Reverend A. E. McCutcheon, pastor of the church, officiated.

Mr. A. Benvie, organist of the church, rendered the wedding music, and Mr. Harold Williams, guest soloist, of Belleville, sang before the ceremony, "Our Father Which Art in Heaven", and during the signing of the register, "Smiling Through the Years".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Malcolm Sedley, of Dunnville, Ont., was radiant in her bridal gown of white Swiss organdy in eyelet design, simply fashioned with fitted bodice, puff sleeves, scalloped bertha, matching mitts, and full skirt, ending in a slight train. Her headdress was a halo of matching eyelet organdy and lily-of-the-valley holding in place the long, embroidered French tulle veil. She carried a shower bouquet of deep pink roses, and bouvardia, with streamers of narrow white and blue satin ribbon.

Mrs. Jack Haddock, Toronto, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a blue eyelet organdy gown, similar to that of the bride, with scalloped bertha, matching mitts, and bandeau of tiny flowers. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses, with streamers of white and blue satin ribbon.

Dr. Ralph Atyeo, Belleville, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and Mr. John Sharland and Mr. Howard Kerr, both of Belleville, were ushers.

At the picturesque Lake Shore Hotel, where the reception was held, the bride's mother, gowned in blue crepe with lace bodice, and navy accessories and wearing a corsage of pink roses, was assisted in receiving the many guests by the mother of the bridegroom, who wore a gown of coral mesh with navy accessories, and corsage of tiny Sweetheart roses and bachelor buttons.

The toast to the bride was proposed to Mr. Gordon Bray, of Pickering, Ont., and to the bridesmaid by Dr. Ralph Atyeo, of Belleville.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Atyeo will reside at 260 Park St., Kingston, Ont.

Out-of-town guests were present from Montreal, Kingston, London, Hamilton, Toronto, St. Catharines, Syracuse, N.Y.; Dunnville; Pickering, Huntsville, Sudbury and Belleville.

The bride and groom motored to Elgin early Saturday, accompanied by the bride's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Davis, of Omemee.

The bride wore a grey gabardine suit with navy blue and white accessories and a corsage of blaze and white moss roses.

The couple will reside at Springbrook.

Woman on Annual Grain Harvest Trek for Seven Years Finds it "an Exciting Life"

By ROBERT E. FORD

Seymour, Tex., June 28 (AP) One of the world's noisiest and busiest migrations is getting into full swing. It's accompanied by sweat and toil, dust and sometimes tears.

But a lovely, motherly woman who has gone along on the annual grain harvest trees for seven years finds it an "exciting life." She is Mrs. V. W. Turner of Corsicana, Tex.

Each year in the spring the migration begins. Thousands of grain combines, accompanied by more thousands of gleaming grain trucks, roar down on the south from Canada and the northern United States.

One Operation

These combines cut and thresh grain in one operation. The combines roll south until they reach war latitudes where grain first ripens each year.

When the men and machines reach ripe grain, they turn and work north, harvesting as they go. Finally, by fall, they cross into Canada to wind up the season.

Mrs. Turner's husband is a crew chief with an outfit of typical size. Including Turner, there are eight members of the crew. He owns three combines, four trucks and a huge, 35-foot house trailer.

She says: "Sometimes it seems to me that it's just as important to keep the boys well fed and to provide a home atmosphere for them as to actually combine the wheat."

The trailer is well equipped for Mrs. Turner. It has bottled gas for the range and a gas-operated refrigerator. Electrical connections provide lights, power for fans and heat for an electric iron. At one end is a semi-circular dining table which seats 10.

Comforts of Home

Half the trailer is living quarters for Mr. and Mrs. Turner and their family. It has practically all the comforts of a stationary home.

Turner has been harvesting for 11 years. Mrs. Turner had to stay home and care for her four children until 1942. She's made the trip each year since except for 1943.

Two of the children are along this year — Bobradine, a music student, and James, who words with the crew.

Fine Gifts Presented To Recent Bride

A delightful shower was held at the home of Mrs. George Hammett, 17 Bridge Street East, by Mrs. Hammett and her daughter, Mrs. McCracken, in honor of Mona Wyatt, (Mrs. Chas. Greatrix), a recent bride of this month. The assembled guests spent an enjoyable evening making a bride's scrap book. The bride-to-be was presented with a lovely coffee table, satin cushion and luncheon cloth, for which she graciously thanked her many friends.

SHANNONVILLE

H. & S. Assoc Elects Officers For Ensuing Year

Shannonville—The Home and School Association held their last meeting for the Summer months in the local school on Monday evening last.

The meeting was opened with the president, Mr. William Slavin in the chair. The minutes of the May meeting were approved as read.

It was decided that membership fees be paid in full for the past year; that the purchase of membership cards be made for the new year.

Mr. Reynolds suggested to the group present that it might be beneficial to the parents who have several children attending school, if books could be secured through the sanction of the local school board, thus receiving a discount. It was decided also that the secretary write the school board requesting permission for the new teacher in September to buy all the necessary textbooks for this school through the School Board, so that the parents might benefit by the School Boards' discount.

Mr. Reynolds expressed his appreciation to the Home and School Association for this splendid co-operation and backing with the recent school area field day.

Permission was given the teacher to look after the cup during the Summer months, which the local school won at the school meet.

Mrs. Kilburn moved a vote of thanks to the teachers, Miss Fox and Mr. Reynolds for their fine co-operation during this past school year. This was seconded by Mrs. Jerry Dafoe.

Slate of Officers

Mrs. Gordon Johnston was appointed returning officer for the election of officers for the year. Mrs. Kilburn and Mrs. Dafoe were appointed Deputy Returning officers. The chairman of the nominating committee, Mr. Orville Reynolds, presented the slate of officers.

Officers for the year 1949-50 were elected by ballot as follows —President, Mr. William Slavin; Vice President, Mr. Carman Brant; Secretary, Mrs. Helen Louis; Treasurer, Mr. Walter Brant, (returned by acclamation) Executive — Mrs. Kilburn, Mrs. Clifford Maracle, Mrs. Fred Lewis and Mrs. Herb Brant, teachers of junior room.

The president, Mr. William Slavin, took this opportunity to thank the retiring secretary, Mrs. A. Spencer and the program convener, Mrs. Jerry Dafoe, for their fine co-operation this past year. He also expressed his appreciation to the past executive for their help and assistance.

Playground Needed

A discussion followed regarding a much needed playground in the vicinity. It was decided that the Home and School Association with the permission of the School Board, sponser a playground this summer on the local school grounds. Several of the male members of the Association generously offered their assistance in the construction of playground equipment. Mrs. Kilburn kindly offered material from the hotel premises. Fifty dollars were to be set aside to equip and pay for the supervising of the playground.

All donations to be received from the interested parents to help in the expenses of the proposed playground be given Mrs. Kilburn, who kindly offered to receive these donations at her home.

It was decided to leave further details to the executive to be discussed at their meeting next week.

Varied Program

Mrs. Dafoe then introduced Mr. Arbuckle, a recent arrival from Scotland to the neighborhood. Mr. Arbuckle favored the gathering with several selections on a large and an extremely small mouth organ. He played several request numbers including "The Road to the Isles".

Miss Verna Fox rendered two lovely solos "Danny Boy" and "My Ain Folk" accompanied at the piano by Mrs. G. M. Fraser.

Refreshments were served by the male members of the Association in a capable manner.

Miss Fox and Mr. Reynolds thanked the Association for their co-operation during this past school year and also for the gifts tendered them at the recent association dance.

Miss Fox has accepted a position on the staff of the Grand Avenue School in Toronto, and Mr. Reynolds goes to Hamilton this September.

Mrs. Herb Brant presided at the piano for the musical numbers.

The next meeting to be held in September.

TIME TO GET BUSY MAKING JAM AND JELLY

For Quick, Easy Sure Results Take Your Choice of CERTO or "CERTO" Crystals

Jam and jelly-making need not be a chore. The sensible, modern way to do it is with the help of CERTO or "CERTO" Crystals. Both are fruit pectin—the natural substance in fruit that makes jams "jam" and jellies "jell" — extracted and concentrated for efficient jam and jelly making. The name "Certo" is a trade-mark.

Please yourself which you choose . . . some prefer the liquid — some the crystals. Each ends guesswork and tedious long-boiling. Each gives sure results if you follow the instructions exactly.

Why CERTO Fruit Pectin or "CERTO" Crystals Make Better Jams and Jellies . . . Easier . . . Quicker

1. VERY SHORT BOIL. When you use CERTO or "CERTO" Crystals you need only a ONE-MINUTE full, rolling boil for both jams and jellies. Such a saving of time and work!
2. MORE JAM OR JELLY. Very little juice has time to boil away as it does in old-fashioned, long-boiling. You get up to 50% more jam or jelly from the same amount of fruit.
3. FRESH-FRUIT TASTE . . . COLOUR. The lovely taste and colour of the fresh fruit stay in your jams and jellies because the boil is too short to spoil the one or dull the other.
4. NO GUESSWORK. With either CERTO or "CERTO" Crystals you get tested recipes — a different one for each fruit. Follow them exactly and you'll have no failures.

Halifax — (CP) — Railway officials found in some old records a description of a rather odd means of travel used frequently in the 1850's. Nova Scotian farmers wishing to visit Halifax apparently piled their horses and wagons on rail cars, unloading them in Halifax to travel about the city.

By Oren Arnold

Young Ken Palmer was the one of their immediate little group of friends most distressed of all. He read the papers and heard the constant talk with a growing sense of anger and apprehension.

"I don't like it dad," young Ken Palmer was saying, at lunch. "The thing is getting out of hand.' '

"I quite agree with you. A bit of harmless fun and competition is one thing, but to involve a whole university and state in--"

"Besides," Ken wasn't listening to his father, "she must not be done this way! She is above all this!"

"I beg your pardon?"

"Yes sir. And another thing--she didn't invite it, did nothing to bring it on. It's not as if she were deliberately trying to force herself on the public's attention. I tell you she is above all such ballyhoo!

Dr. Palmer spoke levelly. "You are quite vehement, son. And just who, pray tell, is 'she"? I had thought we referred to the university."

"Hunh?"

"Um. Kenyon, it ill becomes-"

"I was speaking of Polly. Polly McMurray."

Dr. Palmer eyebrows arched. "So? I see!"

"Yes sir. And excuse me, please, I dont want any dessert I've got to meet Polly in a moment. She wants my advice."

"You are excused Business advice, no doubt?"

"Yes sir. In a way."

He didn't see the laughter that had crept into Dr. Palmer's eyes. He was up and gone, a young man with serious personal matters in mind.

But Dr. Palmer himself immediately grew serious again. His sense of humor held toward Ken. But he was genuinely distressed over the hullabaloo about selecting a fiesta queen. He had expected one of his 600 university girls to be chosen casually some morning at school assembly and thus end it all. Instead, the entire college routine had been upset for days, and factionalism was extending out all over the city and state.

Under pressure he had agreed to take the election out of the usual school assembly and conduct it in mass meeting to be held in the outdoor amphitheatre, Frontier's beautiful natural assembly place in Shadow Canyon under Ho-Ho-Kam Mountan. The mass meetng was scheduled for 2 o'clock this very afternoon, which is why both Dr. Palmer and his son had been worked up about it.

At a quarter of one Dr. Palmer walked out to meet Joy Boone's secretary, Miss Carlson, by appointment. She agreed to sit on the stage with him. She had, infact, been seen more and more with the university president of late.

"Bettina," he said after they had met, "I want you to come over here a moment and look! Beyond this hedge." He led her 50 feet or so then pointed. "Behold the amphitheatre--already full! It is amazing what interest this silly thing has aroused."

"Nothing is silly, Kenyon, if it touches people's hearts."

He looked down at her, a lovely little woman who had hardly looked her forty years. Her sheer daintiness always impressed him, and her mentality impressed him even more.

"You are right, Bettina," he murmured. "You are quite right. And yet--will you just look, anyway. People are still coming. Most of those in seats now are adults, not our students. There won't be half enough seats."

"No. But two-thousand can sit down, and then ten thousand more can find seats up the slope of the mountain. Shadow Canyon has perfect acoustics, you know."

He nodded. "I asked the electricians to arrange for loud speakers. I can see them already there."

A strange man came to them then, holding out his hands.

"Howdy do, sir," he said. "You're the president, and you're his wife I expect, ma'am, and I'm proud to meetcha. Now I'm Oscar Hale and I'm a cow man and I'm here to say we don't want no eastern girl to come in here and take over the way she's threatenin' to do! She cain't do that just because she happens to be up to her neck in money! Anyway from all the pictures I see she's a palomino from the hide out, and it takes a coal black filly like Buck McMurray's daughter to look like a purty Spanish senorita, let me tell you!"

He had said it all in one outburst, giving no chance for the usual social amenities save to shake hands. He had a bristly week-old growth of whiskers which poked out belligerently, although there was courtesy in his tone.

Miss Carlson blushed, but Dr. Palmer bowed a little. "You make your position quite clear, sir," said he. "This lady is my friend, Miss Carlson. You will attend the mass meeting, no doubt?"

"You c'n bet a hoss I will! And we don't aim to keep quiet, neither! We'll have our say!" With that he was gone.

"I don't doubt it," murmered Dr. Palmer laconically, to Bettina Carlson. "But even so, I'm afraid it isn't a joking matter."

At about 1:30 the president and Miss Carlson were walking toward the crowded amphitheatre when Joy Boone herself saw them. Joy was with a group of girls. She detached one and led her toward Dr. Palmer and Miss Carlson. The one proved to be Polly.

"Good afternoon, young ladies!" their president bowed to them smiling. "Here it is election moment and you two are together like friends."

Polly frowned impatiently. "We're not arguing between ourseleves, Dr. Palmer. It's being done for us!"

"It's all so silly," Joy agreed. But Joy's eyes were bright with anticipation, even so. "I like Polly and I expect to continue liking her."

"Thanks, Joy. You know where I stand! I wish we weren't---"

"Let's go in," Dr. Palmer said. "People are staring. I see Ken motioning to us near the rostrum. What a large crowd!"

Seemingly everybody had tried to attend this mass meeting. It had all the aspects of a political gathering. Dozens of placards on sticks advertised for one side or the other. A group of 30 or 40 girls up the hillside, beyond the tiers of rock seats, began singing a pep song backing Joy, and it was answered by another group 75 yards away cheering Polly. At the cheer, ranch men and boys stood up to shout loudly.

"Vivalla fiesta!" somebody yelled, and then the whole throng cheered.

"See!" Dr. Palmer murmured to Bettina at that. "They could be united! They are merely thoughtless. Exhuberant. Momentarily they are unaniomous for the fiesta itself! That's significant, Bettina."

She looked up at him nervously. "What will you do Kenyon?"

"Wait!..Here is my son, with young Ward McMurray too. They have seats for the girls. You must sit on the platform with 'me. Come!"

Dr. Palmer, very erect and moving with calm deliberation, assisted Miss Carlson up the steps and then turned to smile at the throng before he went to the microphone that was waiting. He glanced at his wrist watch. He held out one hand, for quiet.

"Ladies and Gentlmen," he began, "You know precisely why we have gatherred here. On behalf of Phoenix I welcome you folk from out of town. On behalf of Frontier University I welcome everyone. This is your school. Please visit us often.

"And my fellow Arizonians, it is this school about which I shall talk. Your enthusiam here today deeply impresses me. I see many earnest faces. I know that you represent much of the wealth of our beloved state. I know, too that while the selection of a fiesta queen is a matter likely to concern each one of us, in the final analysis it is but a passing incident, a moment-out, in play. By chance today the election concerns only two girls. I submit, citizens of Arizona, that approximately six hundred other Frontier girls sit before you also. Girls as eager, as lovable, and as worthy as any two.

"The six hundred are all this school can accomodate. We turned down application this fall for nearly a thousand more! Further, there is a desperate need for this to be a co-educational institution, that your sons may also come here to learn.

"Friends, that is the BIG issue here!

More Telephone Workers...

AND HIGHER WAGES HAVE GREATLY INCREASED OUR COSTS

IN THE PAST five years the number of employees has doubled and our payroll has gone up from 20 million dollars to over 50 million dollars. Yet, up to now, despite rising costs on all sides there has been no increase in the basic telephone rates established 22 years ago.

To meet unprecedented post-war demand for more telephones, our expansion and improvement of service have of necessity taken place in a period of rapidly rising costs. Most businesses have offset their higher costs by higher prices for their products. We have not yet done so.

You can be sure we will keep on doing our best to provide you with adequate and constantly improving telephone service — and to provide it at the lowest rates consistent with a fair return to our investors and employees.

Major Loop Attendance Shows Decline Of 400,000 in Comparison With Last Year

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The majors are headed for an attendance decline from last year's record-breaking totals, comparative figures showed today.

With most of the 16 clubs having played nearly half their 77 home games, a check revealed that only six clubs are ahead of last year's figures.

Through games of Monday night, a total of 8,588,438 fans paid to watch the teams in action, as compared to the 8,965,152 who saw the same number of games in 1948. That is a drop of 376,714.

At this rate, the majors are certain to fall approrimately 1,000,000 behind last year's record figure of 20,943,345.

Cleveland Indians have suffered the biggest drop, having drawn about 145,000 fewer fans than in '48 at a corresponding date. Cincinnati, Detroit, New York Giants and Philadelphia Phils are others which have fallen 100,000 below last year's figures.

Pittsburgh Pirates show the biggest gain, 180,000 more than last year.

The Cardinals drew a night game crowd of 13,178 in the only regular game played in the majors Monday, but the fans were doomed to disappointment as Chicago Cubs beat the Redbirds 6-4. The defeat prevented the Cards from tying the Dodgers for the league lead. Instead, the Redbirds are now a full game behind the Brooks.

The Yankees defeated the Giants in an exhibition game at Yankee Stadium, 5-3, when Kirby Higbe walked two men with the bases loaded in the eighth to break a 3-3 tie.

Joe Dimaggio, the Yankees' ailing outfielder, playing his first game of the season, went the full nine innings and declared his injured heel gave him no added pain. He failed to get a hit in four official times at bat.

Mickey Owen reinstated catcher, playing his first game for Brooklyn, singled in the ninth and scored the winning run as the Dodgers defeated Cleveland Indians 4-3 in an exhibition game at Ebbets Field.

Philadelphia Phils routed the Athletics, by a one-sided 19-2 score and Cincinnati defeated Detroit 10-4 in other exhibition tilts.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, June 28. (AP)—An aftermath of the recent pro tennis championship is that Forest Hills, N.Y., is soured on the pros and vice versa. . .The customers stayed away in droves from that Bobby Riggs-Don Budge final and neither the players, who split $880 in the final, nor the West Side Tennis Club, which absorbs the losses, are happy about it. . . The pros feel that a change of scenery (maybe) and a wholesale influx of new talent (certainly) would improve the situation . . . but judging by results from Wimbledon, there's not much good new talent in sight. . . .Come to think of it, tennis is in about the same situation as other professional sports, except football, when it comes to producing new stars . . . somehow the major league football clubs manage to turn up about 200 rookies each fall and most of them are good.

What's the score?

From headquarters of the pioneer baseball league comes a report of a delayed action, reverse English sacrifice, if you can figure that one out . . . Seems Henry Sich of the Pocatello, Idaho, Cardinals, was on first base in a game against Twin Falls. . . . Catcher Dick Morgan laid down a perfect sacrifice bunt and was tossed out at first. . . As Morgan walked slowly toward the Pocatello dugout back of third, Sich nonchalantly strolled back to first and never got any farther . . .It wasn't until the next day that the explanation came out. Sich thought the bunt rolled foul and that Morgan was returning to the plate. Nobody else noticed what was going on. . . And the pioneer bills itself as "the best Class C League in America."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Tonight the executive of the Belleville District Baseball League meets to discuss the fate of the Trenton entry. At a meeting a short time ago the Trenton team was advised by the loop master-minds to withdraw from the league and affiliate with a "C" grouping. Manager John Haffey was given until tonight to make his decision. Refusal to co-operate with the league in its suggestion, it was stated, would mean suspension from the league. Tonight will tell the story.

* * *

The Zulu Jungle Giants, a colored team of baseball stars who wear traditional jungle habiliments in their diamond calisthenics, will be the guests of the Batawa Shoemen at the Fair Grounds on Thursday night. The colored lads come here with a topflight reputation and this with their glamorous garb should assure fans of an evening of fine entertainment.

* * *

Election is over and the boys can settle down to the more serious things of life. The tub-thumping and the drumbeating has ceased, the bets paid off (or are they?) the politicians and their camp followers know the score for sure now and the country can drop back into the ordinary way of life. We're set for another five years at least, so let's put the old shoulder to the wheel and boost the best country in the world.

* * *

Secretary Bill Snyder of the Ontario Baseball Association, yesterday announced transfers of several players from hither to yon with the greater majority being United States players playing for Canadian teams. Art Wright, junior hurler of this city, who sought the faraway pastures with Allan Kelleher at Stratford earlier in the season, is returning home and his transfer has been sanctioned by the O.B.A.

* * *

While Art's plans are not yet known it is altogether likely the Kiwanis Juniors will seek his services. The Juniors can stand some bolstering in the hurling department and the arrival of Wright may prove to be the answer to a few prayers. Billy Strachan and Don Semark have been carrying the pitching load for the youngsters so far this season, and Wright's acquisition will strengthen the team considerably.

* * *

Squqadron Leader McCarthy and Lieut. Gibson, it says here, have had their transfers from Ottawa to Trenton sanctioned, so it looks like the Trenton Flyers will get some additional strength. We have been unable to discover what positions the two transferred Flyers play, but in any event their arrival at the station will provide some strength to the team. Matt Beckstead's transfer from Brockville to Trenton was also O'K'd by the powers-that-be although the player has performed all his baseball with the Batawa Shoemen. Thirty United States players were given their official transfer.

The Tam O' Shanter County Club, Chicago, is holding it's 9th annual golf jamboree — the All-American and World Championship, two greatest money-pressure tournaments of the year — will be played on August 5-14 with a record prize list of $66,000 as a lure for the game's sweetest swingers.

* * *

The ten-day gold rush will open with the traditional All-American Men's Pro; All-American Amateur and the All-American Women's Open phases of the yearly three-ply fairway event. All three divisions of the meet will be played smultaneously with winners being crowned on a 72-hole medal basis.

* * *

Tug Carlson, the spectacular, blond matman who has taken fans and opponents by storm since his invasion of Canadian rings, can just about write his own ticket from here in if he can defeat Fred Atkins, the bashing Australian, in their grudge match at the Memorial Arena Friday night.

* * *

Carlson's very popularity with the fans seems to have increased Atkins' enmity for his rival so that Tug will likely have more than the usual share of the Australian's smashing attacks to deal with.

* * *

"I expected that," explained Carlson today, "and don't forget that that Atkins bird will find himself against a different person in the ring Friday night too. This is a personal issue with we now."

* * *

When the nation's top rowers gather to compete for the National Rowing Championships this year, Buffalo's world renown West Side Rowing Club will be their host. The National Rowing Regatta to be held July 23 and 24th, in Black Rock Channel, Buffalo, N.Y., always an outstanding event to sportsmen, this year will be the most spectacular ever staged.

* * *

Coupled with the cream of the nation's oarsmen will be additional attractions such as fishing contests, aquatic acts, a boat parade and many other spectator-thrillers. The West Side Rowing Club, also host at the 1937 National Rowing Regatta, this year expects over 300 oarsmen from many sections of the United States and Canada. Plans are now being formulated to take care of an estimated crowd of fifty thousand spectators.

Little bankroll, ere we part,
Let me hug you to my heart.
All the year I've clung to you;
I've been faithful, you've been true.
Little bankroll, in a day
You and I will start away
To a good vacation spot.
I'll come back, but you will not.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By ARNOLD AGNEW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, June 28 — (CP)—Hockey fans in Kingston are not going to like this, but Halifax has done it again.

On the occasion of Halifax' bicentenary celebrations, Alex (Halifax Chronicle - Herald) Nickerson writes: "The city which was the birthplace of ice hockey continues to play a major role in the game which today is flourishing throughout the United States and Europe and is regarded as the national game of the Dominion of Canada."

While Capt. Jim Sutherland campaigned the claims of Kingston, Ont., for many years as the original playing - place for hockey, Halifax contended that the popular ice game was originally played down east."

Played Game with Indians

Nick says that the late Co.. B.A. Weston of Halifax said he played hockey in the 1860s in neighboring Dartmouth with Micmac Indians. And the Micmacs were supposed to have played long before that.

"The first nets ever used in a hockey game in Canada were seen in a contest played in the Empire rink here in January, 1899 . . . Previously boxes had been used for goals and it has been recalled that players in games played in Cashen's rink in the north end of the city had to score sideways instead of straight ahead as they do today.

"When the Chebuctos from Dartmouth travelled to Montreal in 1889, a Montreal newspaper credited that team from down east with having introduced the forward pass to Montreal hockey . . .

The play was part of what was then known as the Halifax rules, and for several years this style was in vogue in the Maritime provinces which Upper Canada was playing under a code which ruled all forward passing as offside."

Plenty of Road Time

Nick says that hockey players got in plenty of road time in the old days. "In 1905 the Dawson City team from the far north Yukon Territory crossed Canada and played hockey in Halifax." That was in the days when players paid admission to their own games.

Since then, artificial ice, "imported talent, big - name coaches" and changed rules have speeded up hockey in Halifax, "which maintains its claims as the birthplace of Canada's national winter game."

Ezzard Charles Wants Guarantee Of $100,000

By The Canadian Press

Ezzard Charles, the new heavyweight recognized by the National Boxing Association, will fight anyone next Summer who can provide a $100,000 guarantee.

That's the word from Charles' co-manager Jake Mintz. . At Pittsburgh Mintz wants to make the Cincinnati Negro's title unanimous—at least in the United States.

The New York State Boxing Commission did not recognize Tuesday night's bout in which Charles took a 15-round decision from Jersey Joe Walcott.

Mintz said he plans to see the New York Commission about holding Charles' first title defence in New York.

At New York, welterweight Champion Ray Robinson, worried over getting stale, kept out of the ring, Monday while Kid Gavilan, the Cuban challenger, boxed six rounds in another tune-up for their title bout. The two meet in a 15-rounder in Philadelphia July 11.

Robinson, who has his camp at Pompton Lakes, N.J., weighed 149 pounds—two over the weight limit—Monday and his handlers feared he was shedding weight too fast in the heat.

At New York, a new boxing organization came out swinging today with the assertion it was ready and willing to buck Madison Square Garden for the New York fight fan's dollar. The ambitious newcomer to the promotional wars is the American Boxing League, Incorporated, backed by an amusement park director, Jo Wiseman, and David Charnay, one-time head of the dissolved Tournament of Champions (T. of C.).

From Chicago comes word that Eddie Robinson, 29-year-old Washington Senators first baseman, appears a cinch to be in the American League starting lineup for the 16th annual all-star baseball game in Brooklyn, July 12. Robinson, who played with Cleveland last year and led the league in fielding with a .994 average, holds an advantage of 338,426 votes over his nearest rival, the tribe's Mickey Vernon. Vernon went to Cleveland from the Senators in the swap that included Robinson.

Juniors Rally To Defeat Flyers 9-7

In a free - hitting game played at the Exhibition Grounds last night, the Kiwanis Juniors, after trailing 6-1 in the seventh inning suddenly exploded in the seventh and racked up eight runs to snatch a 9-7 victory from the Trenton RCAF Flyers.

Twenty - two hits all told including triples and two basers rattled off the bats of both teams with Juniors piling up an even dozen and Flyers accounting for ten.

Don Semark went the entire route for the youngsters and although he yielded up 10 safeties turned in a fine effort on the mound. He struck out fourteen Flyers and issued four walks. In the fifth innings he struck out three Flyer batters in a row.

Flyers sent Fox to the mound to start proceedings and he lasted until the seventh when Juniors slung over their rally. Martyn went to his relief but he was no better and big Jim Titus had to take over in the same innings before the Kiwanis fire was extinguished.

Flyers took a commanding lead in the third when they pushed over four runs off a pair of hits, one a two-bagger by Maracle and a couple of Junior errors and a hit-by-pitcher. They added two more in the fourth on three clouts, one a three - bagger by Renaud, and the boys in blue appeared headed for victory.

The Kiwanis bats went into action suddenly in the eighth. They pounded out four solid safeties which coupled with bases on balls and an error accounted for eight runs crossing the plate. Juniors scored the other run in the third when Lave Lockyer's triple sent Mouse Bush who had singled across the plate.

Flyers scored their seventr run in the ninth on an error and putouts.

Coursal, Flyer catcher got four singles to pace the Flyer attack, with Maracle getting a pair. Bush, Galbraith and Lockyer got two each for the Juniors, with Brown poling out a triple and two singles.

Knotholers Win Over Corbys in Overtime Contest

Singles by Blaind, Green, and Wardhaugh drove over the winning run for Houstons in the top of the ninth last evening as the "Knotholers" scraped out a 5-4 victory over Corbys in an overtime contest at the Alemite field.

It was a nip and tuck battle with the lead swinging back and forth throughout the game. Corbys opened the scoring in the bottom of the third counting two on Hunter's home run to left field with D. Sword aboard. Baldwin and Downing singled and Ray Reid strolled to load the bases with none away. Baldwin was forced at the plate and Harold Reid and Nolan flied out to retire the side.

Houstons got one back in the top of the fifth with Wood driving in Blaind who had doubled. Corbys went two up in their end of the fifth with Moon singling to score Baldwin who had singled and taken second on a beautiful sacrifice bunt by Downing.

Houstons made the most of two singles and an error in the sixth to push over three runs and take a slim lead. Two singles and a wild pitch gave Corbys the equalizer in the bottom of the seventh, forcing the game into extra innings.

Baldwin went the route for the losers walking two, striking out two, and giving up eight hits for five runs. Hunter started on the hill for Houstons and in five innings walked one, struck out one, and gave up six hits for 3 runs. "Lefty" Bob Green went in in the sixth and pitched some masterful ball in relief, walking one, striking out five, and scattering three hits for one run and the victory.

Batter Drives In Three Runs Without Hit

(By The Associated Press)

How can a batter drive in three runs in one time at bat without making a base hit?

Sound impossible? Well, it happened Monday night in the second game of the Montreal-Jersey City Intrenational League doubleheader.

The Little Giants won the opener 7-4 and were trying to make it two in a row over the Royals. They loaded the bases with none out in the second inning. Left fielder Neal Washington rapped what appeared to be a double, scoring all three base runners. He failed to touch first, however, and was declared out, thus getting credit for three runs batted in without so much as a base hit.

Those runs were enough to give the Giants a 5-3 victory in the second game and a sweep of the twin bill. Andy Tomasic and Red Hardy were the winning pitchers. Pat McGlothin and Dan Bankhead were the losers.

Georges Byam's two-run homer in the 11th inning gave the league-leading Buffalo Bisons a 6-4 victory over Baltimore. The Bisons tied the score in the eighth when Lonnie Frey banged his first home run this season with two mates aboard.

Clubbing Bill Woop and Harry Schaeffer for 15 hits, including seven extra-base blows, Toronto Maple Leafs socked the Newark Bears 10-3. Oscar Judd gave up eight hits for his sixth victory.

Syracuse and Rochester were not scheduled.

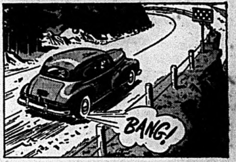
BLOWOUTS STRIKE WITHOUT WARNING!
No tire is blowout-proof!
BUT GOODYEAR LIFEGUARDS MAKE BLOWOUTS HARMLESS
Because of the terrific punishment they must take, not even the best tires are blowout proof. What will happen to you if you have a blowout tomorrow? In that split second will you be ready to wheel-fight your way to safety? Will you swerve out of control into the ditch, or crash into oncoming traffic? Or will you bring your car to a safe, gradual stop—like any other motorist with LifeGuards in his tires?
LifeGuards give far more protection than mere "puncture-sealing" devices. They actually make a blowout harmless after it happens—and it can happen to any tire, any place, any time.
Remember, too, that LifeGuards are the most economical tubes you can use—frequently outlast 3 or 4 sets of tires. In sizes available, they fit any make of tire—new or now in service. They're easy to get—see your Goodyear dealer! You can't get better protection to save your life!
Liberal trade-in on your present tubes!



1. "Travelling along a mountain road at a good speed," writes a motorist of Nelson, B.C., "I struck a rock, causing a blowout at the very edge of a sheer drop!".

2. Here's what COULD have happened! A vain fight with the wheel . . . then a plunge over the 125-foot drop at the road edge!

3. Here's what ACTUALLY happened, in the driver's own words: "I was able to bring my car to a safe stop; thanks to LifeGuards."
HOW LIFEGUARD SAFETY TUBES CAN SAVE YOUR LIFE

ORDINARY TUBES
1. Ordinary tubes have but one air chamber. When tire blows, tube blows too.
2. Instantly both tire and tube go flat, frequently throwing car out of control.
LIFEGUARD SAFETY TUBES
3. The LifeGuard Tube has two air chambers. In case of blowout, only outer chamber gives way.
4. Reserve of air in strong cord fabric inner chamber supports car long enough for a safe, gradual stop.

A winning play before your very eyes is not always obvious. You may not be looking far enough ahead to spot it. Such could be the case in this deal:

♦A K 6
♣Q 5

South was declarer at four spades. West led off with his ace of hearts, hoping east could ruff the second round. This made the prospects look black for declarer.

Ruff of a second heart, trump ace, and a latter club trick will give opponents three more tricks. These are enough to kill the bid. Is there any way to prevent it?

Looking far ahead, south found a way. All he did was duck in dummy instead of covering with the king when west led the queen. This saved the business. See how it works out.

West was permitted to keep the second heart trick. Heart jack was led next and south was able to ruff. This gave him a chance to start pushing out the opponent trumps.

Whether or not east won a trump trick with his ace at once made no difference. His club return was taken with dummy club ace. Any remaining trumps with opponents were pulled.

Dummy was entered with a diamond and a lead of the heart king from there was safe. On it was sluffed the remaining south club. There were no club losers by this operation. Thus did declarer lose two heart tricks, trump ace, and nothing more.

What if dummy king had covered the second heart lead? East would have ruffed and returned a club. Then when he got in with trump ace, a club return would give west a club trick.

A play like this is not easily seen at once. It seems like deliberately giving up an unnecessary trick. Does it give you that feeling? You and me both.

SEEK RECRUITS IN REVOLT PLANS

At their headquarters in Havana, Cuba, Maj.-Gen. Rivas is Aldo Aleman Herrera, secretary of Association of Former Fighters and Anti-Fascist Revolutionists of Cuba. Next to Rivas is Martin Ancedes. (Central Press Canadian).

Proving that modern U.S. Congressmen are no shrinking violets, these two representative, E. E. Cox, left, and Adoph Sabath exchanged a few hearty blows with one another on the floor of the House of Representatives. Sabath is 83 but gave no ground in the squabble until their better judgment asserted itself and they called the fist fight off and restricted their battle to sweet reason. (Central Press Canadian).

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, June 27 (AP) — Joan Fontaine's name will brighten a Broadway marquee next fall.

The actress announces she will appear for the Theater Guild in "Hilda Crain", a new play by Samson Raphaelson. It will be her first stage engagement since 1941, when she played with an all-star cast in Noel Coward's short plays for British charity. The troupe appeared in Hollywood and San Francisco.

If the new play is a success, Joan may stay with it as long as two years, with summer vacations for picture making.

"A male star—like Henry Fonda can stay away from films for a long time and come back safely," she told me. "But it is more dangerous for a woman to be off the screen for long."

The actress has a full schedule before starting the play. She has to finish "Bed of Roses", then goes to Italy for three weeks of locations on "September", returning here to complete the film.

Notes and Stuff

Paul Douglas goes to Berlin for "Quartered City" after he finishes "Turned Up Toes". He says it will be like going home—"I was there dozens of times before the war." The guy is refreshingly modest—says his greatest performance to date is when he accepts his movie salary with a straight face.

Dennis Morgan is playing another straight acting role in "Perfect Strangers" with Ginger Rogers. He was signed for the movies as a singer, but has done only 10 musicals in his 36 films.

Ossining, N. Y., — (AP) — The Sing Sing prison baseball team was defeated Saturday for the first time this season.

The winners? The Police Athletic League of Ossinning. The score was 4-3 despite a tremendous home run by Piggy Sands for the prison club.

Sands drove the ball over the wall. No one was allowed to go hunt for it. The game was played inside the prison.

Muncie, Ind. — (AP) — A man carrying a spinning wheel down a sidewalk caught the attention of George A. Ball, 86-year-old Muncie industrialist.

Ball's daughter, Miss Elisabeth Ball, collects antiques, with emphasis on spinning wheels. Would the man sell the antique? You bet, and for only $1.50.

Ball took the spinning wheel to his daughter Saturday. It looked familiar. They checked the cabin where Miss Ball's antiques are kept. The building had been broken into and the spinning wheel was missing.

New Haven, Conn. — (AP) — Was it hot Phew!

The Tomlinson bridge across the Quinnipiac River her jammed so that it could not be opened. The sizzling above - 90 temperatures had expanded the steel framework.

Firemen played two hose lines on the bridge for three hours, and finally caused the steel to contract a quarter of an inch. That was enough to free the bridge and permit it to be raised for a waiting oyster boat.

Little Benny's Note Book

I went to the Little Grand with uds Simkins and Lucky Leroy Shooster to see the Saturday afternoon Western, being Spike Beezley in Riding Hard and being exterk swell till Spike Beezley fell in love with the gerl from the East that he would not even talk to the ferst part of the picture, and after that there was pritty neer as mutch kissing as there was riding and shooting, and I said, Aw cramberries, we're being jipped.

I wish we had our money back, Puds said, and Leroy said, I know how to get it back. All we got to do is start to whissle whenever he kisses her, and they cant put us out without giving us our money back according to law, he said.

Leroy always claiming he knows what's according to law on account of his father being a lawyer, and we started to whissle every time Spike Beezley kissed the gerl from the East, beginning with short whissles and werking up to long ones, and some of the people around us laffed and some shusshed at us, and Leroy said. Oh boy, it's werking.

Meening the usher coming up and he stopped and pointed a mad finger at us, saying, One more whissle and you all go out on your ears.

Not sounding like a invitation to give us our money back, and Leroy said, Well how about the money we payed to get in here?

We'll take good care of it, and we'll charge you each 3 cents more for every whissle from now till you get thrown out, the usher said.

And he went away again, and we asked Leroy if they could charge us more for exter whissles according to law, and Leroy said he wasn't sure.

The result being we just shut our eyes and made silent faces every time Spike Beezley kissed the gerl from the East.

Being better than nuthing.

Citizenship Talks Heard By Rotary

"A citizen of a free state has many privileges, responsibilities and duties," stated Bob Gibson in an address on citizenship delivered at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club, held Monday noon in the Hotel Quinte.

"We in this democracy enjoy the four freedoms and to continue to enjoy them we must do our duty as citizens, duties which range from keeping the streets free of snow in the winter time to voting. It is a privilege to vote. It is your right to vote as you please and it is your duty to vote as intelligently as you know how," the speaker told the gathering.

Must exercise rights

"In a dictatorship the first duty of the citizen is obedience to the dictator in all things. If we are to maintain our freedom from dictatorship we must exercise our rights and duties," he concluded.

"An informed public opinion is the greatest bulwark of democracy," said Leo Marcus following up the citizenship theme put forward by Bob Gibson. "The tendency today is to become lax in your thinking and to look to institution for guidance rather than take an active part in the moulding of institutions.

"We in Canada enjoy the essence of democracy and we can show our faith in our democracy by getting out and voting."

The two speakers were introduced by Freeman Burrows and received the thanks of the club through President Mac Macklem.

Regrets expressed

President Macklem expressed the feelings of regret which the club felt on the departure of Ken Reid for Toronto. Ken introduced his successor, Harold Parker.

Mr. Norman Taylor, Manchester England, was introduced by Fred Deacon. "We in England appreciate the work done by you for us. We are not as unthankful as many might suppose. We are working hard at home to help ourselves, you in this country and our European friends. While in Belleville I have seen you living in a manner which I hope we shall enjoy again."

Jamieson Bone gave a humorous account of his recent trip to South America.

1,400 Musky Fingerlings Placed In Bay Of Quinte

Members of the Belleville Fish and Game Protective Association met the department trucks from the hatchery and assisted materially with boats and otherwise in planting more than 1,400 fingerling lunge in the Bay of Quinte this past week. The fish were in splendid physical condition and about seven inches long.

Nearly 200 applications are made and fish of each type are planted in that many locations in Hastings and Prince Edward counties each year by the Fish and Game members. The fry and fingerlings are furnished by the Ontario Department of Fish and Game.

Eentries are coming in to the directors in the big fish prize contest that offers a prize for the largest and second largest fish caught by members in each type of game fish.

A recent entry was that of Jimmie Wright of Stirling. His lake trout from one of the northern lakes weighed 12 pounds, 2 ounces, measured 30 inches in length and 17 inches in girth.

QUITS USING LAXATIVES

Man now regular as day with famous cereal

Sick of dosing yourself for constipation? Tired of feeling sluggish? Then read this unsolicited letter:

"For years, constipation was my bogey and harsh laxatives made things worse. Since eating ALL-BRAN every day I have been regular, more alert in my work as draughtsman. Publish this letter, it may help others." A. Mc. C. Little, 114 Sixth St., Midland, Ontario.

Constipated due to lack of bulk in your diet? You may find natural relief without strong remedies. Try eating an ounce (bowlful) of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN daily, drink plenty of water. If you do this every day, you may be regular all your life! ALL-BRAN is a delicious regulating food, either as a crisp cereal or in muffins. If not benefited after using one package, get double your money back as guaranteed on box. Made by Kellogg's, London, Ontario.

STIRLING

LOL and LOBA Lodges Attend Divine Service

On Sunday last a large number of Stirling L.O.L. 110 and L. O. B. A. No. 655 gathered in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling, for Divine service.

The minister, Rev. W. H. V. Walker, gave a splendid address on the theme "Striving Together for the Faith of the Gospel."

Psalm 24 was read responsively and the congregation rendered "O God Our Help in Ages Past", "Standing by a Purpose True," and "Onward Christian Soldiers."

The pastor read the first chapter of Romans, and Mr. Clayton Tummon sang very acceptably, "Abide With Us" and the choir contributed "Trust Ye the Lord". Mrs. R. H. Williams presided at the organ and rendered special music before and after the service.

Stirling Citizens Band gathered at the Orange Hall and furnished music for the march to and from the church. A large congregation was present for the service and the two lodges sat in a body in the centre of the edifice.

Beautiful flowers decorated the edifice and later these were sent to sick members of West Huntingdon Lodge.

Prime Minister Had Largest Winning Margin

(By The Canadian Press)

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, who led his Liberal forces to a landslide victory, also rolled up the biggest personal winning margin in any of the 262 seats at stake in the Federal election.

The Prime Minister was returned to his Quebec East seat Monday by a thumping plurality of 17,942 votes, compared to his winning margin of 10,768 in the 1945 election. He gained 26,015 votes compared to 8,073 for his nearest opponent, Progressive Conservative M. Drouin. The third candidate polled only 1,404 votes.

P. E. Cote came closest to matching his leader's winning margin when he was re-elected in Montreal Verdun-La Salle with a plurality of 17,157 in a five-way fight with C.C.F., Progressive Conservative, Independent and Union of Elector opponents.

George Drew, who saw his Progressive Conservative forces shrink to 42 from 49 at dissolution of the last House, nevertheless was easily returned as opposition leader. He won Carleton riding, near Ottawa, by a plurality of 4,308 over C.C.F. and Liberal opponents.

C.C.F. leader M. J. Coldwell won his Saskatchewan riding of Rosetown-Biggar by a plurality of 3,207 over Progressive Conservative and Liberal opponents, even though his party strength plummeted to 12 from 32 at dissolution Social Credit leader Solon Low had a tighter squeeze but held a clear 400-vote edge in a four-way fight in his Alberta riding of Peace River.

With all Mr. St. Laurent's cabinet ministers returned, several won by whopping pluralities of more than 10,000. Among the leaders were Postmaster General Bertrand, who won Montreal Laurier by a margin of 13,271; Works Minister Fournier, who swept Hull by a plurality of 11,287; Fisheries Minister Mayhew, who won a three-way fight in Victoria by a margin of 10,633, and Health Minister Martin, who gained a clear margin of 8,505 over the nearest of his three opponents in Essex East.

FORMER LEADER HAPPY

Ottawa, June 28 — (CP)—Former Prime Minister Mackenzie King said Monday night he was "delighted" at the Liberal victory.

He commended Prime Minister St. Laurent on his "splendid leadership" and said too much credit could not be given his successor for the victory, which marked the approval of the electorate for the Liberal administration over the last 14 years and particularly since 1945.

Th decisie P-l

The decisive Liberal victory, Mr. Mackenzie King said, would strengthen Canada's position in other countries.

Police Putting Teeth Into City Parking By-Law

Proof that the city police are putting teeth into the local meter parking by-law was seen in city magistrate's court today when nine motorists were summoned into court for failure to recognize receipt of a parking ticket.

Seven of the motorists paid $3.50 out of court after receipt of their summons, while two motorists failed to either settle up or to appear in court. They will be issued further summons by personal service which will mean added costs on conviction.

Police officials pointed out that parking tickets may be settled for one dollar either at the police station or at the city hall within a certain time after they have been issued.

When the parking violators fail to recognize the parking tickets when they are placed on their autos for over-time parking they are issued summons by mail, which means $2.50 court costs will be added to the fine. Personal service in delivery of the court summons means additional court costs including witness fees.

Govt. To Collect $67,000 Lost By Candidates

(By The Canadian Press)

The federal government will collect probably more than $67,000 in deposits lost by candidates in Monday's election.

Compilation by The Canadian Press showed that 332 candidates in the field of 847 probably will lose the $200 deposits each was required to post when nominated. At least three others who withdrew from the contest after nomination day may also lose their deposits.

This compares with the all-time high of $92,400 in the 1945 election when 463 contestants in the record field of 952 forfeited their deposits by failing to poll one-half the vote of the elected members in their constituencies.

Heaviest losers appeared to be in Quebec where indications were that 129 had lost deposits. In Ontario, 86 were possible losers.

Leading losers by parties were: C.C.F. 118; Progressive Conservative 97; Union of Electors 50.

NOT MUCH TO SAY

Brandon, Man., June 28—(CP) —John Bracken, former Progressive Conservative national leader and candidate in the Brandon constituency, said Monday night following his defeat to Liberal candidate J. E. Matthews that "it's a victory for the Liberals. What else can I say."

He declined further comment.

Mr. Bracken was premier of Manitoba for 20 years before he resigned to accept the Progressive Conservative leadership. He relinquished that post last fall to George Drew.

Asked if he would be retiring from politics, Mr. Bracken said "we might leave that question for the interim."

Today we Live in a Greater Canada

New Names in the NORTH

THERE's new activity in Ontario's bushland north of Lake Superior. Marathon and Red Rock, Terrace and Heron Bay: they all tell the same story. New towns have arisen, old ones expanded. Only five years ago on the site of Marathon, for example, there was nothing but bush; today a new community beside a new pulp mill is contributing millions to Canada's export trade.

Such spectacular developments in the north are matched by continuing industrial expansion in the older established communities. Throughout Canada today ever-widening avenues of opportunity await the enterprise of young Canadians.

With newsprint production 50% above pre-war levels, Canada today has an output five times that of any other country, and accounts for three out of every five newspaper pages in the world.

"Canada is a land of opportunity . . . There is a field for almost anything one can think of, and anyone with a willingness for hard work has a good chance to achieve success", says Donald J. Smith, President of Hornet Industries Limited, Guelph, Ontario.

Hornet Industries Limited, which was founded in 1945, has in this short time achieved remarkable success in the manufacture of chain saws and combustion engines. More than half the production of the plant reaches markets outside Canada. From a staff of only a half dozen men in 1945, Hornet Industries Limited has expanded to three plants in Guelph, employing 296 workers.

ONE KILLED, ONE CRITICALLY HURT BY FARMHAND

G.R. Miles, O.B.E. Also Reprimanded By Courts Martial

Navigating Officer Must Face Two Similar Charges

Halifax, June 29 —(CP)— The navigation officer of the aircraft carrier Magnificent today pleaded innocent before a naval court martial to two of four charges arising out of the grounding of the warship and declined to plead on the other two.

A separate court martial Tuesday dismissed Commodore G. R. (Gus) Miles, O.B.E., Canada's senior officer afloat, from command of the carrier.

The navigation officer, Lt.-Cmdr. W. D. F. Johnston of Barnstead, Surrey, England, pleaded innocent to charges of having "hazarded" and "stranded" the carrier by negligence or default He declined plea on charges of "negligently or by default suffering" the carrier to be hazarded and stranded off Nova Scotia's south shore June 4.

Accused on Bridge

First witness for the prosecution was Commodore Miles who testified that Cmdr. Johnston had been responsible to him for safe navigation of the carrier. The accused had been on the bridge for about four hours before the grounding.

Capt. E. P. Tisdall of Ottawa presided over the hearing and Commodore A. N. Lay of Ottawa was prosecutor.

Yesterday's court martial, which also sentenced the 47-year-old Rothesay, N.B., native to be reprimanded, convicted the flat-top's captain of "negligently or by default suffering" the carrier to be stranded and hazarded but acquitted him on two other charges of having hazarded and stranded the carrier by negligence or default.

It was expected that a verdict would be reached by tonight.

The 18,000 - ton carrier—Canada's capital ship — ripped out 200 feet of her bottom when she went aground off White Point Beach on what an officer aboard the ship said was a "submerged, uncharted rock" 150 yards off shore.

The court was cleared after all evidence was taken. Then Commodore Miles, who has been to sea for 33 years, was recalled to find his sword, resting on a polished table before the five judges, pointing toward him in token of conviction.

He stood stiffly at attention to hear the sentence. He made no comment when it was read. He marched to the table, picked up his sword and fitted it in place. Then he saluted the court and marched out briskly. He managed a smile as he reached the door.

The court's decision read in part:

NATIONALISTS BOMB CROWDED CHINESE DISTRICT

Two Killed and Upwards of 100 Injured by Flying Missiles

Shanghai, June 29 (AP)—Low-flying Nationalist bombers today blasted the crowdde Chapei district of Shanghai, killing at least two persons and injuring upwards of 100.

Police and rescue workers dug the injured out of blasted buildings hours after the planes completed their mission.

Machine-guns, blasted away at the leisurely flying bombers but had no effect. Reports of the number of raiders varied from two to six planes.

Chapei is a densely-populated Chinese residential section.

One stick of bombs fell in a rice paddy near the Lunghwa airport. Other bombs reportedly hit the Bubbling Well cemetery.

Hospitals reported at least 70 seriously injured had been received.

Authorities cordoned off several city blocks and would permit no entry.

At least two Liberator type planes dropped below low hanging clouds in an attempt to hit the north railroad station and the rail freight yards on Maarkham Road.

Seymour Topping, Associated Press Correspondent who tried to reach the area, said the bombs smashed a path through the crowded section and unquestionably many casualties resulted.

During a 30-minute period four fully loaded ambulances left the area.

Four other ambulances arrived.

The planes remained overhead for more than an hour.

They made leisure runs on the area, dropping a few bombs at a time. At no time did they appear to have loosed their entire bomb load.

Bombs also were dropped in the southwestern section of the city near Lunghwa airport.

There was no attack on the harbor or shipping.

Calls Goethe Prophet's Voice For Whole World

Aspen, Colo., June 29 (AP)—Thornton Wilder said Tuesday the world, "shopping rapidly for life savers," should turn to the writings of Goethe. the German.

"Goethe is a delayed time bomb, a repeating time bomb," the author-playwright said.

The idea behind the festival in this small ski-resort town in honoring the bicentennial of Goethe's birth, Wilder said, is to show "we urgently need Goethe as a prophet voice for the whole world."

The festival began Monday and continues through July 16. The playwright held forth at a 90-minute press conference today in the bar of Aspen's only hotel.

FIREMEN RISK LIVES TO HALT FLAMES

Toronto, June 29 — (CP) — Firemen risked their lives today to prevent flames from reaching a tank of naphtha gas at the plant of the Dominion Tar and Chemical Co. on the outskirts of the city.

As flames burned within six feet of the highly explosive liquid, firemen poured water on the tank and walls surrounding it to keep the liquid cool.

Firemen said the fire originated in a motor near the naphtha. Damage was estimated at $550.

SEAMEN STABBED AS UNION GROUPS BATTLE IN STREET

Fight Started in Beer Parlor at Port Albern

Port Albernia, B.C., June 29. (CP)—Four seamen were stabbed, two seriously, when rival union groups Tuesday night battled in a downtown street.

Two other men were treated for minor wounds, and six men were arrested. Police refused to disclose the names of the injured men.

The seamen are members of the striking Canadian Seaman's Union and the rival Seafarers' International Union (A.F.L.).

The fight started in a downtown beer parlor, and then spread to the street before police could break up the battle.

The S.I.U. crew men were from the S.S. Tri End, which docked here a few days ago after being strike-bound in Vancouver. The other seamen police were told were off the C.S.U.-manned S.S. Lake Canim bound for Vancouver.

Windows in the beer parlor were smashed, tables overturned and chairs, glasses and bottles flew through the air at the height of the fight.

When police arrived the battle was in full force on the sidewalk. Four of the men were down, suffering from stab wounds as the others battled in the street.

The two groups were drinking in the parlor when suddenly "glasses flew in all directions", said an eye-witness. A remark made by one of the sailors "started the trouble".

Police called taxis to take the injured to hospital from the glass-littered sidewalk.

Early today no charge had been laid against the six men arrested.

Port Alberni is on Vancouver Island at the head of Alberni Canal, 128 miles northwest of Victoria.

India to Oppose Devaluation

New Delhi. June 29 (Reuters) — India is likely to throw all her weight against any suggestion for devaluing sterling, usually reliable sources said here today.

Finance Minister John Matthai, who will represent India at the forthcoming London talks of Commonwealth finance ministers, said today that India's dollar position had caused "considerable anxiety."

India had been hoping for more dollars from the central reserve of the sterling area to enable her to meet "inescapable commitments," he said.

("But present indications are that our expectations may not be realized."

142 VETERANS IN 160 GRADUATE AT OSGOODE

Toronto, June 29 — (CP) — One hundred and sixty graduates of Osgoode Hall law school — 142 of them war veterans — are to be admitted to the bar of Ontario at a special convocation ceremony at Osgoode Hall today.

The class is the largest ever to graduate from the three-year law course.

Federal Justice Minister Garson will be honored by being called to the bar of Ontario during the ceremony.

Hunt For Dark Haired Gypsy Woman Who Promised to Cure Heart Disease

Port Huron, Mich, June 29. — (CP)—Police were searching today for a dark-haired gypsy woman who promised to cure a local resident of heart disease and fleeced him of $1,200, his life's savings.

The victim, Joseph Jiminez, 56, told officers the woman promised to "bless" his money and double it for him. At the same time, she gave him a white dish containing a chicken egg and a piece of paper full of dried "spiritual" leaves.

The gypsy told Jiminez the egg was "very powerful" and had long hairs growing inside its shell. Its only characteristic, police said, was that it was rotten.

She also told Jiminez to rub the leaves over his heart every night until he was cured. In exchange for this, the victim told officers, he turned over his savings.

Czechoslovak Police Said To Have Violated Rights Of Diplomat of Vatican

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

Prague, June 29 — (AP) — A diplomatic source said today Czechoslovak police had forcibly entered the automobile of a Vatican diplomatic representative at Kosice, in Slovakia.

The informant, close to Vatican representatives here, said the incident occurred Tuesday night. The source described the police action as "rude and violent" and said a protest had been lodged with the Foreign Minstry against "this violation of the rights of a diplomat."

(An informed source in Vatican City said the Vatican expects its diplomatic links with Prague to be severed soon by the Czechoslovak government.)

The reported police interference with the Vatican representative highlighted another day in the spreading strife between the Roman Catholic Church and the state.

According to church sources, Czechoslovakia's Communists rulers have started censoring the sermons of Catholic bishops and imposing a gag on those who attempt to criticize the government

Restriction Campaign Foreseen

The action apparently foreshadowed a campaign of restriction against services inside Roman Catholic churches. Those services thus far have been relatively free although often under surveillance.

Rumors persisted in Prague that Archbishop Joseph Beran, the country's primate, had been formally arrested. The Archbishop failed to appear at a service for ordination of new priests, but an informed source said Beran had not planned to participate and that he still was in his palace under a police surveillance which was imposed two weeks ago.

The Archbishop has not preached since Sunday, June 19, when Communist hecklers shouted him down in St. Vitus Cathedral. Whether he could leave his palace now, is not known. A friend who has seen him, says he is in good health, but virtually isolated.

Police-backed censorship was imposed last Sunday on Dr. Moric Picha, 80-year-old bishop of Hradec Kralove, in northeastern Bohemia.

Bishop Refuses to Submit

A churchman who attended the service said the aged bishop told his congregation he had thrown away his prepared sermon rather than deliver it with changes dictated by officials of the Communist Education Ministry.

Churchmen recently returned from the country said that in some places priests were getting direct orders from Communist officials that they must "preach on the People's Democratic Regime."

Vatican City — A Vatican City source said today he expects the Czechoslovak government soon to break its ties with the Vatican.

Czechoslovak government accusations against Msgr. Gennaro Verolino, the Pope's diplomatic representative at Prague, may cause the break, the source said. The Czech press accused the Papal representative of "subversive activity."

Election Editorial Comment

(By The Canadian Press)

Commenting on the result of Monday's general election, the Toronto Globe and Mail "Independent) says editorially today:

"It would be interesting to know to what extent the rise of the "welfare state' in Canada accounted for the government's success. Direct payments from the treasury to members of the public, not for work done but as pensions and allowances, created huge vested interests. Large blocs of people, drawing these benefits, have natural tendency to vote for the regime which pays them in preference to taking a chance with a new set of rules. Whether the government of the day in a welfare state can ever be dislodged, while business stays relatively good, is a question posed by the results."

In an accompanying cartoon captioned "One Moment's Silence, Please," the Globe and Mail depicts a scene set against the facade of the paper's office with the Canadian voter, winking at his audience, viewing two pictures—surmounted by a funeral wreath—turned to the wall.

There is no editorial comment under the cartoon. It is presumed that the two pictures represent the men often referred to during the campaign as "The Two Georges" — George McCullagh, publisher of the Globe and Mail, and George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader.

Montreal Le Devoir (Nationalist): "The Liberal victory is dazzling and the complete defeat of the Progressive Conservatives should permit the creation of a social and republican movement.

"Public opinion is riper than one would believe for the total emancipation of Canada, the rupture of a 11 colonial bonds which hold us to Great Britain..."

Calgary Albertan: "There will be widespread regret at the weakness of the opposition...Although we opposed the Progressive Conservative party, we feel it did not deserve such overwhelming repudiation..."

Saskatoon Star Phoenix (Independent - Liberal): "Probably never before in our political history have we Canadians spoken with such united voice as we did yesterday. The Liberal victory could not have been more definite. Mr. St. Laurent goes back to the House, not with a simple majority in the national popular vote."

Rev. W. Bagnall Elected Bishop On Third Ballot

Hamilton, June 29 (CP) — A 45-year-old Anglican clergyman Tuesday became the youngest bishop in the history of the Diocese of Niagara.

Very Rev. W. E. Bagnall was elected on the third ballot at a special session of the Diocesan Synod, held here in Christ Church Cathedral. One of his first acts as Bishop was to warn of the uneasy state of the Christian world today.

"The day may come," he said, "when we here may have to bear what Christians in other lands are bearing now. We will need fearlessness and singleness of purpose in God's service, and not otherwise can we achieve our destiny."

The former Dean of Niagara thanked delegates for their trust and described the Diocese of Niagara as a "great Diocese with a great future.

"I accept the post to which God has called me in great humility," he added. "And I bespeak the assistance of you all."

He received the Degree of Doctor of Divinity at the University of Western Ontario in 1928, and held posts at London, Preston, Hamilton and St. Catharines before becoming Dean of Christ Church Cathedral here.

The Bishop - elect suceeds Rt. Rev. L. W. B. Broughall, who retired recently as head of the Diocese after 17 years service.

It is believed the Consecration service for the new bishop will be held in September.

Gives Birth to Girl in Hospital

Montreal, June 29. (CP) — Freda Linton, against whom espionage charges were dropped, gave birth to a baby girl Tuesday.

Miss Linton, who refused to reveal her married name when she surrendered voluntarily several months ago, was registered at the Jewish General Hospital as Mrs. W. P. Alexander.

Miss Linton kept in hiding for more than two years after exposure of the Russian espionage ring in Canada. It was reported she spent much of the time in the United States.

FIRST SESSION OF PARLIAMENT OPENS IN SEPT.

Will Renew Effort To Reach Agreement

Ottawa, June 29. (CP) —The first session of the new, Liberal-dominated parliament will open in September, it was indicated on Tuesday. Post-election speculation pointed to a renewal of federal attempts to reach a financial and taxation agreement embracing all ten provinces to open the way for broadened social security.

As Prime Minister St. Laurent prepared to preside over a cabinet meeting today, a wide field of potential and administrative action opened up amind the accumulation of election results.

The field encompassed the possibilities or probabilities of Cabinet reorganization, Senate appointments and reform, international commitments under the Atlantic pact, further steps towards full national sovereignity and others.

The largest conjecture surrounded the practical prospects arising from Mr. St. Laurent's repeated compaign statements that the fundamental liberal aim is the widest possible distribution "of the good things of life" and his related pledge to keep striving for "a complete system of social security".

The heavy defeat of George Drew's Progressive Conservatives and Mr. St. Laurent big triumphs in both Ontario and Quebec were seen as cues for a renewal of attempts to negotiate with those two provinces the sort of financial agreemtns that now have been accepted individually by seven others.

Newfoundland to Come in

The 10th is Newfoundland which Mr. St. Laurent has predicted will shortly come to terms.

Mr. St. Laurent said on the hustings that a general conference with the "premiers of the provinces" will be held at least by 1951 to discuss a renewal of the five-year agreements now involving seven provinces. It is conceivable that it could be put ahead to 1950 or earlier if there is a chance of full agreement.

The major unfilled objectives of the 1946 proposals are contributory systems of old age pensions and health insurance, both requiring agreements with the provinces.

From the legislative standpoint the Spring budget that initiated the heavy tax cuts now in effect still needs parliamentary ratification and should get it without trouble once the Commons meets.

Mr. St. Laurent is expected to revamp his Cabinet, possibly widen it, take in at least representatives of Toronto and Alberta and send some of its present members to the Senate, the bench or the diplomatic corps.

Candidates In Britain Going Back To School to Learn King's English

London, June 29. (CP—Determined to be in the best possible voice for Britain's next general election campaign, Conservative candidates are going to school to learn how to speak the King's English.

Their school-marm is 40-year-old Miss Marjorie Hellier, a slender, red-haired speech specialist who once played on the stage with the Old Vic Company.

Appointed by Conservative headquarters on a non-party basis, Miss Hellier is coaching candidates to put new punch in their platform techniques and new verve in their vowel sounds.

"I don't care what they say but how they say it," she said.

"Our aim is to speak pure English untouched by any dialect," you know Oxford and Cambridge English is a dialect just as much as the speech of a cockney or a north countryman."

Appropriately enough, the King's English is the best example of pure English. And in Miss Hellier's opinion, members of the Royal Family speak perfect English.

"You don't hear any la-di-da from them."

Asked what she thinks of Canadian accents, Miss Hellier did not try to duck.

"The accent is pleasing in its own way," she said. "It has an open-air, breezy sound about it. I always get the impression of a broad-minded and friendly person when I hear Canadians."

The voice depends largely on the shape of the mouth and in the case of Canadians the shape is that of a smile, she added. This resulted in a wide, flat sound.

Miss Hellier, described Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, former prime minister of Canada, as a clear speaker who wrung the full meaning from each word. But he was not a class with Winston Churchill, Britain's wartime prime minister, and Sir Ralph Richardson, the actor.

"Richardson is just an ordinary Englishman in appearance," she said. "But his speech illuminates his whole personality."

Churchill broke a lot of rules. But when he said "rascal" people knew he meant a real rascal. And the way he said "Nazis"— drawling out the first syllable with a "naw" sound was classic.

Youth Intercepted When Attempting Break-in at Selby

Former Reeve of Township Slain; Man Held in Jail

Selby, Ont., June 29 — (CP)— One man was killed and another dangerously wounded when John Nelson, a 20-year-old itinerant farm hand, ran amuck with a .22-calibre rifle today on a farm in this Eastern Ontario centre five miles north of Napanee.

Elijah McQuaig, a farmer and former reeve of Richmond township, died shortly after Nelson pumped several bullets into his body. Ron Ross, 18-year-old farm worker, was wounded three times.

Nelson was captured shortly after R.C.M.P. officers joined residents of the farm community in a search for the young man who has worked on the farm of Ephriam Robinson, near here, for the last three months. Details of the capture were not immediately available.

Given First Aid

Dr. W. E. Burns of Napanee, gave Ross first aid at the farmfield scene of the shooting and accompanied him to a Kingston hospital. Harry Thompson, another district farmer, passing the field at the time, also was fired upon. Bullets shattered the rear window of his automobile and he dived out of the seat uninjured.

The shooting called to mind three multiple murders in Canada recently in which rifles were used in Sudbury, a madman shot two policemen and a bystander before killing himself. In Mission, B.C., a farmer still sought by the police, killed two women in an argument over farm property. In a Port Arthur court, a man shot the judge and his wife, before killing himself.

Disappeared Tuesday

Police said Nelson disappeared Tuesday and a short time afterwards Mr. Robinson returned to find his home ransacked with jewelry and other articles missing. The Robinson farm is near the McQuaig farm.

Police said that McQuaig, who is about 60, was in the field with Ross, who lives near Selby. He had gone to the McQuaig farm today to help bring in the hay.

McQuaig was on the rig and Ross was tossing the hay to him. Ross heard a shot. police said, and at the same time saw McQuaig stagger. There was a second shot and he tumbled to the ground. He lived only a short while.

Ross was shot through the abdomen, the wrist and one foot.

The man is said to have fired the shots from the barn where police said they believed he slept last night.

Sgt. Hartleib of the Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville stated that the name Nelson given by the captured man was an alias. His correct name was said to be Alfred Childs. He is being held in custody at Napanee jail.

Police stated Childs had broken into a house near the scene of the shooting and had commenced shooting when intercepted by McQuaig and Ross.

BRITISH SALES TO CANADA HIT POST-WAR PEAK

Still Left With Deficit of $33,400,000 on Month's Trade

Ottawa, June 29 (CP)—United Kingdom exports to Canada hit their highest point since the end of the war during April but Britain still was left with a deficit of $33,400,000 on her month's trade with Canada.

The figures were disclosed on Tuesday by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics as British officials moved to meet a new trade crisis by calling a conference of Commonwealth finance ministers.

Bureau's trade report showed also that Canada had an over-all deficit of $2,400,000 in foreign trade for April, compared with a deficit of $11,600,000 in April last year. It left the Dominion with a deficit of $3,000,000 for the first four months of this year, compared with a surplus of $83,400,000 for the same period last year.

There was no indication that Finance Minister Abbott will attend the meeting in London next month to discuss the critical dollar shortage in the sterling area. It probably will be discussed today at the government's first post-election cabinet meeting.

Still Small Deficit

Canada had a deficit of $65,100,000 in trade with the United States during the month, bringing the debit balance to $197,900,000 for the first four months of the year—$41.000,000 more than at the same time last year.

Britain sold Canada goods worth $30,120,000 during April, $23,300,000 in March and $24,600,000 in April, 1948. For the first four months of both years, the totals were $106,800,000 and $85,700,000 in 1948. Canadian exports to Britain were $63,000,000 in April compared with $44,000,000 a year ago. For the first four months they were $202,500,000 and $220,000,000.

Canada's total of exports and imports was $483,000,000, 9.3 per cent higher than in April, 1948. Total trade for the first four months was $1,813,800,000, an increase of 6.2 per cent.

Rev. C. E. Baker Celebrates Jubilee Mass at St. Michael's, Marks 25 Years In Priesthood

Worshippers thronged the parish church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, on Tuesday morning for one of the happiest of events, the celebration of jubilee mass by the Rev. Charles E. Baker, assistant at St. Michael's, to mark the completion of twenty-five years since his ordination to the priesthood. For Father Baker and St. Michael's parishioners it was a festive occasion for he has been for about twenty years associated with the parish.

In the sanctuary when the jubilee celebration began were His Excellency Most Rev. Rosario Brodeur, Bishop of Alexandria, Ontario. Monsignor Byrne of Kingston, Monsignor J. F. Nicholson, V. G., M. C., parish priest of St. Michael's and the Rev. H. J. Farrell of Marmora. Attending the jubilee was a large number of the clergy from parishes in the archdiocese of Kingston and the diocese of Alexandria.

Music Sung by Children

The music for the jubilee mass was sung by the children from St. Michael's Academy, Sister Polycarp being at the organ. The singing of the children was of such impressive and rare quality as to make the musical service such as never to be forgotten for its beauty in the service of worship.

At the celebration of the solemn high mass of jubilee Father Baker was assisted by Father A. Cameron of Cornwall as deacon. Father J. A. Carley of St. Michael's as sub-deacon, Father B. Walsh of Kingston, master of ceremonies, Father E. Briceland of Read as thurifer, Father F. Meagher of Gananoque and Father G. O'Hearn of Stirling as acolytes.

A ceremony in which the people of St. Michael's parish participated took place when A. B. Collins, Leo Callaghan, Robert Kitchen, J. V. C. Trualsch, and B. J. Black presented an address and gift to Father Baker on behalf of the parishioners. Mr. Collins read the address to Father Baker as follows:

Address and Presentation

"To the Rev. Charles E. Baker, assistant at the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville;

"Rev. and Dear Sir,—

"With profound respect the parishioners have assembled in this sacred edifice to join with our Vice-General and the reverend clergy of the historic archdiocese of Kingston in commemoration of the 25th year of your ordination to the holy priesthood. In memory we travel back to that hallowed day in the summer of 1924 and witness your elevation to the holy order of priesthood by His Grace the Most Rev. Georges Gauthier, Archbishop of Montreal.

"On that occasion we see your loving parents and members of your family overcome with joy and thankfulness. We see, too, your friends and admirers and those of us who have been privileged to watch your career from that day to this have witnessed your simplicity and sincerity, your earnestness of purpose, your steadfastness to duty on all occasions.

"In token of our respect, love and esteem, on this day of rejoicing, accept the accompanying gift with the ardent prayer that God may shower upon you His choicest blessing, and that health and happiness may be yours and that your exemplary life may lead us all to our Heavenly Father.

"Signed on behalf of the parishioners of the Church of St. Michael the Archangel."

The presentation was made by Mr. Leo Callaghan. Father Baker, deeply moved by these evidences of the affection and devotion of those among whom he has spent many years, responded to the felicitations and greetings of the people.

Father Baker's Reply

The reply of Father Baker to the address was marked by deep feeling. He recalled the days of preparation for the priesthood, the occasion of his ordination and the emotions which marked such an event in his life. He touched on the work in the parishes in which he has labored and referred to his work among the parishioners of St. Michael's. It was an occasion of rejoicing as he recalled these years with so many precious memories and inspirations.

The sermon was delivered by His Excellency Most Rev. Rosario Brodeur of Alexandria who traced the great moments and impressive occasions in the life of a priest and of the ideals which were carried out in their service to their parishes and the church.

The jubilee celebration was one of the most impressive services held in this parish. For St. Michael's parish and for Father Baker it will have memories which will not fade.

Fitting Celebration

At noon a dinner was given at Hotel Quinte for the visiting clergy and guests, Monsignor E. Leacy of Napanee presided in his most gracious manner.

Father Baker spoke briefly expressing his gratitude that so many had been able to attend the ceremonies of his jubilee.

His Excellency Bishop Brodeur of Alexandria remarked that about twenty of the quarter of a century in the priesthood had been spent by Father Baker in this parish and that it was fitting that such an anniversary should be celebrated here. He spoke in highest terms of the Rt. Rev. Monsignor J. F. Nicholson in charge of St. Michael's parish. Reference was made to Father Baker's earlier work in Alexandria which is still remembered. The Bishop voiced the hope that "his work may continue not only until his golden but even to his diamond jubilee."

Mayor D. L. Storey brought the greetings and felicitations to Father Baker on his jubilee. He noted that in Belleville the labors of Father Baker were recognized at their true value by all people.

Happy Jubilee Occasion

The pastor of St. Michael's, Rt. Rev. Monsignor Nicholson, spoke in appreciation of this happy jubilee occasion in Father Baker's life and expressed his gratitude to the Bishop of Alexandria and the guests for their kind expressions.

Monsignor D. A. Cullinane of Trenton referred to Father Baker's love of this parish where he had spent so many years and he wished for him many happy years of service.

Monsignor Leacy of Napanee extended congratulations to Monsignor Cullinane and Monsignor Staley, the latter being the senior priest of Wolfe Island and was also pleased to extend to Father Baker greetings and best wishes. Father Baker's work on Wolfe Island is remembered. He hoped that he would continue long to serve. Monsignor Leacy spoke appreciatively of the twenty years Father Baker had spent in St. Michael's parish, noted his deep love and devotion to the priesthood for the sake of immortal souls and he prayed that God might give Father Baker grace long to carry on his work.

During the dinner two solos were sung by Mr. Ed. Brown, Miss Marie McDonald of Trenton accompanying on the piano the numbers "Your Song for Paradise" and "Till the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold."

Relatives Attend Ceremonies

Attending the festive occasion in the life of Father Baker were his sister Miss Marie Baker and brother Mr. Arthur Baker, both of Wolfe Island. Another brother of Father Baker was unable to be present at yesterday's festivities and jubilee.

Last evening at St. Michael's Academy a concert rounded out the events of the jubilee.

Canners Report Poor Pea Crop In Quinte District

With the pea harvesting now well underway canners in the Bay of Quinte district are reporting a very poor crop with only about 40 per cent of the normal yeild being received.

In Prince Edward County farmers report the pea crop as being very poor, principally because of the dry weather.

Farmers are making good progress in storing a very light hay crop. There has been a noticeable increase in the use of pick-up hay balers and hay is selling as high as $18 per ton in the field, baled.

In Hastings county wheat is said by the agricultural representative to be looking exceptionally good and recent rains should give a near average crop.

Band Concert by Belleville Municipal Band, Thursday, June 30th., 8 p.m., on Armouries Lawn, Bandmaster Robbins conducting. Belleville citizens are specially invited to come and see their city band in their new uniforms.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 29 (CP)—Activity was practically at a standstill as a few issues climbed slightly here today. Support entered in gold producers halting the two-day decline and a few selected industrials edged ahead fractions. Base metals were mixed.

Support in golds first appeared in juniors with a few seniors climbing as the session progressed. Only a trickle of orders was necessary to start the upward movement. Lake Shore, and Kerr Addison rose fractions in seniors while Sylvanite, Preston, Chesterville, Cochenour and Giant Yellowknife showed gains ranging up to 10 cents in juniors.

Early losses in industrials were whittled down as the session progressed. C.P.R., Steel of Canada, Walker's, Canadian Breweries and B.A. Oil climbed into the gains column.

Municipal Band To Give Concert At Armouries

The Belleville Municipal Band will present its first of a series of summer concerts on the Armouries Lawn tomorrow evening at 8:00 p.m. under the direction of its new bandmaster, Mr. Ted Robbins. The entire band of approximately forty members will be all decked out in their new uniform, which were recently purchased by the band. The uniforms are very colorful, consisting of a scarlet double breasted coat with gold buttons, offset with navy and gold trim. Navy blue trousers with scarlet stripe down the side complete this effective looking new outfit that the boys will wear. The program will consist of the following numbers:

Opening: "O Canada."

March: "National Emblem". Bagley.

Excerpts from Suite Ballet Egyptienne", Luigini.

Gold and Silver Waltz, Lehar.

"Deep Purple" (Fantaisie) De-Rose-Liedzen.

March "Moderne", Blue Danube Themes, Hinchey.

"In a Persian Market", Kettelby.

"Berceuse" from "Jocelyn . Godard.

"The World is Waiting for the Sunrise", Seitz.

March: "Washington Post". Sousa.

It is to be hoped that a record crowd will be in attendance to hear the Belleville Municipal Band in this, their first of the scheduled concerts to be presented.

Formerly chief sales representative with the firm, Mayor D. L. Storey of this city has been named president and general manager of the Belleville Sargent builders hardware firm, it was announced here today.

The change in top executive of the firm included the resignation of former president, Harold Sanders, and the elevation of Herbert D. Willerton, former director and plant manager, to the role of vice president.

Police Blotter

Tires and rims cannot be left outside a service station for the night with any expectation of finding them there in the morning, it was discovered Tuesday night by a Dundas Street service station operator.

Jack Sharland, proprietor of a Sunoco service station reported the disappearance of a tire and rim. He stated the tire had been left outside for the night.

Prowlers were reported active in the Dufferin Street district and also in the Grove Street area. A Dufferin Street woman reported a man trying to enter an upstairs window but although a fair description of the man was obtained police were unable to locate anyone answering to the description.

WHAT A YEAR'S EFFORT SHOWS

One year of the Berlin air lift has been campleted and though recent developments have removed some of the prominence of the aerial ferry, some facts are pointed out as important by the Montreal Star. There was gloom a year ago at the prospect and there was in some circles fear expressed that there might be serious developments. Russia's action had brought such conditions about. It was feared lest it might be impossible to keep the service going through the winter with the added burden the weather imposed upon the planes used in ferrying.

But the West triumphed, it secured planes for cargo purposes and there grew up a most efficient traffic system which enlightened the minds of the world. The flow of necessities of life kept increasing to build up the inhabitants to a state not to yield to Russian will and at the same time to hearten the rest of Europe with an effective demonstration of firmness and technical skill. So nearly two million tons of supplies were carried in through all sorts of weather conditions. The cost when it was at peak was somewhere near a million dollars a day but it proved effective and was worth the price.

One of the results seen is that the situation is develeping away from critical points or crises.

ADVICE TO WALKERS ON ROADS

This is a season when it is more likely to find numbers of people walking on the highways. For them there is one bit of advice — to walk facing the traffic and so have a possibility of escape if a car should be approaching one.

While there is nothing fatalistic about accidents for they are not just made to happen, it is safer to carry a light at night if one if walking, looking into the approaching traffic so that one may have the chance of escape by getting out of the way of trouble in time.

The fact facing both motorists and the pedestrian public is that there are not so many accidents that might be called unavoidable. The human element plays a part and therein lies the cause of much suffering and some deaths.

Avoid doing anything rash, try to be at all times careful is good advice.

To match the increasing number of cars on highways and other roads there should be every possible care lest accidents come about.

FOR THE ALERT

A new experiment in educational travel has been begun when 25 boys from Bradford, England, landed recently at Dieppe, France, to take a share in a treasure hunt. The scheme will test the ingenuity and resourcefulness of the growing boys. The collection required is quite unique, to find a number of treasures which included a Camembert cheese with the Mairie of Camembert rubber stamp, a picture postcard of the church where William the Conqueror was buried, a clay model from the educational centre at Houlgate, a tracing of a grave from a church at Damfont, an English exercise done by a French schoolboy and a mustard pot label. The lads had altogether to collect twenty "treasures" and a prize will go to the boy with the largest number of treasures who writes the best report in French on his journey. The boys were allowed not more than five pounds to spend on their stay in France. They have to travel separately and use their own means of transport.

THE WONDER OF LEAVES

Pluck a leaf and hold in your hand part of the wonder of this flowering world. There are many shapes and sizes, each the hallmark of a different tree or plant.

Millions of years ago it was ordained that leaves should manufacture chlorophyll from air and sun. Water comes from the multitudinous feeding rootlets upward through pipe lines to where the food is made; and then by special tubes the food goes back to nurture cells. It is the leaf's magic power that pulls water upward. Chlorophyll came into being before animal life appeared on the planet. The human race is dependent for its life on this almost-magic substance.

The top of a leaf is a covering of one-cell thickness through which the sun permeates to a layer of cells beneath; here the food is made and sent downward. Beneath the food factory is a jumbled mass of other cells. The bottom of the leaf is another tight layer with the exception of infinitesimal ducts or valves that govern the amount of air and moisture that comes in and goes out.

A leaf is a small thing, ordained by Nature to help fulfil a great program. He who pauses midst the tensions and fretting of man-engendered irritations, can catch a glimpse of a great wonder in a humble leaf.—Ottawa Journal.

LIFE GOES ON

"It's too bad!" we say, and then
Turn from death to life again.
At the cemetery gates
For the living, duty waits.

When the holy rites are read

Grieving, oft we wondered why
Wagons still were passing by?
Why that peddler with a bell
Offering his wares to sell?

For the living, life goes on!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

LIFE WITHIN

In the sixth chapter of the second book of Samuel, we find the account of how the ark of the Lord, the sacred symbol which the Hebrews had venerated from the days of Moses, was lodged in the house of a certain man named Obed-Edom, where it remained for three months. And so great was the health and joy and prosperity of this man's home that King David decided to bring the ark to Jerusalem and put it in the tabernacle. If it did so much for the home of one man, it could be expected to do great things also for the whole nation.

The ark of the Lord—or of the covenant as it was also called — represented the presence of God in the midst of the Hebrew people. When Obed-Edom brought the presence of God—or as we would say today, religion—into his home, a tremendous transformation occurred. Three thousand years ago this took place, and it is still taking place when people sincerely put religion to the test of life. When they bring God into the home, a change takes place which is marvelous to behold. When a city, a village, or a countryside gets stirred up over things spiritual , the power of a new dynamic pulses through all the life of that region. St. John wrote to Jesus: "In him was life, and the life was the light of men."

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Why do the young women wear those great big fat heavy earrings? They are weighty. To stay put, they must pinch. Questions like this are the sort of thing that exercise a man's mind as he rides in a bus with nothing much to look at except the back of the neck, hair-do and earrings of the lady in front.

According to the historians, the first earrings, which were ordinary small rings inserted through a hole pierced in the ear lobe, were not ornaments at all, but simply devices for tying your woman to your belt or saddle bow when travelling It seems men used to have a lot of trouble with women.

What is the traditional way of making a child come along? By grabbing him by the ear, of course. School teachers, a couple of generations ago, knew of no other hand-hold on a child. What more natural than that this in- ancestors the idea of putting a ring in a woman's ear so that a rope or thong could be readily attached to her? It was tidier than a ring in the nose. It was harder for her to untie, off to the side there....

When you raided your neighbor's valley, it must have been an awful job trying to drive a bevy of young women and girls ahead of you through the jungle on the way home. The earring solved the problem without really defacing the prizes. No doubt you could hook up a string of a couple of dozen of them on the one rope.

But how does this explain these big fat rings the girls wear pinched to their ears nowadays? I have been taking note of the type who wear them. They are generally the large drowsy blond type. They are the girls whose eyes roll sleepily as the bus bumbles along. I've got it. They pinch

Naval Exercises Around Britain Purely Defensive

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

More than 100 warships—British, French, Dutch and Belgian — are assembling in Penzance Bay, on England's west coast, for naval exercises.

These operations are purely defensive, aimed at aggression from any quarter. The international aspect of this fleet in peacetime manoeuvres probably is unique.

Meantime British, American and Dutch warplanes are waging over Britain a mock war which is designated as "operation foil." Its purpose is to test John Bull's defences against an attack with atom bombers — from any quarter. Here again the international aspect is unique.

This is Britain's first major test against atom bombs.

Important Purposes

The exercises seem to be calculated to serve two important purposes: (1) They afford striking advertisement of the determination of the western democracies to stand together defensively: (2) They provide invaluable defensive experience.

The operations presumably are in part a gesture toward Moscow. Their international aspect serves notice that the Atlantic Pact is more than a piece of paper. Russia of course expects the pact to be put into operation and implemented, but there are times when action speaks louder than words, and this is one of them.

They provide practical evidence to the harassed countries of western Europe that the Atlantic Alliance means what it says.

These exercises don't mean the western democracies expect another world conflict. It does mean that they recognize the possibility of an upheaval and intend to be prepared for contingencies.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis or treatment will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letter should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

TAKE YOUR SUPPLEMENT FROM NOW ON

Every day the mail brings a number of queries from people who report relief of this or that complaint from taking, say, calcium and D or the three vitamins and three minerals I recommend as a supplement for the everyday diet in the pamphlet Young Folks and Old Folks—for copy send stamped self addressed envelope and no clipping, please. Having obtained relief they want to know whether they should stop taking the vitamins and minerals or how long.

There can be but one answer: No, you should not stop taking the vitamins and/or minerals if you are taking only what I recommended.

One who takes vitamins and/or minerals with any evident benefit to health or functional efficiency can't stop taking them if one wants to retain the gains made. Of course one can stop taking them at any time if one would as lief fall back into the same old state or a little worse than before.

This question is like asking whether one should stop eating meat, fruit or bread now that the old hunger pangs and functional weaknesses have been relieved or remedied by a few weeks or months of meat, bread or fruit eating.

No matter what vitamins and/or minerals you take in what form you take them. you should understand clearly that if you derive and benefit from taking them the benefit will be only temporary unless you continue taking them for the rest of your life.

Not that you must take them in "shots" or in pills or other expensive forms. It depends on your everyday diet. If you pattern your diet upon the basic health diet outlined in The Seven Keys to Vite (for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope) you should be able to keep in good nutritional condition, maintain good functional efficiency, without taking any vitamins and/or minerals other than those you get in your daily food.

The basic health diet is otherwise called corrective protective diet, regeneration or rejuvenation diet, reducing diet.

Among the high vitamin, high mineral foods—that is, items that supply liberal amounts of the essential vitamins and minerals for children and adults — which should be the staples of the everyday diet, are fresh whole milk, skim milk, separator milk, sour milk, real buttermilk, Bulgarian or Acidophilus milk, yoghurt, cheese, eggs, fresh meat, plain wheat, fresh greens, fresh fruit, fresh vegetables.

Consume more of these real foods and less of the refined, "purified," manufactured or "processed" products, which I call "cheat foods" because they supply only calories and not enough of the vitamins and minerals, and you will enjoy good health, good nutrition, functional efficiency, vite, long life. People, you should realize, are conditioned by the food they eat, the same as domestic animals, live stock and wild animals.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS Worth $1000

Advised by dentist I have one tooth which has to have the nerve taken out. Of course that will discolor the tooth. All my other teeth are sound. If the nerve is taken out this will be the only dead tooth in my mouth. I have no rheumatic condition. Do you advise me to have the nerve taken out or have the tooth extracted. (H. S.)

Answer—I do not advise you at all. I'd require more than X-ray evidence alone to convince me a so-called "dead" (pulpless) tooth should be extracted. I think every tooth that is functionally useful is worth at least $1000 and so, in your place, I'd want a consultation between my physician and my dentist, to decide on the treatment.

As Long as the Young Folks Get the Idea

May I please have the pamphlet Young Folks and Old Folks? I enclose stamped self addressed envelope and no clipping. Our grandchildren live a few blocks away from us. After a visit they skip home without putting on their wraps. One zero day Billy started for home with his leggings over his arm and my neighbor called "Why, Billy, you'll take cold with those bare legs!" Billy answered, "No, I won't, Mrs. C—— Doctor Brady said so." (Mrs. C. E.)

Answer—As long as the young 'uns get the idea, we don't care what quaint notions the—well, the unteachable neighbors have.

No Examination

I am deeply grateful for your advice. Dr. ——, whom you recommended, located the hidden hemorrhoids and gave the necessary injections—painlessly. All symptoms have disappeared and I feel well for the first time in years. Several doctors who never examined me diagnosed my condition variously as heart disease, stomach ulcers, congested liver—injection treatment of hemorrhoids. There are millions of us who are shrewd enough about affairs in general but still simple minded enough to mess with a "doctor" who doesn't consider it sometimes I thought I had them all. (E. B.)

Answer—I infer that you asked me to name a doctor skilled in the necessary to make a complete examination.

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

SURE CURE FOR BASEMENT BOTHER

In Summer many homeowners are annoyed by two basement nuisances. One is dampness due to dripping from cold water pipes. The other, a long wait at upstairs taps for water to run cold.

These complaints can be corrected easily by a Johns-Manville pipe insulation called "Wool Felt." It is made for cold water lines in the basement. It provides a neat, uniform appearance. It stops the drips and keeps pipes cold —which means cold water quicker at taps.

Johns-Manville Wool Felt Pipe Insulation is low in cost, takes but a few hours to install, and lasts a lifetime. For complete details, write Johns-Manville, 199 Bay St., Toronto—or see your plumbing and heating contractor.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WHAT IS SUCCESS, ANYWAY?

An endless number of answers could be given to the inquiry as to what makes up a genuine success. Some would say money accumulated. Others would say popularity or fame. Still others might say that merely to be associated with a person of note might be termed success.

Then there are those who give a life of devotion to many a varied service in which others are made happy, or who are inspired to make their own lives useful to others, because of this encouragement. And there is that very happy success which is the culmination of pursuing a course selected for the pure pleasure of achievement.

I liked that line which has been a favorite of mine for years —"He climbs highest who helps another up." Just to say something kind to another, or to give a word of encouragement at the right time to one who needs it, amounts to a dividend coupon clipped from the bond of success. Satisfaction in having done one's best is always an ingredient toward success.

Even temporary failure may result in one of those stepping stones to a really great success. Such a thing is always happening to many. No one wins all the time. You don't have to be rich to be either happy or successful. Alleviating the hurt in someone's heart is better than being a physician and healing a physical wound, or pain.

"Johnny Appleseed" became famous merely by going about the country planting apple seeds that brought nourishment and happiness to thousands of people in the Middle West. Planting a shade tree can be made an event in one's successful career. A smiling elevator boy, or a shoe-shine boy, can be a wonderful success, merely from the cheer that he spreads to those whom he serves.

Too much emphasis is placed upon material success in this life. I recently visited the grave of a noted American, who was worth over a hundred million dollars when he died. There was a beautiful monument placed there, done by one of the great sculptors of America, but as I stood before it I thought of the libraries that many of his millions had founded, of a great athletic field that bore his name, and of other gifts given to many a worthy cause. These were his greater monuments—the emblems of his success.

WEDDINGS

SILLS—VADER

On Saturday, June 18, a pretty wedding was solemnized at three p.m. by the Reverend C. A. Perkins, in Holloway Street United Church, Belleville, when Jean Marie, Belleville, daughter of Mrs. G. Cunningham of Massasaga, and the late Mr. Launcelot Vader, became the bride of John Herbert Sills, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sills, of Belleville. The church was beautifully decorated with pink and white peonies, Sweet Williams and delphiniums.

Mr. William Connor, organist of the church provided the wedding music, and Mrs. M. R. Davidson, soloist, sang before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer" and during the signing of the register, "Because".

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Clinton Vader, the bride was a charming picture in her gown of white slipper satin, floor-length veil, and headdress of lily-of-the-valley. She carried a shower bouquet of red roses and bouvardia.

Mrs. Jack Vader wearing a turquoise moire taffeta gown and carrying a bouquet of yellow roses, and Miss Hazel Boyle, in pink moire taffeta with pink roses, were bridesmaids, while Mrs. Clinton Vader in blue chiffon with red roses, was matron of honor. All wore matching net caps with shoulder length veils.

Mr. Ed. Sills, Belleville, was groomsman, and Mr. Laverne Vader, brother of the bride, and Mr. Edward Sills, brother of the bridegroom, were ushers.

The reception was held at the bride's home, Massassaga, which was a bower of summer flowers. The bride's mother, becomingly gowned in navy petite point crepe and wearing a corsage of red roses, received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a becoming gown of grey crepe with a corsage of pink roses.

For the wedding trip to New York State, and Watertown, the bride chose as her travelling costume a navy blue gabardine suit, with matching hat and white accessories and wore a corsage of red roses. Upon their return, the young couple will reside at the bridegroom's farm, 2nd concession of Sidney.

Out-of-town guests were from—Port Credit. Bancroft, Watertown, Chicago, Detroit and Bloomfield.

A cup and saucer shower was held at the home of Miss Hazel Boyle, and a miscellaneous shower in honor of the bride-elect was given by Mrs. Edward Dorrington and Mrs. Jack Vader at the home of Mrs. Frank Sills, Marshall Road.

NETTLE—COX

The marriage of Miss Ann Margaret Cox, of Oshawa, to Mr. Robert Edward Nettle, Toronto, took place on Saturday afternoon in the rectory of St. Gregory's Roman Catholic Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent St. Charles Cox, of Oshawa, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Nettle, of Toronto.

Doctor Paul Dwyer performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ice blue faconne crepe fashioned with a button trimmed bodice and flared skirt with which she wore a matching hip length jacket with bracelet length sleeves and a flower trimmed picture hat of blue mohair with matching velvet ribbon. Her flowers were a nosegay of white roses and pink rosebuds with white stephanotis and pink and white ribbon streamers.

Miss Mary Catherine Cox was maid of honor for her sister, and chose a gown of satin stripe crinkle taffeta in a shell pink shade. The bodice was designed with a mandarin neckline with short sleeevs and richly gathered skirt. She wore a matching bonnet-shaped hat with pink ribbon trimming and short pink gloves, and carried a nosegay of blue cornflowers, pink roses and stephanotis with ribbon streamers.

Mr. Francis Canzi, of Sewell, Chile, South America, performed the duties of best man.

The reception was held in the Blue Room of the Hotel Genosha. To receive the guests the bride's mother chose a gown of navy blue crepe fashioned with bracelet length sleeves and button trimming at the waistline. The bodice was inset with a vestee of lime green. Soft gathers accented the skirt. She wore a matching bolero and an off the face hat of navy blue corded silk accented with ribbon. Navy blue accessories and a corsage of yellow roses and white carnations completed her ensemble. Mrs. Howard Nettle, mother of the bridegroom who assisted, was gowned in lettuce green silk crepe fashioned on tailored lines with bracelet length sleeves. Her hat was a wide brimmed model of natural panama with lettuce green accents, and Talisman roses composed her corsage.

A three-tier wedding cake flanked with white tapers and vases of pink roses, graced the bride's table. The tables for the guests were also decorated with roses. Present at the reception was Dr. Paul Dwyer who voiced his good wishes to the newly married couple. Mr. Fred Juby of Gananoque, was master of ceremonies. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. P. J. Garvey of Lindsay, and responded to by the bridegroom. Mr. Howard Nettle Jr., proposed a toast to the maid of honor which was responded to by Mr. Francis Canzi. The toast to the bride's mother was proposed by Mr. Vernon Leavitt and responded to by the bride's father. The toast to the bridegroom's mother was proposed by Mr. Horace Cate of Toronto, and responded to by the bridegroom's father.

Mr. and Mrs. Nettle left later by motor for Buffalo and other American points returning by way of Gananoque, the bride travelling in a navy blue polka dot street length dress with white accents, a matching cloche hat, white gabardine shortie coat, navy blue shoes and bag. On their return the couple will reside in Whitby.

Bride-to-be Presented With Beautiful Gifts

Gilead.—A very pleasant evening was spent on Thursday of last week when the people of the school section met at the school to big farewell to their teacher, Miss Hawley, who is leaving the community.

The early part of the evening was spent in community singing led by Mrs. Olive Clare. A chorus was given by the school children and readings were given by Flora Leavens, Mrs. Jas. Huffman, Mrs. Everett Yorke and Mrs. W. Clare, followed by remarks of the chairman, Mr. Jas. Huffman. An interesting contest was conducted by Erma Swan on buying groceries.

Miss Hawley was then called upon to come forward and was presented with an end table and a silver flower basket by John McCreary and Mona Swan. Ronald Hutchinson read the address.

Miss Hawley, though taken completely by surprise made a gracious and fitting reply thanking them for their beautiful gifts, and inviting them to visit her.

Speeches were made by Jas. Hutchinson, Everett Yorke, and Charley Treverton which were enjoyed by all.

Dainty refreshments were served by the school children, and a happy social half hour spent together.

The evening was closed by singing "She's a Jolly Good Fellow".

DELICATE STOCKINGS: "Is there any way in which heels and toes of nylon stockings can be strengthened? My daughters won't wear cotton stockings, and go through nylons like paper. Any way to save them?"

A light starching of the foot of the stocking saves wear and tear to a great extent. A piece of adhesive tape pasted to the inside heel of the shoe does the same thing. A second piece of adhesive tape pasted over the great toenail helps reduce damage at that end.

STAMMERING: "My husband has stammered since he was a small child. Is there anyone in Hamilton who can help him? We have heard of a school in Toronto, but cannot locate one in our city."

Hamilton Chamber of Commerce say that classes formerly conducted by Y.M.C.A. have been discontinued. Why not contact "Y" officials for individual help?

SUNBURN: "I am a girl of seventeen with auburn hair and a fair complexion. I am a playground supervisor for the summer and my face doesn't tan, it burns. What can I wear to prevent this? Suntan oil is not good for my skin."

Our skin experts say you need a good protective coat for your face. They suggest first a special astringent, then a cover-up coat of liquid powder base, after that a very thin coat of cream powder base. This should do the trick and keep your face from burning. You will also get a fair tan filtered through this protected coat.

Russia Driving To Communize Japan from Within

Washington, June 29 (AP)—United States State Department officials said today Russia is pushing an active, calculated campaign to communize Japan from within.

Latest apparent evidence was the return to Japan of 2,000 war prisoners chanting Communist songs on their arrival.

On the basis of Tokyo reports, officials here forecast that 93,000 others whom Moscow has promised to free this year likewise will turn out to be well-schooled in Soviet ideology.

As other signs of Russian intentions, United States officials noted:

1. Soviet attacks on Japanese government efforts, backed by Gen. Douglas MacArthur as supreme Allied commander.

2. Communist attempts to control key communications and railway unions.

3. A campaign to promote trade between Japan and Communist China.

This view of Russian aims was outlined to a reporter after congress received a gloomy United States army report on current prospects for Japanese recovery.

Tracy Voorhees, assistant army secretary, urged a full $1,000,000,000 appropriation for government and relief in occupied Japan, the Ryukus Islands, Germany and Austria for next year. The House of Representatives cut the funds to $925,000,000.

The return to Japan of Communist indoctrinated prisoners from Soviet capacity is giving the state department much the same concern that was voiced in Tokyo when the first 2,000 arriced Monday. Officials said no decision has yet been reached on how to deal with the problem.

Monday's arrivals declared they were all pledged to join the Communist party in Japan. The parts in this year's elections polled nearly 3,000,000 votes and increased its seats in parliament from four to 35.

Six Unidentified Seamen Held

Port Alberni, B. C., June 29—(CP) — Police said last night they are holding without charge six unidentified seamen following a riot in this Vancouver Island town.

Hospital officials said four other seamen, also unidentified, have been admitted for treatment and that two still are in the operating room suffering stab wounds and other injuries.

It is believed the seamen involved are from the Eastern-owned S. S. Triland and the S. S. Canam, both in port here. The former is manned by Canadian Seamen's Union men and the latter by the rival Seafarers' International Union (A. F. L.) men.

First reports said a fight broke out in a downtown hotel and that it kept on in the street.

Port Alberni is situated at the end of Alberni Inlet, leading out to the west coast of the island 80 miles northwest of Vancouver.

Young Member Has Own Idea About Housing

Hellyer, Canada's youngest member of parliament, has another distinction —he beat out in the federal election a veteran parliamentarian in a riding so tough his party bosses regarded it lost.

Victor over John R. MacNicol, Progressive Conservative who represented Toronto Davenport for 19 years, Mr. Hellyer, 25, says he plans to make his voice heard in parliament.

His first concern will be with housing. On this subject he has a copyright report, the result of a Cross-Canada inspection tour carried out at his own expense. He hopes to present it in parliament soon.

His interest in housing comes naturally. After he was married four years ago, he lived with his wife's people and three other families because of lack of housing.

Mr. Hellyer, a native of Waterford, Ont., served for a short time in the R.C.A.F. He was discharged as surplus aircrew, then enlisted with the Royal Canadian Artillery. On his discharge he entered the University of Toronto and graduated this year with an Arts' degree.

Two Provinces Hold Future of Canada in Hands

"Ontario and Quebec hold the future of Canada in their hands. We can mold this country if we will," stated Mr. Leo W. Vezina, Montreal, vice-president and general manager of Canadian Industrial Alcohol of Canada in an address on "Provincial Citizenship Responsibility" delivered to the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club.

"I think the Fathers of Confederation were smart men, drawing up the B.N.A. Act, giving every province individual rights according to their beliefs. There was no supreme central power established which could take away these rights — freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom of thought and action.

"We are fortunate to have representatives of such calibre in the present government," he said.

The speaker continued, "No where else on this continent are there so many peoples of divergent views who have so much in common. One of the big jobs, which Kiwanis can do is to preach the doctrine of unity. We in Quebec province feel very friendly toward Ontario as we should. It is true that there are some crackpots but they are a small minority. I am sure that if we could get together oftener, and if we spent one half the time promoting mutual respect that we do in campaigning for elections we could live in true harmony. A warmth of heart and friendship is the heat which will melt the various peoples of this North American melting pot."

The speaker punctuated his remarks with many humorous and thought-provoking anecdotes. The speaker was introduced by Wilf Leporte and the appreciation of the club was voiced by Harold Seldon.

President Norm Edwards expressed the regret which the members felt at the departure of Bill Davies for Hamilton.

Stan Joss, chairman of the Public Affairs Committee was chairman of the meeting.

Four Lambs, Ewe Killed by Dogs

For the second time this season dogs have struck at sheep flocks in the 1st concession of Thurlow township with four lambs and a ewe being destroyed Monday night.

About six weeks ago dogs attacked two flocks of sheep owned by Shannonville district farmers and destroyed a total of 24 lambs and ewes. The destroyed lambs were owned by Mr. J. Brown and Mr. Whiteman.

Monday night the dogs struck again, killing outright four lambs owned by Mr. Brown. The barking of the dogs was heard by the owner who took a shot at the canines. He got a good look at the dogs and described them as a mongrel spaniel and an airedale.

Wednesday county constable Thomas Thorn of Belleville traced the dogs to Point Anne and stated charges would be laid against the owners for permitting dogs to run at large.

Services Mark 60th Anniversary Of Founding of St. John's Church

Bancroft—St. John's Anglican Church at Bancroft celebrated the 60th anniversary of its founding on Thursday and Friday of last week with special services conducted on both days. The 10 o'clock choral communion service commenced the celebration with the Reverend C. S. Wright, the celebrant and preacher.

The evening service was largely attended by members of the congregation as well as visiting clergy and friends from various points in the diocese. The Archbishop of Ontario, the Most Reverend John Lyons, of Kingston, being present, as well as the Reverend Cannon Stout, Rector of Gananoque, the special speaker for the service. Also in attendance were the Archdeacon of Ontario, the Venerable Arthur Smith, of Belleville; the Reverend J. M. Brownlie, Rural Dean of Hastings, and Marmora; the Reverend Cannon T. Leach, superannuated and second incumbent of St. John's Church; the Reverend A. S. McConnell, rector of Trenton; the Reverend G. Hope Swayne, rector of Picton; the Reverend J. Cantrell, incumbent of Marysburg; the Reverend A. F. Dowdell, of Maynooth, who was special organist for the anniversary services; the Reverend W. L. Simmons, rector of Athens; the Reverend W. McDonald, rector at Combermere; the Reverend W. A. Smith, incumbent at Madoc, and the Reverend R. F. Garden, rector of Wolfe Island.

Processional Ceremony

The service commenced with the processional hymn, "Praise My Soul the King of Heaven." The choir, preceded by the Cross Bearer, Mr. Floyd Twa, and followed by the clergy, the archbishop, and the chaplain proceeded from the parish hall to the church.

The service was sung by the Reverend C. S. Wright, incumbent, the first lesson was read by the Reverend R. F. Garden, and the second lesson by the Reverend J. Cantrell, both of whom were former incumbents of St. John's at Bancroft.

General prayers were said by the Reverend W. L. Simmons, a former incumbent at Bancroft. Before the Reverend Canon Stout was conducted to the pulpit, the congregation sang, "Now Thank We All Our God." The Reverend Canon Stout preached an inspirational sermon, using the text, "Lo I Am With You Always." After the ascription, the choir rendered the anthem, "His Name is Excellent."

Floral Offerings

During the announcements the "Welcome" was given to all visitors, and mention was made of the special thanksgiving offering for the day. The beautiful flowers on the altar were the gift of Mrs. Marjorie McCaw of Belleville, in memory of her son, Francis, who was killed in action on March 29th, 1943, while serving with the R.C.A.F. over Europe.

The church wardens, Mr. R. W. Blatherwick and Mr. R. C. Wiggins, assisted by the two sidemen, Mr. D. C. Wiggins and Mr. R. G. Kellar carried the alms to the Sanctuary steps where they were presented at the altar by the Archdeacon of Ontario, who then led the congregation in saying the general thanksgiving. The congregation remained kneeling while the choir sang the devotional hymn, "God Be in Thy Head." The Archbishop, the Most Reverend John Lyons, pronounced the benediction from the steps of the altar and the service concluded with the recessional hymn "Ye Watchers and Ye Holy Ones." The prayer at the west door was said by the Reverend J. M. Brownlie.

Voices Welcome

The incumbent, as chairman, called on the people's churchwarden, Mr. R. W. Blatherwick, to welcome the guests and members to the social hour and participation in the joyous jubilee services. The hall was daintily decorated for the special event giving it a homey atmosphere, which drew comments from many present.

At the conclusion of the service, more than 200 people gathered in the new parish hall for an 'at home' and its official opening by His Grace, Archbishop, the Reverend John Lyons, who in his remarks noted that the use of the hall should be in character with the work and honor of the church.

Greetings were received from te Reverend J. Grant Sparling, of Belleville; the Reverend Allen Anderson, of Stirling; the Reverend E. N. Grant, of Augusta; the Reverend Minto Swan, of Portsmouth and the Reverend J. Creeggan, of Prescott, who all expressed their regrets at their inability to attend. A number of clergy present gave their appreciation of the work of St. John's congregation, and the fine parish hall.

Speaks on Progress

Two members of the first confirmation class of St. John's, 60 years ago, when the church was consecrated by the late Archbishop Lewis, are still active members of the church. Mr. Walter Wiggins, former church warden, spoke of the progress made throughout the 60 years, and of the devotion of its members. Miss Alice Mullett, the other lifelong member was conducted to the stage by Mrs. R. W. Blatherwick, convener of the committee for the 'at home' where Miss Mullett cut the appropriately decorated 60th anniversary cake which topped off a fine buffet luncheon, served by the efficient committee.

The preparations for the Jubilee celebration have been shared by a large number of the congregation for several months under the splendid supervision of the incumbent, the Reverend C. S. Wright, of St. John's Church.

Friday morning, at 8 o'clock and at 10 o'clock Holy Communion of the Festival of St. John the Baptist, was celebrated by the Reverend R. F. Garden, and the Reverend C. S. Wright, respectively. At 8 p.m. the Apostolic rite of confirmation was conducted by the Most Reverend John Lyons, Archbishop of Ontario. Twelve candidates were presented for the Laying on of Hands.

In his address, the Archbishop also mentioned the important aspects of confirmation as considered by the Lambeth Conference in England last year at which conference he was present. A large congregation remained for the confirmation service.

The bank across the street . . .

DID YOU EVER notice how often banks do business, right across the street from their competitors? Of course it happens because of competition . . . because each bank tries to get into the busiest locations in town.

That certainly doesn't make things very easy for us! There are 10 chartered banks in Canada, all operating under government regulation, and with roughly the same services to sell. So the only way we can stay in business is to be on our toes at all times. That means keeping modern premises, hiring efficient, pleasant personnel, making loans wherever it is to our mutual advantage, and performing a lot of little extra services that we hope will make you like us better than the fellow across the street.

Frankly, we like it that way. Competitive banking keeps us from getting stodgy, and provides you with freedom of choice and an all-round better banking system.

THE BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA

TURNING THE PAGES OF "CANADA UNLIMITED"

Through swirling blizzards . . . along unmarked trails . . . the courier des bois struggled across open country with a dispatch. He slept in a bed of pine boughs in the snow, and often went days without food. Early Canada had no postal services. Couriers were hired to carry letters for those who could afford it.

When the first Post Office opened in Halifax in 1755, regular mail service to England began. In 1763, post offices were opened in Montreal, Quebec and Three Rivers by Benjamin Franklin, then Deputy Postmaster-General of the British Colonies in America.

During the 1800's, roads opened up. Boats began regular trips along the St. Lawrence. Mail services expanded until, in 1852, the Canadian Post Office was handling 3,700,000 letters. And on Christmas Day, 1898—thanks to the efforts of Sir William Mulock—penny postage was born.

Today Canada leads the world—carrying mail by air between distant points of our country . . . at first-class rates! From paper-making to transportation, the industries that make the postal services possible have contributed to this growth . . . have increased opportunity. Yes, there's room to grow in Canada Unlimited!

Just how much room is told in "Canada Unlimited", an illustrated 144 page book published by the O'Keefe Foundation. You may obtain your copy by sending 25c in cash (no stamps or cheques, please) to "Canada Unlimited", Dept. N3-11, O'Keefe House, Toronto, Ontario. Please print your name and address clearly. 450 STRIKES IN APRIL

Washington, June 28 — (AP)—More strikes began in the United States during May than in any month since the strike of 1947, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today. The number rose to 450 compared to 400 in April.

HAVE YOU $10 in U.S. FUNDS?

If you have more than $10 in U.S. cash you should turn it in to your bank, in exchange for Canadian dollars, without delay. Existing regulations make it illegal for any Canadian resident to retain in his possession more than $10 in United States cash.

HERE'S THE REASON

Canada must have the U.S. dollars spent here by tourists in order to make them available for the payment of imported goods and services needed to keep production and employment at a high level.

Dimaggio's Explosive Return To Action Brightens Yankees' Chances To Win A.L. Flag

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Two things became clear today. Joe DiMaggio, ailing heel and all, still is the most electrifying figure in baseball and the New York Yankees are definitely the team to beat for the American League flag.

It will be a long time before the 36,228 Boston fans lured out Tuesday night to Fenway Park by the prospect of seeing Joe back in action, will forget DiMag's 1949 debut. They saw Joe cover himself with glory as the Yankees defeated their favorites, 5-4. They know now that the Red Sox face a Herculean task to overcome New York's six-game bulge.

DiMag, who missed the Yankees' first 65 games because of an inflamed right heel, wasted no time proving that he had lost none of his greatness. Facing 20-year-old Maurice McDermott in the second inning Joe lined a single to left centre. Two outs later, he and Johnny Lindell scored ahead of Hank Bauer's home run to give the Yankees a 3-0 lead.

DiMag came up for his second time at bat in the third. There were two outs and one on. He rifled a fast pitch into the left field screen for a home run to put his team in front, 5-0. That was the ball game, as the Red Sox came back to knock out Allie Reynolds in the ninth and come within one run of tying it up.

Handled Six Chances

DiMaggio had six chances in the field and gobbled them up neatly. He drew one of McDermott's three bases on balls and grounded out in his fourth appearance.

The question now confronting not only the Red Sox but the other contenders as well is: If the Yankees were tough to beat without DiMaggio, how are they going to be beaten with him?

The runner - up Philadelphia Athletics remained 4½ games behind New York, whipping Washington Senators, 6-1, behind the seven - hit pitching of Alex Kellner. The rookie lefthander won his 11th game to join the Yankees' Vic Raschi as the top winning pitcher in the majors.

Cleveland moved into third place by a few percentage points over the Red Sox and Detroit, defeating the Tigers, 4-2. Bob Lemon bested Virgil Trucks, helping his own cause with a double to score the run that broke a 2-2 tie.

Johnny Sullivan's double and Gerry Priddy's single gave the St. Louis Browns a 12th inning run that beat the Chicago White Sox, 7-6.

Brooklyn retained its one game lead over St. Louis in the National League. The Dodgers defeated the Phils at Philadelphia, 5-3, while the Cards shut out Chicago Cubs in St. Louis, 5-0. New York Giants shaded the Boston Braves, 2-1. Pittsburgh and Cincinnati were rained out.

Duke Snider's three-run homer off Robin Roberts in the seventh broke a 2-2 deadlock to give the Dodgers' Preacher Roo his seventh victory.

Pt. Anne Bows To Picton 11-6

Picton, June 29—Two big innings gave Picton Athletics nine runs against Point Anne in a scheduled game of Belleville District Baseball League here Tuesday night. The local team had a 11-6 run margin when the game was called on account of darkness in the eighth.

Gerald Miller starred at bat as well as on the mound for Picton. His double in the third, with three on, cleared the bases. He also singled twice and walked once in five times at bat. He allowed 9 hits, struck out nine and walked three. John Green went the route for the Cementmen, giving up 10 hits, five of which were doubles, striking out six and walking five.

Walker Cooper Sheds No Tears Leaving Giants

Pittsburgh, June 29 — (AP) — Walker Cooper is shedding no tears for the manager he left behind — Lippy Leo Durocher.

The 34-year-old Cincinnati catcher is convinced the scrappy New York Giant manager wanted to be rid of him. He indicates the feeling was mutual.

"We never had words," Cooper said today. "But I always felt he never wanted me around and it was just a question of time when he would get rid of me."

Cooper was traded to the Reds June 13 in a straight player deal for catcher Ray Mueller. A few days later, the Giants sold catcher Mickey Livingston to Boston Braves.

"I thought Livingston was a better catcher than the two fellows (Mueller and Wes Westrum) that Durocher has now," Cooper continued. "I don't know why he got rid of him."

He added with a twinkle in his eye: "Somebody said it was because Livingston went around with me. I just wasn't very popular with Leo."

Of Durocher's managerial methods, the big catcher said: "I don't think he uses the right tactics in handling players. You can get on some fellows and help them. You get on others and you hurt them. Durocher jumps on everyone."

The Giants are currently in 5th place and the Reds in sixth. Lest his criticism sound like sour grapes. Cooper wants it made plain he's plenty happy with the Reds — and with manager Bucky Walters.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, June 29 (AP)—If Pittsburgh baseball fans feel the need of something to cheer about, they could do worse than organize an anniversary celebration today and tomorrow . . . It was just 40 years ago today that Pirates played their last game at Exposition Park and beat the Cubs 8-1. The next afternoon they moved into Forbes Field with a crowd of 30,338 on hand and lost a 3-2 decision to Chicago . . . That 1909 season was when Pittsburgh won the pennant by 6 1-2 games from the great Cub team that walked off with the flag four times in five years . . . Among the Pirates players were Fred Clarke, Hans Wagner, George Gibson and Tommy Leach, four of Pittsburgh's all-time great players. . .The Cubs included such stars as Joe Tinker, Johnny Evers, Frank Chance, Jimmy Sheckard, Ed Reulbach (the first winning pitcher at Forbes Field, Mordecai Brown and Jimmy Archer.

Shorts and Shells

Freddie Trenkler, the comedy ice skater, flew from Austria to Chicago to see the Charles-Walcott fight. Maybe he got some idea for his act.

Dots All, Brother

The Yankee players took up a collection the other day to present a gold pen and pencil set and a cash purse to their batboy, Ralph Carrieri, who enters the city college of New York next fall . . . Judging by his education, the Pirates Bill Werle should have been an outfielder instead of a pitcher . . .During his first two years at the University of California, Bill studied entomology . . . In case you don't know, that concerns flies.

Do You Know...

why rice is thrown at weddings?

Rice-throwing is a survival of ancient Oriental rites. In the East rice is a symbol of health and prosperity, and rice-throwing symbolizes the bestowal of wealth and happiness on the bridal pair.

Do You Know . . . that in Saxon times wheat and barley were scattered for brides to walk on and many believe that rice-throwing is an adaptation of this custom?

Do You Know . . . that ancient superstition has it that spirits hovered about weddings and rice was thrown to them as food in order to pacify and satisfy them?

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Today crack linksmen of the district are vying for the Bay of Quinte Golf Championship on the links of the Bay of Quinte Country Club. Napanee, Picton, Trenton and Belleville are represented and late reports today indicated outstanding play. The first rounds were shot this morning and the championship should be decided early this evening. The day's sport is being climaxed with a dinner in the clubhouse when visiting golfers will be the guests of the Country Club.

Allen (Joe) Kelleher figures that since leaving Stratford he is the forgotten man in baseball. Seems as though the youngster wrote for his release from the Stratford junior baseball club some eight or nine days ago — but the Stratford mentors apear to have ignored the request. That leaves the kid stranded on the beach of baseball insofar as playing with any other club is concerned since OBA regulations state that not only must a player secure his release from the club he is leaving but also secure a change of residence from the OBA before donning another uniform.

Kelleher claims he did not get exactly the best "deal" in the world from the Stratford people and decided to return home. Be that as it may. "Regulations is regulations" and must be abided by — or the stern hand of the OBA will fall like the well-known ton of bricks — or will it? Kelleher tells us that the manager of a Kingston junior baseball team is angling for his services.

The Atkins - Carlson wrestling feud has assumed such gigantic proportions that it might be an idea to re-inforce the walls of the Memorial Arena when these two smashing mat rivals meet in what each claims will be a final settlement of their bitter rivalry on Friday night.

* * *

Both of there grapling enemies were counted out of the ring in last week's gruelling grudge battle, while they were slugging it out on the floor of the arena. Although Carlson didn't ring up the victory he figured he would, it was the opinion of the majority of the fans that he had much the better of the battling throughout the action-packed bout.

* * *

Atkins was only slightly disturbed at the punishment handed out by what he had termed his "fancy-Dan" rival, and though he boasts he'll finish him off once and for all Friday night, he had to admit he's discovered Carlson is not an oponent to be taken lightly. The chips will be down for keeps, consequently, when they hook up in this forthcoming match.

* * *

Pat Flanagan will turn on his mat specialties against Wee Willie Davis in the semi-final and Herb Larson will test George "Red" O'Malley in the opener.

SAITH THE OSHAWA SCRIBE

There were a lot of bright spots and highlights in Saturday afternoon's game here. For one thing, they ran through the full quota in less than an hour-and-a-half. Bill Cook pulled off two of the finest running gloved-hand catches we've seen in many a day, one far to his left and the other one far over in right-field territory. The sparkling play of the entire Oshawa infield was a treat to watch with Dell improving nicely and Jubenville providing the ginger for the foursome. Hanna and McMullen are keeping up their end in the Stadium corners. Batawa had all their Trenton players on hand, with Mac Watson shining at 2nd and the youngster from Belleville, left-handed Pete Jones, showed up well at 1st base. Ross Knights always appears to be taking things easy and the type of game he threw indicates it also — he struck out only one batter, but he issued only two walks and after the first inning, gave up only four scattered hits. Big rhubarb and only real squawk in the game came when Jones' bat hit the ball twice. Umpire Ed. Schreider didn't see it so wouldn't call it. He eventually reversed his decision after a confab with the base umpire. However, a couple of things were noted during this heated discussion. Geo. Ticcony is inclined to say just a little too much and say it with a little too much heat to be tolerated by all umpires . . . and having George tossed out of a ball game would be a serious handicap to the Oshawa club. Johnny Kitchen ran in and got into the discussion and put his arm around the official — tut! tut! mustn't touch, Johnny! Also to Umpire Ed. Schreider — what you said isn't "correct procedure" either, old boy!

Meanwhile we hear that the O.B.A. has told Trenton that any Trenton baseball players who perform for Batawa or any other outside team without permission will be suspended. And that includes Bridgeman, Beckstead and Mac Watson.

Northern Electric and Trenton RCAF Flyers clash tonight at the Fair Grounds in a postponed Belleville District League fixture. The game was brought forward following the Trenton team's withdrawal at a special meeting of the league executive last night. Both teams have hit those hard-luck "on-run" streaks of late and tonight's tilt will see both squads in there battling for victory. The game gets under way at eight-thirty sharp.

The sypmathy of the sports fraternity of the city and district goes out to Art Genereux, Marie Kirkpatrick and Kay Doughty, the latter two of Toronto, in their recent sad loss of a beloved mother, Mrs. Elmira Genereux, of Point Anne.

Fred Atkins who renews his feud with sensational Tug Carlson at Memorial Arena Friday night in their third consecutive meeting of the current wrestling season. Atkins won the first brawl after Carlson claimed he got a "raw deal" and last Saturday night both were disqualified. So Friday's match has all the appearance of being a personal brawl and the fireworks should be plentiful. It should be the match of the season. Wee Willie Davis takes on popular Pat Flanagan in the semi-final while an outstanding preliminary has been arranged.

Rochester Wings Win Twin Bill From Syracuse

(By The Associated Press)

The chief fault of Tom Poholosky, young righthander of Rochester Red Wings, is his perchant for throwing home run balls.

Poholosky leads International League pitchers in tossing home run pitches with 18 but when the 19-year-old rookie leaves his gopher pitch in the club house, he is a tough man to beat as Syracuse Chiefs found out Tuesday night.

The big recruit turned in his best game of the season in pitching the Wings to a 7-0 one-hit triumph over the Chiefs in the second game of a doubleheader. The victory was his ninth of the season as against four defeats.

Dick West ruined Poholosky's bid for a no-hitter with a two-out double in the seventh inning. Poholsky walked only one batter and fanned ten.

The Wings also won the opener 3-2 in nine innings with Dick Burgett driving home the payoff run to give Erv Dusak his fifth triumph. The scheduled seven-inning game was sent into overtime when husky Steve Bilko parked his 14th homer with a mate on in the sixth inning.

Bob Hooper pitched the pace-setting Buffalo Bisons to an 8-3 three-hit triumph over Baltimore Orioles to extend his winning streak to seven games.

Royals Swamp Chiefs

The runner-up Montreal Royals swamped Jersey City Giants, 11-5, to remain four games back of the Bisons. The Royals broke a 5-5 tie with a pair of markers in the fifth and were never headed.

Sam Jethroe was the big gun in the Royal triumph. The Negro speedster cracked out two doubles and a single in as many trips, drove home three runs; scored two, and stole two bases. Turk Lown, who relieved starter Johnny Van Cuyk in the second, received credit for his first victory. 'Lown has dropped seven games.

Toronto's third - place Maple Leafs split a twin - bill with the last place Newark Bears, winning the opener 3-2 in 11 innings and dropping the nightcap. 8-7.

Skeeter Webb singled home pinch - runner Bubber Church with the winning run in the first game to extend Newark's losing streak to seven games. Joe Valenzuela went all the way for Newark and suffered his seventh loss compared to one victory.

The Bears jumped on Al Porto and Max Peterson for seven runs in the second inning of the nightcap but the Leafs got back into the game and it took some nice relief pitching by Frank Lamanna to save the Bears' hide. Ed Sanicki poled his 21st homer for the Leafs in the fourth inning.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

No, No, Elva Tyme. The Bath coup is not something the old-timers saved for Saturday night. It is a play in whist that is named after the famous watering place by the sea in England.

The word coup means a brilliant manoeuvre. This particular play is named after the city of Bath. Why? Some famous whist players of the last century pulled it there and stuck a handle on it.

Not that they were the first to use the play. In a couple of centuries of whist before then, players have put it across. None of them, however, gave it a name that clung to it.

The play itself is simple. Want I should give you an example? See the hearts in the hands as shown here:

You are sitting south with A J 2. Your opponent in the west holds K Q 10 3. His lead from such a holding is the king. Make up your mind as to how you are going to handle this suit.

A king lead indicates an original holding of A K with others or K Q J or K Q 10. You have ace and jack. So west must have led from K Q 10. Capitalize on this knowledge when you can.

Suppose you take the first trick with your ace. Know what will happen later? When east gets in and returns a heart your jack is cooked. You take no more than one heart trick in this manner.

Instead of winning the first trick with your ace, nonchalantly light a Murad. Don't study. Play the deuce and look innocent.

West may think his partner has the ace. Give him a chance to, anyway. If so, he may continue with another heart. Oh, boy. You will take two tricks where only one should have grown.

You have probably pulled this on an opponent many times. Only the name may be strange to you. A simple coup can make you coo and drive opponents cuckoo.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, June 29 — (AP) — If Crosby can win an Academy Award, why not Hope

This proposition is getting more sensible with each new Bob Hope picture. He's making "Where Men Are Men," a remake of "Ruggles of Red Gap" in which he sports mutton - chop sideburns and a British accent.

The comic glowed with the news that the Gettysburg address scene, which Charles Laughton did memorably in the original film, now will be included in the new version.

"When I suggested a few months ago that I recite the address, they laughed at me," Hope said. "Now they've decided to leave it in.

"You know what changed their minds It was the 'Sorrowful Jones' reviews, which indicated I might actually be able to act."

It's Murder

Hope laments the fate of a comic who wants to do something fairly dramatic:

"It's murder. People look at me and they automatically start laughing. I walk down the street and they say, 'There's Bob Hope—ha ha ha!' "

He added that "Sorrowful" helped make a transition for him. "Working with the kid gave me a chance to do something serious without being too obvious," he said.

Bob still hopes to get away for a two - week vacation in Jasper Park, Canada, but he said a few days in the local mountains revived his spirits before starting the picture.

"The air is pure ovaltine up there," he said. "One deep breath and the bellboy catches you and puts you to bed."

Capsule Review

"House of Strangers" (T.C.F.) is a strong hunk of drama. A hard-boiled tale of warfare within an Italian banking family, it is absorbing and powerful. Susan Hayward and Edward G. Robinson are fine. But the real news is Richard Conte's emergence as a star.

Emulating perhaps, some of their wild jungle forebears, the Zulu Jungle Kings, colorful colored baseball team will parade its diamond wares at the Fair Grounds Thursday night against the Batawa squad. The Zulu Kings come garbed in the primitive apparel of the Zulus, savage African tribes, and their antics along these lines is something not easily forgotten by those who see them. In addition the colored boys are baseball stars in their own right, many of them coming from topflight American colored teams. It is topflight entertainment both from a comedy as well as baseball points of view.

AT THE CAPITOL — Romantic rhythm — Lovely Dale Evans and Roy Rogers, King of the Cowboys, give out with some fancy western music in the Republic Trucolor production "Susanna Pass," which starts a 3-day run Thursday at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program, "The Rose of the Yukon," a fast paced action thriller of the north featuring Steve Brodie and Myrna Dell. Matinee daily at 2.00 p.m.

AT THE BELLE

"JOAN OF ARC"

A Memorable Spectacle, in Technicolor

A mignificent spectacle and a trtmendously moving story, Victor Fleming's production, "Joan of Arc," in color by Technicolor, came to the Belle Theatre yesterday as a memorable attraction.

The incomparable Ingrid Bergman delivers the greatest performance of her career in the title role, making the little peasant girl of Domremy come alive on the screen, with a force and brilliance and courage that probably no other actress could hope to match.

In portraying drama, which concentrated upon the last two years of Joan's life, Miss Bergman is splendidly aided by one of the finest casts ever assembled. Jose Ferrer as the weak and vacillating The Dauphin whom she crowns King of France, Francis L. Sullivan as the implacable Count - Bishop of Beauvais, J. Carroll Naish as the treacherous Duke of Luxembourg, Ward Bond, Shepperd Strudwick, Hurd Hatfield, Gene Lockhart, George Coulouris. John Ireland and Cecil Kellaway contribute their share of talent to this marvellous offering.

The panoramic sweep of the story begins with Joan's efforts to reach The Dauphin and convince him of her destiny, carries on through her reformation of the army and the spectacular siege of Orleans, to the imphessive coronation of The Dauphin at Rheims. Then comes The Maid's capture, her betrayal to the English, her dramatic trial and her death at the stake in the Rouen market place.

Remarkable use of color to accentuate the drama and the mood, and the breath - taking battle sequences stand out in the many superlative features of the RKO Radio release. Producer Walter Wanger mounted his film in lavish and authentic settings, and the screenplay by Maxwell Anderson and Andrew Solt perfectly captures the spirit of the immortal Joan. Unquestionably one of the finest pictures ever made, "Joan of Arc" is an absolute "must" for every theatregoer.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was looking at the headlines on his way to the sporting page, and I said, Hay pop, where were you when the thunder storm berst this afternoon?

I was in my office, being defuged by a rain of bizzness trubles, pop said, and I said, I got cawt rite out in the real rain. Oh boy, it came down solid, I said.

I doubt it, pop said. Even detts and taxes, than which nuthing descends thicker of faster, are not yet quite solid. So you must be careful not to get into the habit of ixaggerating, or you may cause as mutch trubble as Deerfoot Balmy did, he said.

G, who was he? I said, and pop said, He started out as a boy with an ixaggerated faith in human nature. Whenever he hd a chocklit bar he would let the other boys take a bite instead of breaking them fof a peece, and they took sutch enormiss bites that Deerfoot Balmy practically never had any chocklit left for himself, which was bad for his glands and gave him a deficiency in chocklit hormones, which happen to be the hormones that controle judgement. So Deerfoot's faith in human nature became more and more ixaggerated, and when he grew up and was made manager of the East West Northern and Southern Bank and Trust Company, he naturelly loaned money to everybody that asked for it, pop said.

Oh boy, I bet plenty asked, I said, and ppo said, Well naturelly. It got so that every morning when he opened his office he was met by a long line of tramps and human derrilicks of every discription, and he always beleeved their stories and their intentions and loaned them whatever they asked for, and in no time the bank failed, and that was the real beginning of the great crash of 1929. So how did the rain come down this afternoon? he said.

Trenton Manager Withdraws Team From District Baseball League Charges O.B.A. Lax in Decision

John Haffey, manager of the Trenton Town entry in the Belleville and District Baseball League voluntarily withdrew his team from the league, at a special meeting of the loop executive held here last night.

At special request of League President Malcolm Robb, Manager Haffey appeared in person before the executive to explain his position after the body requested the voluntary withdrawal of his team, at a meeting held two weeks ago. The alternative was suspension of the Trenton team by the executive.

Secretary John Francis, following the Trenton decision to withdraw announced that no change would be made in the schedule Trenton games would be automatically "washed out" and the remaining teams play future games with one another as laid down in the present schedule.

In defence of his position, and inability to field a team on a near par with others in the league, Haffey in a brief address to the executive charged that the Ontario Baseball Association was lax in handing down decisions regarding players residing in Trenton who were playing with the Batawa and 6 R.D. teams.

When it did make a decision stating these players would be suspended if they insisted on playing with these teams, Haffey said, it took no action when they did appear on subsequent line-ups.

League Should Have Helped

Haffey further charged that the League executive could have done something about the matter. "After all," he went on, "a league executive is not appointed merely to draw up schedules but to guard and protect its entries."

Referring to the Trenton team's inability to secure a park, Haffey said that President Robb could have stepped in which his executive and approached Trenton powers-that-be in an effort to secure such a park.

"If I have done wrong I apologize," he said, "but I thought I was working in the best interests of baseball."

The executive endorsed a motion authorizing the refunding of the entry fee of the Trenton team.

Other business including the clamping down of a curfew on night baseball games. No full innings will be started after 11.30 p.m. and if a game extends to midnight or after, it shall revert back to the score of the last full innings.

The league will undertake the expense of a wire netting for the top of the grandstand with the labor being supplied by coach Chuck-Burnett of Kiwanis Juniors. The Batawa COBL entry will be approached regarding a share in the cost of the proposed netting. Efforts are being made to secure a suitable scoreboard for the baseball park at the Exhibition Grounds.

Baldwin Hurls One-Hitter But Loses Contest

A one-hit pitching masterpiece by Frank Baldwin went for nought last evening as the Houston "Knotholers" escaped with their second close win in as many nights, downing the luckless McFarlane Woodenware nine 3-2 in the bottom half of a scheduled doubleheader. Stewart Warner hammered out a convincing 11-2 win over Provincial Engineers in the opener.

Some daring base running by Stew Wood and two errors paved the way for the Woodenware defeat. Wood, first man up in the game drew a pass and stole second. The catcher threw wide and Wood raced home with the first Houston run.

McFarlane's got that one back in the bottom of the first when Scanlon who singled, went to third on Peters' double and came home on the only wild pitch of the game. Woodenware went one up in the second when Holland who had doubled, went to third on Scanlon's single and came home on a wide throw by the second baseman.

Houstons scored their final two runs in the third. With two out Wood got on on an error and Wardhaugh walked. Wood stole third and came sliding in with the tying run on a passed ball. Wardhaugh worked to third on passed balls and came home when Spafford got to first on the second baseman's error. After that the McFarlane fielders tightened up and retired the Houstons squad in order in every inning but the seventh when Adams reached first on an error to the catcher.

Baldwin pitched a great game, striking out two, walking two, and giving up a lone single to Watkins to lose a heart breaker. Burshaw went the route for the winners, striking out ten, walking one, and being nicked for eight hits.

Line ups:

Houstons: Wood lf; Wardhaugh 3b; Spafford ss; Watkins 1b; Rollins 2b; Adams c; Taylor. replaced by Blaind in 6th, rf; Temple cf; Burshaw p.

McFarlane's: Scanlon ss; Peters 3b; Boyle 1b; Marsh c; Baldwin p; O. George rf; Skinkle cf; J. Moore 2b; Holland lf; Young batted for Peters in 7th; Hall batted for Boyce in 7th.

Score by Innings		r	h	e
Houstons	102 000 0—	3	1	1
McFarlane's	110 000 0—	2	8	4

Umpires: plate, Young; bases, Ethier. Time 1:07.

Take Lead in First

In the opener Stewart-Warner teed off on the slants of John Bawden for five hits, four singles and a triple, in the first frame to rack up four runs and jump into an early lead which they never relinquished.

Four singles in the third frame resulted in three more runs and the issue was never in doubt.

Provincial Engineers racked up their two runs in the fifth frame on two singles, a walk and an error. They threatened again in the seventh with two away but were shut out without any further score.

Stewart Warner went down in order in the fourth, fifth and sixth frames but broke out in a rash of scoring in the seventh when Lewis clubbed a home run to right field with the bases loaded to sew up the pastime.

That was all for Engineer starter Bawden and Farrar came in to relieve going the rest of the route without giving up a hit or a run.

McMillan went the distance for Stewart Warner striking out seven, walking four, and scattering five hits for two runs to notch his first victory. Bawden started for the Engineers and in six frames, struck out 11, walked none, and was blasted for 11 hits, 11 runs and the ball game.

Big man at the plate was Stewart Warner shortstop Lewis with a triple and a home run in four trips, scoring two runs himself and batting in five.

Lineups:

Stewart Warner: Hammitt 2b; Bertram, replaced by Muirhead in 5th, lf; Leforte 3b; Lewis ss; Booth 1b; Rowbotham c; Carr rf; Burley cf; McMillan p.

FRONTIER U.

By Oren Arnold

"Service to humanity, service to Arizona, service to youth; not a cheapened rivalry which could lead to bitterness and spite! All of America in this epic decade is trying to get away from pettiness. We too must march! There is a crying demand for money with which to build and broden this institution into the grandeur it should have. Now that you are here, may we not give a moment's thought to that?"

His impassioned plea, his winning personality which somehow had projected itself even through the loud speakers, had brought a silence to the throng. He spoke on, quietly, sensibly, profoundly.

His address was so complete a surprise that it verily shocked people. In his paternal way he shamed many of them. The election of a fiesta queen? In just 15 minutes that matter seemed forgotten! An orator was performing! A man who spoke with remarkable clarity and uncommon common sense. Polly and Joy looked at each other, then then at Ward and Ken who sat beside them. Not one of the youths spoke. Everywhere the college girls and the older citizens showed rapt faces.

When Dr. Palmer had spoken half an hour he built up strongly his plea for a university endowment fund. He said that a million dollars was the very minimum needed, and that it should be only a beginning of a fund to grow throughout the years.

All at once he was interrupted.

A large man stood up in the audience some 10 or 12 rows from him. The man took off a broad tan rancher's hat.

"My name is Buck McMurray," he stated, as if that were necessary. "I like what Dr. Palmer is saying. You can put me down right now for a gift of $10,000 in cash and a thousand head of yearlings. Be danged if I ain't got more property than I need anyhow!"

The people here in the amphtheatre were a little stunned by Buck McMurray's generosity. His gift of $10,000 cash and 1,000 head of cattle came as a complete surprise, even though Dr. Palmer had been asking for an endowment fund.

"Whe—euw!" a newspaper reporter exclaimed, breaking the electric silence after McMurray sat down.

Ther was no outburst of cheering or applause. Only a wave of murmuring, in awed tone. But the short interval gave Dr. Palmer time to collect his own wits. Master psychologist, he was thinking fast now! He remembered certain things Buck McMurray and others had told him in days past little carelessly dropped hints about Arizona and its people. In just a moment, therefore, he was speaking again, calmly , levelly, as if the gift was entirely normal.

"You are kindness itself, Mr. McMurray," he said, into the microphone. "I knew that we could depend on the desert country ranchers, the men in the southern part of the state here! Loyalty to high ideals has been part of their very rearing. And- - -"

Another man had risen. He waved his hat to command attention and he had it instantly.

"Listen here, sir, what Buck done is all right, but what you say about the south-state ranchers- - why hell's-for-torment, man, they ain't nothing like us up-country folk! Now I'm a Rim man. I own 72,000 acres between Flagstaff and the Mogollon Rim. I own 48,000 more, under the Bar Z Bar brand, over by Fort Apache. I got two daughters in this school m'self. I got sons coming up. We run up to 50,000 head of pure Hereford stock. Mr. President, sir, I'll just double Buck McMurray's cash ante and throw in 5,000 prime steers!"

"EE-YEOW!" Some cowboy gave that outburst.

Instantly pandemonium reigned. The mass meeting was a shrieking, shouting, hand-clapping, hat-and-waving mob. A full two minutes elapsed before Dr. Palmer could command quiet again and continue the meeting.

He didn't have much more to do, actually. He had touched just the right fuse- - the south country desert ranchers against the men who lived in the more wooded expanses that make up the northern part of the state. There has long been a friendly rivalry, both political and sentimental.

Rancher Travis Cox spoke next. Then Bull Hanes from Prescott, Rogy Goff from his Star Box ranch away over in Mohave country, both the Jett boys from down near Yuma and old man Slaughter from the wild Chiricahuas. The widow Drane from Safford spoke up with a gift of $5,000 payable at once and $5,000 in six months. Then the Dagett Brothers, owners of vast holdings in three southwestern states, with headquarters at Tucson, conferred a minute and donated a cool quarter of a million dollars to the university endowment fund.

"We c'n pay it to the college or pay it in taxes!" big Tim Daggett roared, grinning broadly. "I ain't never had no schoolin' myself. I aim for the younguns to git some!"

"Check and tally!" his brother said, "Let's make this a real cow country school. I'll bet any man a thousand dollars Frontier can beat Notre Dame in football inside of two years!"

That all but wrecked the meeting.

With the mass of people roaring above them, Polly turned to Joy Boone there at her side. "For pete's sake, Joy! Football excitement even before boys are admitted to the school!"

The two girls, with Ken and Ward, had been sitting in front just under the edge of the head-high stage that formed the crux of the great natural theatre here in Shadow Canyon. The theatre was back and up a ways from the University buildings proper. Polly saw Ken gazing down at the Administration Building. His face had a rapt look.

"It—it totals nearly a million dollars already!" he breathed near to Polly's ear. "And they're still pledging. Dad will be crazy with happiness."

"So am I," Polly answered.

He put a hand on her shoulder, as if on thoughtless impulse. "One does get to love his school! You think a lot of Frontier, don't you Polly? Can't blame you. I—I've been a lost sheep; only boy in the student body. But now— now— next fall they can admit hundreds of boys! I shall organize the first Frontier frat! It won't be snobbish, either; it will admit only the boys who can ride and shoot and rope and— and—"

"You intend to make it a rodeo froternity?" Polly teased a bit.

"What if I do?" Ken shot back. "There's something solid and good about the western tradition, Polly! You told me that yourself. I have found it so. Fellows like your brother, and—"

"Sh-h-h-h-h, your dad's speaking again."

Dr. Palmer was almost in tears now. His voice was husky, so that he had to say his thanks all too briefly lest he quite lose control.

"—and now please go on with the election," he concluded. "Go on with the lighter side. If any people ever earned the right to a fiesta, you have! You have shown great generosity, a noble spirit in the serious things. It is now time to have our fun. Will—will some one—some one please take the microphone!"

The huge audience sounded a hubbub of murmuming and talking again. Dr. Palmer had touched them deeply; mass meeting sentiment had held away here. Their subdued tones of approval were more powerful than any formal applause would have been.

The girl president of the Frontier student body, Leona Donaldson, was to have been chairman of the meeting, and she stepped toward the microphone now. It was she who would hear nominations for the fiesta queen. But in front of her, on the very front edge of the wide rostrum there, was a sudden clamboring.

"Why Ward!" Polly gasped, from her seat down below.

He had left them without warning and hadn't even gone around the side to the steps. He just vaulted up onto the high stage in a sort of foot and hand spring, paused there in full view of the thousands and dusted off his trousers and his cowboy boots, then walked to the microphone. His face was very cerious, firm, The girl Leona stared at him in astonishment, but he appeared not to see her.

Rioting Reported Against Reds In Slovakia Prov.

Church-State Strife Spreads, Details Lacking of Clashes

Prague, Czechoslovakia, June 30 — (AP) — Roman Catholic and diplomatic sources reported today loyal Catholics are rioting against communist groups in Slovakia in the spreading church-state conflict.

In some areas of intensely Catholic Slovakia it was necessary for communist authorities to impose martial law for a period of about 60 hours, a diplomatic source here said.

"Persistent reports about troubles keep coming in," said a reliable source in Bratislava, the capital of Slovakia.

The communist government's Ministry of Interior in Prague did not deny the reports. The information ministry said "the ministry of interior says it has no official report on these matters. It gives no confirmation, nor is there any official denial."

Police in one of the areas reported affected Turciansky Svaty Martin, Wednesday night denied the reports and said they were experiencing "exemplary quiet."

Twenty Injured in Clashes

The Roman Catholic and diplomatic informants here said that in the town of Nitra in Southwest Slovakia, 20 persons were injured in clashes and one policeman was severely beaten.

Other reports reaching these informants told of similar outbreaks in the northwest section of the province.

Details were lacking on the clashes because of government restrictions and monitored telephone lines. It is known that tension has been boiling up in Slovakia during the long church-state controversy, now apparently heading toward a climax. Archbishop Joseph Beran in Prague is virtually a prisoner in his palace.

According to the last pastoral letter of the Catholic bishops, scores of monasteries have been closed in Slovakia and priests and monks have been hauled off to jail or sent away to other areas.

VISHINSKY SAYS WEST FAILED IN PLAN IN GERMANY

Claims Soviet Firmness Forced Western Powers to Retreat

London, June 30.—(AP)—Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Russia's Foreign Minister, disagreed sharply today with western-powers analysis of the Paris Big-Four meeting and declared Russian firmness forced a western retreat.

Vishinsky said the agreements reached at Paris differed "seriously" from the original proposals put forward by Britain, France and the United States.

On the other hand, he added, after careful reading of the communique issued by the big four, "it is not difficult to see. . . the basic ideas of the proposals submitted by the Soviet delegation in the Council of Foreign Ministers during the very first days of its work."

In a 4,200-word statement distributed in London through the official Soviet News Agency, Vishinsky differed with Dean Acheson, United States State Secretary, on the progress of the Marshall plan and whether it was Russia or the west who wanted to give the Germans more freedom.

Acheson told a Washington Press Conferencee after his return from Paris that Russia had been put on the defensive in the struggle for Europe and was afraid to relax its iron grip on Eastern Germany because they knew they would no longer be able to control the German people if they did so.

Takes Opposite View

Acheson said the reason for the strength of the west in the Paris sessions was "the progress that has been achieved in the restoration of Western Europe."

Vishinsky, taking a complete opposite view, said:

"I think that precisely the failures of the Marshall Plan should be regarded as one of the reasons for the departure of the three (Western) Ministers at the Paris session from their original so-called "firm policy".

The Russian leader said the Paris conference came about because of mutual concessions over Berlin by East and West and added:

"I think that in the future too, it will be necessary to make certain mutual concession compatible with the principles of the Potsdam agreement."

Vishinsky charged Acheson with a groundless" assertion in saying the Russians were afraid to grant freedom to the Germans.

"How", he asked, "is one to explain the fact that both he and his western colleagues resolutely objected to all the proposals of the Soviet delegation directed precisely at restoring the unity of Germany and giving the Germans freedom in their own affairs?"

Acquire More Cows To Produce Milk Because of Drought

Kitchener, June 29. (CP)—Due to dried up pastureland and dwindling water supplies Kitchener and Waterloo dairies have had to engage supplementary milk producers.

Normally the ten dairies serving the city get their milk from about 180 producers. Now they are well over 200. The supply is getting shorter every day said Dr. C. K. Mader, Public Health veterinarian with the Kitchener Health Department. Dr. Mader said a heavier consumption of milk due to the hot weather and berry seasons has contributed to the situation.

SHARPSHOOTING FARMHAND HELD ON MURDER COUNT

Alfred Childs 20 Known In District as Nelson

Selby, Ont., June 30 — (CP)—Alfred Childs, 20, today faces a charge of murder in the hayfield rifle-slaying of Elijah McQuaig, 57, and the wounding of McQuaig's helper, 20-year-old John Ross.

Childs is expected to appear in court today at Napanee, five miles south of this hamlet 25 miles northwest of Kingston.

McQuaig was blasted from his hayrack Wednesday by a fusillade of bullets fired by a marksman hidden in a barn 250 feet away. Bullets caught Ross in the groin, right leg and left arm as he dashed for cover.

Another shot ripped through an automobile in which Harry Thompson, another district farmer, was sitting near the McQuaig barn. Thompson, unhurt, picked up the injured Ross and drove him to a nearby farmhouse for first aid. Ross was taken to hospital in Kingston where his condition was described as serious but not critical.

Two neighbors, driving along a highway a mile north of here, found Childs walking along the road. The youth, unarmed, entered their automobile without a struggle and went with them to police headquarters at Napanee.

Wanted for Theft

Police then disclosed that Childs, known in this district as John Nelson, was wanted for theft of a razor, pillows and clothing from Ephraim Robinson, on whose farm he had worked since March He had been missing from the Robinson farm since Tuesday.

Police said Childs bought 200 rounds of ammunition for a .22-calibre rifle in Selby Tuesday and spent most of that day in the bush, firing round after round. He is believed to have spent Tuesday night in the McQuaig barn.

Acquaintances said Childs was a crack shot with a rifle. He used to throw bottles into the air and smash them with rifle fire before they hit the ground.

Friends of Childs said he once told them he came from Calgary and had been travelling around since he was 12. He worked on another Selby district farm and at a sawmill near here before taking the job on the Robinson farm.

25 KILLED IN STORM

Tokyo, June 30 — (AP) —Between 25 and 35 persons Wednesday were reported killed and 1,000 houses destroyed or damaged by a heavy rainstorm around Kagoshima city in southeastern Kyushu. Jyodo news agency said 10 died when rain - soaked cliffs tumbled down on pedestrians.

BUILD PROPANE PLANT

Kingston, June 30 — (CP) — The Public Utilities Commission has decided to build a propane gas plant here, following a recent visit to a similar plant in Peterborough. From plans submitted the estimated cost is between $55,000 and $68,000. The gas plant here has been operating at a deficit for some years because of increased costs of materials.

Canadians will ski, swim and try to win cupie dolls at carnivals as the Dominion celebrates its 82nd birthday with a free holiday spirit tomorrow.

Although the weatherman says it's too early to predict weekend weather accurately, early indications are that fine weather will prevail in the east while conditions may be unsettled in the west.

A sombre note will be injected into celebrations in Newfoundland when Canada's 10th province observes Dominion Day for the first time. Islanders will recall the day in 1916 when the Royal Newfoundland Regiment was decimated at the Somme.

Next Sunday is set aside as Newfoundland's day of mourning for her war dead. Defence Minister Claxton and a Canadian Army band will participate in the ceremonies, which include a fly-past by R.C.A.F. Lancasters over the National Memorial to the island's dead in two world wars.

Elsewhere in Canada, the July 1 holiday will be a bang - up affair. Most businesses will shut up shop Saturday, leaving the way clear for sports, fishing trips, travelling, or just plain relaxing.

Weather is the all - important factor for the summer's first extended holiday weekend, but the weatherman says it's still a little early to predict weekend weather accurately. Early indications are that fine weather will prevail in the east while conditions may be unsettled in the west.

Holiday entertainment in Ontario will take various forms. Trotting races, regattas, an Indian pow - wow at Dryden, a carnival at Port Arthur and bathing beauty contests will attract their share of holidayers. A Royal 21-gun salute will be fired at Toronto.

Transportation and travel officials expect a traffic boom next Monday when holiday traffic will be a two-way affair. While thousands of Canadians journey south of the border, record numbers of Americans are expected to pour into Canada to celebrate July 4.

Business Continued At High Peak in First Half of Year

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

Business continued at a high peak in the first half of this year, rivalling the record figures of 1948.

Rumblings of a recession in the United States had only slight echoes in Canada.

True, competition was keener and it took more effort and promotion than a year ago to make the same sales, but for most firms the sales still were being made and there remained a big backlog of personal savings in the country.

Though situation has remained good, there is apprehension about the coming months, particularly the falling-off of exports to many countries, and financial difficulties in Britain. It has been regarded as almost axiomatic, too, that American trends, after a time-lag will be followed here.

An encouraging fact is that most observers regard the American situation as simply a re-adjustment from war and post-war boom conditions and many forecast an upturn in business there by early next year. In fact there already are signs of an upturn in some lines, with others probably still having a way to go on the downward path.

If indeed, the United States is through the worst part of its change-over, the effect may be felt here only slightly.

Canada hasn't altogether caught up with war and post - war shortages, particularly in housing. And we are fortunate enough to have a number of factors shooting new money into the economy and sending a stimulation into all lines.

Notable among these is the $100,000,000 a year going into the development of western oil, a sizeable amount in a country of 13,000,000 people. In other things, such as hydro - electric developments, we still are catching up with demands created by increased population and increased industrial production.

Such things are long - range affairs, looking to the demands of future years, and do not stop because of temporary drops in business.

There remains the fact that because of depletions elsewhere, there is great need for Canada's raw materials and demand should continue good unless there is absolute world economic collapse, which is not likely to be allowed to occur.

Det. Sgt. A. Keay, Toronto, Guilty of Disreputable Conduct In Police Duties; Rank Reduced

Toronto, June 30 — (CP) — One of Toronto's most popular city police detectives, Det. Sgt. Arthur Keay, today was reduced to the rank of first class constable following a special commission investigation.

A commission report on the conduct of the 48-year-old athlete did not outline the charge in view of the fact "the inquiry dealt with purely departmental discipline."

The board found that some of the allegations against Keay were uncorroborated and dismissed them. But the detective was found guilty of "disreputable conduct" in relation to his police duties.

The commission report said that facts revealed in the probe justified Keay's dismissal but he would be kept on the force in view of his previous good record and length of service with the force.

One of the best athletes on the Toronto force, Keay was suspended June 14 and the only indication of the nature of the charges came of Mayor Hiram McCallum, chairman of the police commission, who said they were "serious."

Keay was rated as an ace investigator and one of the most competent men on the force. He was active in the prosecution of drug addicts and runners. Circumstances of the death of a narcotic addict were reported to have been reviewed at the hearing. The detective's connection with the death was not revealed except that he was called to the house following the death.

Will Return to Duty

When informed of the board's decision, Keay said he would return to his duties as a first class constable.

"I was exonerated in everything except my personal conduct," he said.

The reduction in rank from detective sergeant to first class constable will mean a gross cut in pay of from $3,606 to $3,035 police said.

T. B. Horkins, who represented Keay said the board "gave us a good hearing and every opportunity to be heard."

Mr. Horkins said there was no suggestion that Keay had committed any illegal act. His demotion had come because the commission felt he was guilty of "indiscretion" in his personal conduct.

Horkins added: "It is a fact that Keay has had domestic trouble."

'Lack Top Level Supervision' Says Expert at Probe

Windsor, Ont., June 30 (CP)—Arthur J. Swanson, Canadian hospital expert and business administrator at Toronto's Western Hospital, testified before a Royal Commission today that "there was a definite lack of top level supervision," at Metropolitan General Hospital.

Mr. Swanson was first witness called when Judge Eric W. Cross, one-man Ontario Royal Commission, resumed hearings into General Hospital administration.

Previously the Commission heard testimony from 30 witnesses on hearings which lasted nine days.

Resignation of Mildred Maybee as superintendent of nurses and subsequent rumors of lack of discipline at the hospital touched off the probe. It was testified earlier that prominent Windsor men accompanied four nurses from the hospital to a party in Detroit.

Mr. Swanson said he found a "definite laxness" particularly in the ignoring of certain basic business principles.

He said the manner of making purchases at Metropolitan left much to be desired. The hospital expert found that records were not kept in detail.

SECOND OFFICER ON MAGNIFICENT IS REPRIMANDED

Navigation Officer Convicted by Court

Halifax, June 30 — (CP)—The navy closed the log today on the grounding of the aircraft carrier magnificent — Canada's capital ship.

A court martial Wednesday night convicted Lt.-Cmdr. W.D.F. Johnston, 31, of Barnstead, Surrey, England, the flat-top's navigation officer, of hazarding the 18,000-ton carrier through negligence or default. He was sentenced to be reprimanded.

The night before, a separate court martial found Commodore G. R. (Gus) Miles, O. B. E., Magnificent's captain, guilty of "suffering the carrier to be hazarded and stranded." The 47-year-old native of Rothesay, N. B., who has spent 33 years at sea, was dismissed from command of his ship and sentenced to be reprimanded.

Magnificent ran aground June 4 off White Point Beach 70 miles southwest of Halifax. She now is in drydock at Saint John, N. B. Estimated cost of the repair job is $750,000.

The court said, before passing sentence, that it had taken into consideration the officer's "previous good record."

Action is Taken To Break du Pont Industrial Empire

U. S. Attorney-General Files Suit Under Anti-Trust Law

Washington, June 30. (AP)—Attorney-General Tom Clark today filed suit to break up the Du Pont industrial empire.

The attorney-general announced that the action, under the States anti-trust laws, was filed this morning in the United States District Court at Chicago.

Among the major demands of the civil suit are a divorcement of the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours Company of Wilmington, Del., from General Motors Corporation of Detroit.

It also asks that the Du Pont family be required to release its holdings, described as controlling, in the United States Rubber Company of New York.

The suit names as defendants: E. I. Du Pont De Nemours, General Motors, United States Rubber, Christiana Securities Company, Delaware Realty and Investment Corporation, Pierre S. Du Pont, Lammot Du Pont, Irenee Du Pont, and all members of the Du Pont family related by blood or marriage to Pierre, Lammot, or Irenee Du Pont who hold voting stock in either United States Rubber, Christiana Securities or Delaware Realty and Investment Corporation.

Claimed Personal Holding Companies

Clark's statement announcing the suit said that Christiana and Delaware Realty "are personal holding companies of the members of the Du Pont family."

"This case is directed to the breaking up of the largest single concentration of industrial power in the United States," Clark said.

"The growth of Du Pont, General Motors, and United States Rubber to positions of market dominance in their respective fields has been marked by the elimination of many independent businesses and a decline in the strength and vigor of those that survived. . . ."

The suit alleged that the defendant corporations had violated anti-trust laws through agreements to purchase supplies from one another, by acquiring competing concerns and by employing "secret rebates and preferential prices" among the Du Pont companies while selling the same products "to other customers at higher prices".

27 ONT. COUNTIES WILL MARK 100TH ANNIVERSARY

Self Government Under County Council Plan Given in 1849

Toronto, June 30 (CP)—Twenty-seven of Ontario's 43 counties this year mark their 100th anniversary. The first to stage a celebration is Lambton, which today holds special festivities at the southwestern Ontario city of Sarnia.

Middlesex has set Aug. 17 as the date for its observance at London. Some others have yet to announce whether they will take special notice of the close of their first century under the present system of municipal government.

The counties which date their existence from passage of the Baldwin Act in the parliament of the Province of Canada in 1849 are: Carleton, Essex, Kent, Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, Hastings, Huron, Lanark, Renfrew, Leeds and Grenville, Lincoln, Lambton, Haldimand, Welland, Middlesex, Norfolk, Northumberland and Durham, Oxford, Peterborough, Prescott and Russell, Prince Edward, Simcoe, Waterloo, Wentworth, Halton, York and the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry.

Since the act was passed, 16 additional counties have been created. All 43 counties have county councils on which sit the township Reeves and other heads of smaller units of municipal government in the county.

Districts in North

In Northern Ontario, 11 districts take the place of counties. Municipalities are independent of each other; due to the great distances separating most communities in the north, there is no equivalent of the county council.

The Baldwin Act—It took its name from its sponsor, Hon. Robert Baldwin, Attorney-General of Canada in 1849—realized the hopes of men who saw that the pioneering regions of early Ontario could best develop under the unifying guidance of a county council rather than under the disinterested supervision of a central government. The act went through in the face of some opposition.

But the years that followed proved the wisdom of the far-sighted Baldwin and his supporters. All the eastern half of what is now Canada was evolving from a struggling beginning under colonial rule to the brink of a sturdy independence—and the youthful Ontario counties led the way.

Bay of Quinte District Golf Championship Won by Trenton

Under ideal golfing weather and on greens and fairways that were in splendid condition despite the recent dry weather, the Trenton Golf and Country Club team won the Bay of Quinte golf championship defeating Belleville by one point at the Bay of Quinte Country Club links yesterday.

It was the second consecutive title for the Trenton linksmen they having won the championship and trophy on their own links last year after turning back a last-minute Bay of Quinte Country Club challenge.

But they were extended to the limit—and one hole more.

A more or less dramatic finish occurred when Joe Valchar, Trenton and Spence Wonnacott, Bay of Quinte were all tied up at the eighteenth hole. They went on to the 19th and Valchar nosed the Bay of Quinte representative by one stroke to win the title and trophy for his club.

Trenton, Bay of Quinte, Napanee and Picton clubs were represented in the championships. Napanee and Picton were defeated in the morning matches and in the subsequent consolation match, Napanee defeated Picton.

Fine Golf Played

Some exceptional golf was played during the tourney. Geo. Stobie, Jr., playing for Bay of Quinte was forced to go to the 20th hole before he defeated his opponent.

W. Bentley, Napanee, won the low gross sweepstakes with a 73 with second low gross going to Tommy Carruthers, Bay of Quinte who carded a 75. Low net was won by R. Colliver with 66 with second low going to W. Wade of the Trenton club. Third low was split between B. McPherson, Napanee and Murray McIntosh, Bay of Quinte who tied with 69's.

Thanks to the efforts of club pro Charles Pidutti, the greens and fairways were in excellent condition. Many comments from outside players were heard praising the excellent condition of the course.

Following the tournament the visiting players were guests of the Bay of Quinte Country Club team at dinner in the clubhouse.

Dr. George Faulkner presented the championship trophy to victorious Trenton Club team as well as other prizes.

He congratulated the winners on their victory and other clubs of the fine calibre of golf played during the tournament.

Jury Recommend Floodlighting Of C.N.R. Yards

Recommendation that floodlighting be used to illuminate the Canadian National Railways freight yards at night, was carried in the verdict of a coroner's jury following the adjourned inquest Tuesday evening looking into the death of C.N.R. brakeman George Storms.

The jury found that Mr. Storms came to his death on June 14th at the C.N.R. yards through unknown causes and recommended through evidence given that the space between the rails was not sufficient to safeguard the lives of railway employees.

It was further recommended that floodlighting of the yards be used.

Mr. Storms was instantly killed on the morning of June 14th and was believed to have been struck by some object as he was riding a freight car during switching operations.

The inquest was conducted by Coroner Dr. R. W. Tennent with Assistant Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson acting for the Crown.

Third Children's Playground To be Opened at K. G. School

Due primarily to the interest and volunteer efforts on the part of interested parents and other residents of the community, a third children's playground is now taking form on the King George school grounds just inside the city on North Front Street.

Already several tables, a slide and sandbox are on the site, while as soon as the playground is fenced an additional slide and swing will be provided. The city Parks Board is supplying the fence and playground equipment while the work of setting the playground up is largely on a volunteer basis.

Residents of the Charles Street area were first to take action with respect to providing a small kiddies' playground in the city when earlier this season they fenced a vacant lot on Charles Street and fitted it out as a supervised play area.

Then again in Foster Ward area a second such playground was created and this has now been in operation for the past two weeks following official opening ceremonies.

First action toward providing a playground in the North Front Street area was seen about two weeks ago when parents and other interested persons met at the King George School and formed a committee to get things started. Norman Meldrum, Moira Street, is chairman with Howard Hall, Geddes Street, as treasurer, and Mrs. John Irwin as secretary.

The ultimate aim of the committee in charge is to provide a supervised playground for children up to eleven or twelve years but as generally is the case in ventures of this kind the main problem is finance to pay a full time supervisor.

For this reason donations are being asked by members of the committee. Any person desirous of making a contribution toward this playground venture may do so with Ray Grant, care of the Grant Funeral Home, North Front Street.

It is with a deep sense of responsibility that I say sincerely: "Thank You" to the people of Hastings South, who supported me and worked so hard in my interests, during the Federal Election. Several Injured In Car Collision

Miss Edith Trice, 23, South Foster Ave., suffered lacerations, and two other women received a shaking up in a two-car motor crash, which occurred on Highway 37 in the vicinity of Corbyville early this morning.

Other persons injured were Mrs. Clarence Johnston, South Foster Ave., who suffered a sprained ankle, and Mrs. Helen Johnston, who received a shaking up.

According to reports two cars in which the above persons were riding were travelling together towards Belleville. There was some fog on the highway and for some reason the first car, driven by Roy Johnston of Bloomfield, stopped on the road. The driver of the following car apparently failed to see the stopped car in time and crashed into the rear of the vehicle.

The injured persons were taken to hospital by Bush's Ambulance where a number of stitches were found necessary to close the cuts in Miss Trice's scalp. After treatment at the hospital all persons returned to their homes.

Three Young Men Charged With Shop-Breaking

Keen observation of neighbors, together with prompt action on the part of the local police department resulted in the capture early this morning of three young men who were charged with house-breaking.

Shortly before two o'clock neighbors in the Foster Ave. district observed three suspicious appearing characters and promptly reported the matter to the police station.

Sgt. Douglas Ellis with Constables Moore and Warring answered the call and near the residence of Aubrey Coe, 127 Foster, saw a young man apparently standing on guard.

As the police car approached, officers stated the man whistled and a second man appeared through a window of the Coe residence and the two scampered away with officers of the law in close pursuit. They were promptly apprehended.

Then Sgt. Ellis had a "hunch" that the third man might still be in the residence. So he crawled through the window and a search of the premises turned up the third man hiding beneath a bed. One foot sticking out from beneath the bed was the give-away.

The three men gave their names as Andrew Middleton, 18, and Lawrence Harding, 18, both of Toronto, and Donald Carr-Brant, 19, of Belleville. Carr-Brant was the man found hiding beneath the bed. The youths have been charged with house-breaking and have been remanded until Tuesday.

Police stated Mr. Coe and family were away at their cottage when the break-in occurred.

Are You Sick?

Great Healing Campaign
With EVANGELIST EUGENE GARRETT, of Texas.
BEGINNING SUNDAY, JULY 3rd.
Under Canvas Upper End of Coleman Street
SUNDAY: 11.00 A.M., 3.00 AND 8.00 P.M. AND EVERY NIGHT AT 8.00 P.M.

MR. GARRETT has prayed for multitudes in great campaigns in the U. S. A. Many have testified to being healed of all kinds of diseases and infirmities. Many healings have been confirmed by doctors. This gift of healing, almost entirely lost from the church, is being restored today — JUST BEFORE CHRIST COMES.

REPORT OF ONE OF THE LATEST CAMPAIGNS IN TORREON, MEXICO:

Faith was present from the very beginning and many received their healing before any preaching or praying was done. I said to Brother Cantu, "there is a little boy here on crutches. He can walk now for God has healed him." The message was interpreted and the boy came walking to the platform, holding his crutches in the air. Each night about 2000 assembled to hear the preaching and to be prayed for. One night I called for the people that had received their sight during the meeting. The platform was filled and the photographer was unable to get all of them in the picture. Then I called for the ones who had received their hearing and only a portion were able to stand on the large platform.

COME AND BRING YOUR SICK. COME PRAYERFULLY AND WITH A BELIEVING HEART.

JESUS WILL MEET YOUR NEED.

DOMINION DAY

Dominion Day 1949 is a day of importance for all the people living in the bounds of Canada because this nation is a greater nation than at any national anniversary hitherto. Newfoundland has come into Confederation and brought in her hale and hearty population. On Friday this year all the old Provinces and the new one, the tenth, will therefore celebrate the occasion as it never has been celebrated.

Canada has grown greatly. Into her bounds have come many persons in the past few years since the war's end, many of them from lands laid desolate by the aggressors, who sought to make a new world of slaves but only succeeded in destroying themselves and in making Canada and other free countries more powerful and influential. Among the new citizens are many who went through periods of atrocities in which many of them suffered or lost the head of the household or children. The displaced persons who have come to the Dominion came for love of liberty and are grateful for this land of freedom in which they are now settled. Many of them are apt students of our conditions and it will not be long until they are fully acclimatized in our ways and along our conceptions of personal life and liberty. They are proving apt citizens and are fitting into our national views. It is not hard to understand this for many of these came through great trials and tribulations and were found stout and loyal to the conception of liberty.

They have come to Canada at a time when our relations with the rest of the world are developing financially and economically and will help this countries the sooner to reach her larger stature among the nations.

Canadians and newcomers alike should be able to find in Canada's history inspiration for the development of the most happy land on earth. Our national bounds are wide and our riches of soil, forests and minerals are untold. In our climate there is inspiration for the fondest hopes for the development of strong bodies and vigorous minds in the free atmosphere of this part of the new world.

Our history is one of the most encouraging and inspiring of all ages. Young and vigorous can find here the promise of the future for a free people. Though Canada can date back her history more than four centuries, this land has the outlook of youth, full-hearted and full of great enterprises worthy of freemen. She can look back to Columbus, to Cabot and to Cartier who were intrepid explorers and discoverers. Modern Canadian youth have the spirit of exploration in their soul and that spirit, whether in enterprise, or in the expanding field of science, must find expression, will be the proof of the spirit that is in them.

Not only our discovery, and our early history rich in its lessons and in the great figures who walk our pages appeal to the newer and older citizens but our later history offers inspiration, especially as it touches the outside world to a degree which gives promise that Canada will be playing her part nobly in every movement for national accord and the creation of a spirit of brotherhood among the nations.

As far as years are concerned, Canada is young. But she is known among the nations great and small and has been able in no minor way to lend aid to others in difficulty. Though young she is becoming great or has become already truly great.

On Dominion Day observance our people, those whose ancestors have been here for generations and others up to the latest arrivals can surely feel the spirit animating this country, the spirit of good will to the world and that spirit of freedom which will never cease to lead Canadians to the full conceptions of democracy.

Canada has earned in the eyes of nations, many not so fortunate as we are, a name which invites their people to consider setting up their lives anew in such a new world. The Dominion has this noble reputation won through loyalty to the highest principles. That is one of the great appeals of this country to people of faroff lands.

KIND WORD FOR MILLIONAIRES

'Tis plain today that no one cares
To speak in praise of millionaires.
We'll feed the beggar on the street,
Be kind to every dog we meet,
But millionaires are viewed with hate,
And sorry is the rich man's fate.

At men who reach the top at last
The bitterest terms of scorn are cast.
No politician shrewd would dare
To praise the local millionaire.
'Twould cost him votes if he were heard
To speak of him one gracious word.

So, out of fairness, now I pen
These few kind words for wealthy men.
Few hospitals could larger grow
Without the gifts the rich bestow,
And sad would be all churches' plight
Dependent on the widow's mite.

The Red Cross, year by year, depends
On many a rich man's dividends.
Few gracious charities could live
Were there no rich men glad to give.
So many deeds of kindness theirs,
Let's thankful be for millionaires.

DARK VOYAGE

A woman gambler! I met one a few years back and must say that never have I seen a person more devoted to a cause than she was to the artful game of winning stakes. She was expert at cards. Every afternoon she rested, and her diet was prescribed strictly by the highest code of efficiency. She was a woman who by no means needed the money she could win, but she lived for nothing but to play cards every night for considerable stakes, and to win. Athletes in training and anchorites in monasteries seldom give themselves to more continuous discipline than did this woman.

It recalled to my mind a statement someone of authority made a few years ago, that gambling is an ingrown and almost ineradicable passion. A gambler lives for nothing but to gamble. Many of them are total abstainers as regards liquor, feeling that they must not drink if they want to win. They will deny themselves anything and do anything to win.

A person who has the inclunation to gamble had better keep a long sea mile between himself (or herself) and temptation. The end of that voyage is death.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

A man I know was sitting in the rear seat of a motor car that was zooming over the country highway. The car windows were open.

He yawned. A bee was wafted in the car window and it went right into his open mouth. Automatically, he shut his mouth.

What followed beggars, he assures me, all description. The bee stung him on the tongue. Many a time in his life he has gulped tea that was too hot; burned his mouth with hot potatoes, on one occasion, he got the wrong medicine in his mouth. He has been jabbed by dentists; he has had appendicitis, which can deliver a very hot pain. But that bee sting on the tongue was beyond anything, he thinks, that the human sensory system was ever intended to withstand.

It was like a needle in his brain. The yell he emitted was so violent and prolonged that the driver of the car momentarily lost control, and they went jouncing and bouncing over the shoulder of the highway and nearly toppled over. When they got the car stopped, there in the back seat was the victim writhing, raving and leaping up and down in the confined space. The tongue swelled up so instantly that he was unable to articulate and could not explain the circumstances. He felt he was going to choke to death. His friends dragged him by main force out of the car and began beating him on the back; then tried to make him lie down on the grass in the delusion that he might be suffering a heart attack. And all he wanted to do was leap up and down and holler.

When he tried to yell bee, it came out then. His friends forced him down on the grass, which, as he points out, is full of ants, bees, beetles, bugs. It was quite a battle before order was restored and the poor agonized man was able to communicate, by signs, what the matter was.

The moral of it all is, he assures me: keep your mouth shut in the back seat of a car.

NO BANANAS TODAY

Oslo — (CP) — Recent rumors of limited imports of bananas this year were promptly squelched by import authorities. With more vital wares needed, bananas will have to wait. The last shipment of bananas to Norway was in August, 1947.

Tensest Drama Being Staged in Czechoslovakia

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The world - wide ideological conflict between communism and democracy, involving a life and death struggle between religion and the red "ism," is intensifying. We have reached a crucial period.

The warfare is particularly tense in central and eastern Europe, where Moscow is striking fiercely at anti-red elements in an effort to consolidate the Soviet gains. However, the tempo also is swelling rapidly in the western democracies, which finally have admitted that communism isn't susceptible to compromise. The Orient is torn with strife in which communism is heavily involved.

The tensest drama is being staged in Czechoslovakia. There the communist government, charging the Roman Catholic Church with subversive activities, is striking hard. Roman Catholic informants say the government has seized virtually all church consistories in the country. Many priests are reported to have been arrested. Archbishop Joseph Beran is virtually a prisoner in his palace in Prague.

Dean Acheson, United States state secretary, has denounced the attacks of the communist-led regime in Czechoslovakia on Archbishop Beran as a violation of the "rights of conscience and the decencies of civilization."

The situation in Czechoslovakia is similar to what happened in Hungary. where Cardinal Mindszenty was charged with plotting against the republic. He was tried and condemned to life imprisonment.

Other Troubles

Other satellite countries are having their religious troubles, including Romania, Bulgaria and Poland. That's not strange in view of Moscow's edict that there shall be no interference with the campaign of anti-religious propaganda.

Meanwhile. a less sensational but effective house - cleaning is being carried on by the democracies. Communism has lost ground in elections in Italy, France, the Netherlands and Belgium.

In the United States the ideological problem finally is being ironed out. Attorney - General Tom Clark said in a recent interview:

"Communists in the United States are on the run, as a threat to government, as an influence in labor, or as a political party."

However, communism is sweeping China, which houses more than a fifth of the globe's population. The battle is far from finished and this no time for complacency.

500 Lithographers Out on Strike

Toronto, June 30. (CP)—Five hundred lithographers in three Ontario cities plan today to picket 23 plants, 21 of them in Toronto.

Workers in four Toronto plants went on strike Wednesday for a new working contract. Employers retaliated by closing the remaining 17 plants in Toronto, one in Hamilton and one in London.

The Amalgamated Lithographers of America (C.I.O.) called the four-plant strike after negotiations for a new contract bogged down. The old contract expired last Jan. 1.

Main Union demands are 37 1-2-hour work week, a 10-per cent wage increase, sick and accident insurance and a pension fund. Employers have offered a 15-cent hourly increase, a Welfare and Pension Fund, but no change in hours.

Union Secretary Harold Keenliside said Wednesday night "conditions were bad" in the four plants where 56 men left their jobs. The plants involved are Alexander and Cable Lithographic Co., Ltd., Bridgen's Ltd., Offset Print and Lithograph Co. Ltd., and Strathmore Press.

Mr. Keenliside said 350 men in Toronto are affected by the strike and lockout.

H. D. Holden, general manager of Offset Print Company, said the lithographers, who print labels, cheques, calendars and posters, are among the top-paid trades, with the average minimum wage at $1.58 an hour, but majority of workers made more. With over-time a top-paid craftsman could take home more than $100 weekly, he added.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE LANGUAGE OF PAINT

We have two expressions that have inspired and influenced life as nothing else—the language of paint and of words. Said Charles Johnson, Official Lecturer at the National Gallery, London: "Painting is one means of expressing emotions and ideas. It may thus be called a language."

Go into any art gallery and watch the people as they stand and look at the great examples of paint hung upon the walls. A silent communication goes on. The feeling, the form, the color and the message are all there—and much of the artist as well, for the really great artist puts much of himself into every stroke of his brush.

There is a beautiful portrait of a peasant woman upon the wall of my office. done by that great master Alphonse Legros. I look upon it every day when I am at work, and it is a continual inspiration to me because of the soul that woman, and can sense much of the background and experience that she knew. Perhaps a mother—a hard-working one, and one who knew the meaning of life.

Who can look upon the etchings drawings, or paintings of J.F. Millet, the Frenchman, without honoring the toiler and the more humble of this earth? There is a poignancy of feeling in everything that this great painter put to paper or canvas. He was very poor and his life was one of labor and sacrifice. But he left imperishable art There is language in all that he did. That language is an interpretation of the artist himslf.

My friend Prof. Herbert F. West who is the teacher of Comparative English at Dartmouth College, recently took up painting. He has made rapid progress and has surprised not only his friends but himself, and it now looks to me as if he were fast approaching the time when his language of paint will rival his fine language as a writer in words. Just as a hobby, the expression of oneself in paint is most worthy occupation and, as Winston Churchill has proved a genuine achievement.

The language of paint is one that anyone can understand, though it may speak in every language of man and be easily interpreted. t is a language that is universally born in the muman heart! And when a real artist puts it all upon canvas, it breathes life.

Personal Health Talks

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis or treatment will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letter should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. VITAMINS ARE NOT MEDICINE

According to W. R. Aykroyd, M.D., author of Vitamins and Other Dietry Essentials (Heinemann Medical Books, London), there are few other remedies so rapid and reliable as vitamin A for night-blindness. He sometimes gave Newfoundland fishermen, victims of night-blindness, a single tablespoonful of cod-liver oil, with the gratifying result that they were able to see on the subsequent night and safely resume their fishing.

Occasionally readers report similar immediate recovery of their ability to drive against traffic glare at night when they have taken only a few doses of vitamin A in one form or another—easiest to take is a capsule containing 25,000 units of real vitamin A (obtained from fish-liver oil), not the pro-vitamin carotene of yellow and green vegetables and fruits. This pro-vitamin carotene must be transformed in the body into real vitamin A, and the body can transform only a part of it in any case.

Formerly a good many readers assured me they experienced more "pep" every time they received a "shot" of vitamin B (thiamine) — but evidently the "pep" was of brief duration, for they seemed to need several "shots" a week or the medical merchant whose office nurse administered the "shots" made them think they needed them.

I'm no authority about anything, but just in case anybody wants to know, I wouldn't waste time running to the "clinic" for "Shots" of vitamin B1, no matter how much I might need it, as long as I could take it by mouth and keep it down.

The popular vitamin craze is now passing, happily, but I infer from the queries of readers that most people regard vitamins, especially shotgun combinations of many vitamins, as medicine if not magic. This idea is wrong. Vitamins are essential food accessories, and if one's diet contains enough vitamins to supply the requirements of good nutrition one can get no further benefit from all the vitamins in the drugstore taken in "shots" or in pills.

When any vitamin or combination of vitamins is likely to do any good in any instance it is of course only because it makes up the deficiency or deficiencies in the diet—supplements the nutritionally inadequate diet. This may correct or relieve the manifestations or nutritional deficiency or "malnutrition" but it will not cure anything—the old manifestations or symptoms will inevitably recur if when the individual stops taking the vitamin preparation—unless he or she has enough intelligence or common sense to adjust the faults in his or her daily diet

So it may be said that once you begin taking vitamins you must continue indefinitely if you want to maintain the gain in health or functional efficiency you have made. On the other hand it is equally true that you will never need to take vitamins at all if you pattern your everyday diet to suit your individual requirements, after the model or basic health diet described on p. 49 of The Seven Keys to Vite—for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Doctor or Nurse

Is there a law that a person must have a doctor or nurse if she doesn't want one? (L. C.)

Answer—No.

Sulfur

Your Acne pamphlet suggests "sublimed sulfur", but my druggist says "precipitated sulfur" is less grainy. What do you think? (Miss N. F.)

Answer—Sublimed sulfur is otherwise called flowers of sulfur. Precipitated sulfur is otherwise called milk of sulfur. Perhaps your druggist is right. For copy of the pamphlet Acne—Blackheads and Pimples send stamped self-addressed envelope.

Webster's or Brady's

Please send me your pamphlet on Somersaults. I've been doing them for 62 years, for a living. They have helped greatly to keep me "in the pink", as we acrobats say. (J. V.)

Answer—From the context I infer you do Websterian somersaults. I hope you won't consider my kind too childish. On written request any reader who provides a stamped self addressed envelope may have a copy of the Invitation to the Somersaultauqua, which describes and illustrates my kind and tells what they are good for.

WYATT—WEBB

On Monday, June 27th., at 2 p.m., the United Church, at Frankford, Ontario, was the scene of a pretty wedding, when the Reverend H. H. Lackey, B.A., B.D., before an altar banked with red roses, ferns, united in marriage, Luella Ellen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Webb, Trenton, Ont., and Wayne Redvers Wyatt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Wyatt, Frankford, Ont.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charming in a white flowered taffeta gown of period design, with long train. Her long veil of embroidered tulle illusion flowed from a coronet headdress embroidered with pearls. She wore white mitts, and silver shoes, and carried a shower bouquet of red roses.

Miss Leila Wyatt, sister of the groom, gowned in coral pink taffeta of period design, with embroidered shoulder length veil, caught with flowers and carrying bouquet of roses and carnations, was bridesmaid while Miss Ruth Lohnes, gowned in blue taffeta, with shoulder length veil, caught with flowers, was maid of honor. She carried a bouquet of roses and carnations.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

The Death Sentence

By ROY L. SMITH

It has long been the custom of historians to pay high tribute to the Greeks for the contribution they have made to the world's art and literature and every such tribute is well deseved. Similar appreciation has been expressed for the Romans and their genius for law. It is about time that we lifted our voices in appreciation of the Jews and his contribution to the religious life of the race. for no race of men since time began have rendered a service so significant and unique as they have

Religion Was Their Racial Genius

The glorious artistic achievements of the Greeks were the work of a few inspired and inspiring individuals. Great masses of the people lived lives that were sodden wretched.

The humane and exalted legal system of the Romans was the product of the enlightened idealism of a relatively few persons who happened to occupy positions of power.

The remarkable religious and spiritual insight of the Hebrews was a racial gift in which vast numbers of the people shared. An occasional individual might write a magnificient hymn, or psalm of praise, but once it was composed, then the whole nation sang it. The ability of an entire people to appreciate the beautiful and the noble is as remarkable as the genius of the artist who produces the work of art. It was in their genius for spiritual appreciation that the Jews excelled. This was racial genius.

> The Sunday School lesson for July 3: "The Songbook of the Bible," Psalms 1; 33: 12-15; 67 100.

No one can possibly know who wrote all the psalms, for some of them will remain anonymous until the end of time. But anyone can know who saved them from oblivion. It was the plain people who sang them day in and day out as expressions of their own deep longings and hopes.

No publisher brought them together in a great collection for the purpose of marketing them at a good price. No poet was ever paid for composing a psalm. Every line sprang from a devout heart, and every poem was preserved by those who had discovered that it contained the truth they could not quite express for themselves.

There is a sense in which it can be said that all the Hebrew people united in writing the book of Psalms. At least all the people by their singing, contributed some part toward their preservation.

The Introduction

The first psalm of the collection, the one which introduces them all, was put at the head of the book because it expressed the most profound religious and moral convictions of the Jewish soul. It declares once and for all the difference between the way of the righteous aand the way of the ungodly. The one leads to life, but the other to death.

There is a divine and unalterable principle operating in our world from which there is neither deviation nor escape. The godly are fortunate, and the ungodly are doomed.

It is not that the ungodly are the victims of an arrogant divinity who cannot be reasoned with, but that they have taken a way of life that can end only in death.

Like a man who has driven out on to a condemned bridge which collapses under him, so the man who sets out upon the way of the ungodly finds it ultimately betraying him.

We Are all Their Debtors

It is impossible for Chritians to even estimate their indebtedness to the spiritual seers among the Jews who bequeathed to us this noble collection of religious songs.

Every man who has found his life stabilized by the confident faith of the twenty-third psalm, every one who has found his wounds balmed with the beautiful assurance of the ninetieth psalm, every dicouraged one who has taken courage from the innumerable lines of faith—all these and countless others owe their peace of mind and their serenity to the holy faith and high devotion to the sweet singers of Israel.

POLICE SEARCH CAR

Ottawa, June 29 — (CP) — Police today combed the area for traces of a car with a smashed grill and radiator which Monday night struck and killed 17-year-old Frederick Herbert of suburban Gloucester Station.

The accident occurred on the highway near Uplands Airport south of here. The driver of the car did not stop, but left the youth's body lying in the centre of the road. Discovery of a patch of rusty water near the body led police to believe the force of the impact broke the radiator of the car.

FRONTIER U.

By Oren Arnold

"Ladies and Gentlemen," he began talking at once into the mike. Loud speakers commanded instant attention throughout the vast throng. "I may be rushing matters a little, but I sure do want to get in my say right now."

"You all know why we are out here. I'm tickled pink as a posy about the endowment fund, for I'm a rancher myself and I support this school. But as Dr. Palmer said, we have a fiesta next week in Phoenix. Now friends, some of you were pretty het up about selecting the fiesta queen I guess I am too.

"I want to say, though, that Arizona has a reputation for being friendly and hospitable. We can still hold to that reputation and have the prettiest girl in the United States to lead us in the fiesta fun. Friends, Frontier University was honored this fall when a certain nationally famous girl came out here, and I happen to know she's a wonderful somebody, in every way, and I take pride here and now in nominating Miss Joy Boone!"

He might have said more. In fact he did make a few motions before the microphone, as if trying to speak. But nobody would have heard him!

The throng had gone wild again. At least a part of it. Shadow Canyon is almost half a mile across, but its wall are sheer heights of 1,000 feet or more and the mass shouting echoed back and forth in spectacular manner. Ward's further speech, even through loud speakers, were thoroughly buried in greater sounds.

All at once then the handsome young ranch man was struck by stage fright.

"Good lord!" he murmured, astonished at his own temerity here.

Forgetting his hat which he had dropped onto the floor, he literally ran away from the girl Leona and from the microphone, jumped down off the rostrum, looked widly right and left once and then started rapidly toward the nearest exit. People hailed him everywhere but he paid no attention. Acute embarrassment had reddened him now.

"Ward!...Wait!"

He heard the feminine voice but paid no attention. He walked on, faster. When he had passed through the high side gate, made of natural rock, turned to go between some boulders that lined the side walk. he paused a moment to mop his brow. Here he was out of sight of everyone. He wanted a chance to collect his wits. Speaking before masses was foreign to Ward McMurray, however self-confident he was in his usual walks of life. And nominating a girl like Joy Boone was indeed a thing for him to have done!

His privacy lasted only a matter of seconds. All at once he heard footsteps—pat-pat-pat-pat in a rapid, feminine staccato--and there stood Joy herself! He faced her, his eyes afire.

"Ward!" she breathed. "You did it! You--nominated me!"

He made no answer.

"Why did you, Ward?"

He blurted it out then. From somewhere away deep inside him. "Because, Joy, I'm crazy in love with you! I can't help it! I had to do that, I had to be the one. Somebody else would have, but I couldn't let them! I-- you're famous, and everything. Rich. But I--oh, Joy! I know I shouldn't but I could'nt keep from loving you! All this time!"

In his emotional stress after seeing ranchers and others pledge an endowment fund for his university. Dr. K.T. Palmer walked quietly off the platform. His fine head bowed almost as in reverence. He moved out one of the gates of the amphitheatre Building when he heard footsteps running behind him. He turned to see Bettina Carlson coming, so he Waited.

"Kenyon," she cried, softly, as she came nearer,

He could not answer for a moment.

"I know how you must feel," she continued, "It's all so fine in every way. I had to come to you, Kenyon. To say how proud I am of you. And for you.

They fell into step together walking. She had taken his elbow.

"It is not I who deserve congratulations or praise," he managed. "The university, Bettina, is ——"

"But you do. You are the university. Don't you realize that?"

"I? I am the university?"

"Yes. People say so. No one has ever come here with a constructive program. No former executive has done anything but coast along. Something in you has fired these Arizona people. They have taken you to their hearts, Haven't they just demonstrated as much?"

He considered that. Then he answered her in an awed sort of whisper, "I suppose it is so. I hadn't looked at it that way. It means——it means a tremendous new responsibility for me, doesn't it? Yes. If there is a huge fund, money for education in these troubled times throughout the world——goodness, Bettina. Here we can begin to build something transcendent."

"Of course you can."

"You must advise me further. When we wrote the magazine article together, remember it was really you, Bettina, who crystallized my thinking. You could clarify what I felt to be essentially sound but couldn't boil down. You must have observed how I drew on that article today. I used not only its ideas and idealism, but much of its phraseology too. You and I together were speaking there."

She smiled her thanks. "No. Of course not. You were inspired. You felt deeply what you had to say that's all."

He looked down at her. Looked straight into her eyes. His own fine blue eyes were misty now. He didn't trust himself to say any more. Something had happened to him; something inside. It was different from the grandeur felt at the generosity of friends in the amphitheatre a while ago. It was even more grand; in fact it was overwhelming.

• • •

Polly McMurray saw her brother flee from the amphitheater after making his impassioned speech for Joy, and she knew he was up in a panic of self-consciousness and stage fright. She saw Joy get up to run after him Applause and cheering were ringing over the amphitheatre. Polly sat there a moment, wide eyed.

"Ward is right," she suddenly murmured, to herself really, but close enough to Ken Palmer for him to hear. "What he said about Joy having it is right. I——I can end the contest right now."

And so she too jumped to her feet and ran to the rostrum.

She was tripping up the stairs before Ken quite realized what she had done, what she had said.

"No," he shouted. Then he too was on his feet, running.

Polly got to the microphone first. She all but snatched the stand from the hands of Leona Donaldson, chairman of this mass meeting, but Leona offered no protest.

"Ladies and gentlemen," Polly began, frenziedly. "I want to say——"

"Hold it." A man's voice shouted that, and it also was amplified commandingly by the loud speakers. He had grasped the microphone stand too.

The quick little action drama, plus their shouted words, instantly commanded attention from the audience again. A hush settled over the multitude.

But Polly turned to the young man beside her.

"Ken——don't. I want to make a speech myself, can't you see? This is the moment to switch my votes to Joy. She deserves it, She——"

"Sit down," he ordered, although there was no empty chair in sight. "I can't let you do this. Friends of the university, you have just heard Ward McMurray place a name in nomination, but I——"

"Ken."

"Hush, Polly.... but I hasten to say that another Frontier girl—"

Neither he nor Polly realized that a microphone picks up all sounds, the low tones as well as the small, the private and the public.

Literally 10,000 people were listening in on them.

"Ken, what are you going to do?

"I'm going to make a speech, sweetheart. Can't you see?" He was desperately intent. "Ladies and gentlemen, I wish to nominate——"

Dr. S. Eagleson, Madoc, Friday Celebrates 50 Years as Doctor

Many of the children at whose births he attended nearly 50 years ago are now grandparents but Dr. Samuel Eagleson, family physician in Madoc village for the past half a century has no intention of retiring.

At 78 Dr. Eagleson still stands straight as a ramrod and his hand is as steady as that of any man 30 years his junior.

He still travels nearly 35,000 miles each year in an auto looking after the practice which he has built up since back in 1899.

For it was back before the turn of the century that Dr. Eagleson, then a young doctor just a year out of medical college, hung out his shingle in Madoc—since termed the gateway to North Hastings county. And it has been a gateway for Dr. Eagleson in more than one sense of the word for he recalls 50-mile trips by horse and buggy to visit patients in scattered settlements north of Madoc.

Seen Many Long Trips

"I've seen many a long trip by horse and buggy in my day," he recalls. "And I've seen many a cold one in the wintertime."

He still makes long trips to see his patients but he makes them in the comparative comfort of a late model car.

Born on a farm near the village of Queensboro, 10 miles northwest of Madoc, Dr. Eagleson would still be on the farm if he had carried out the wishes of his parents who wanted him to be a farmer.

But Sam's heart was in medicine, not in farming, and his determination to become a doctor resulted in a rare gift to the medical world and at the same time presented a conscientious and hard working family physician for the Madoc district.

Just as an illustration of Dr. Eagleson's wide practice it is his proud achievement to have been in attendance at more than 5,000 births in Madoc district during the past 50 years.

Thinks it is Record

"I think that I have almost set a record in that respect," he stated. "Occasionally I read about doctors who have attended at three and four thousand births, but never have I heard of any doctor passing the 5,000 mark.

Recalling his early life on the farm Dr. Eagleson told of going to public school at Queensboro and at Madoc. There was no high school at Madoc so he took his high school education at Campbellford.

Then to earn money for his tuition at medical college he turned to teaching when he was 16 and taught the three R's in Madoc district schools for several years. He then took his normal school at Ottawa and for one year was principal of the model school at Madoc.

It seems that a model school was the forerunner for the present day normal school. It was at model school that students learned the rudiments of school teaching. "Of course the course was not nearly as thorough," explained Dr. Eagleson.

Entered Medical Course

But when 23 years of age he quit teaching and entered the medical course at Toronto University where he became gold medalist as well as silver medalist at Trinity University. And in medical council examinations competing with medical students from other universities he had the highest standing. That was 50 years ago.

After practising a short time in the town of Arnprior in the Ottawa district, the young Dr. Eagleson decided he would hang out his shingle in his own Madoc district. With brief breaks for post graduate work he has been there since.

Not satisfied with a general practice Dr. Eagleson in 1913 decided he would specialize. So he went to Edinburgh and London where he trained in eye, ear, nose and throat diseases.

Built Home in 1917

Then he returned to Madoc to continue his practice and in 1917 built the home on Main Street of Madoc, where he still resides and has his business office.

Now at the time of life when most doctors are more than willing to turn the responsibilities of a general practice over to a younger man, Dr. Eagleson has still no thought of quitting.

"Why shoulld I quit?" he asks. "My practice is my life. If I quit now when I am still going strong and my health is good I would only be miserable."

The doctor admits that he has no hobbies other than medicine. He says it has been his life work and he wants to continue as long as he can. But he appreciates the fact that his patients are considerate and do not often ask him to work after hours.

"But I don't turn down emergency calls if I can possibly take them," he said.

Nothing But Praise

Dr. Eagleson has nothing but high praise for the doctors who administered to the health of people half a century or more ago but he still strives to keep abreast with new developments of modern medicine. New drugs are vastly superior to former medical practices he readily admits.

" Years ago," he said, "we used to give a patient chloroform for an operation and he was sick for four or five days. Now we give them a local and they hardly feel the effects."

Twice married Dr. Eagleson is now again alone his second wife having died last December. He has one daughter, Mrs. Owen Shields of Detroit, and two stepdaughters.

But the apple of his eye are his two young grandchildren, Arthur Shields, aged nine years and Marguerite 11 years. Arthur idolizes his doctor grandfather and despite his tender years has already set his eyes on some day becoming a doctor.

Of a naturally retiring nature Dr. Eagleson is quite willing to permit his 50th anniversary as a family physician in the Madoc district go unobserved. But not so relatives and friends in the community.

They feel — and rightly so — that 50 years unselfish service to the community shoulld not go unrewarded. And so it is that on Friday, July 1, the Madoc the community should not go their family physician, who has attended at births and deaths in the district for the past half century.

Chinese Girl Adopted by U. S. Soldier

New York, June 30 (AP)—A six-year-old Chinese girl arrived Wednesday night after a 12,000-mile plane trip from China to be adopted by former United States soldier.

Frank J. Chisari, 24-year-old radio technician, wept as he greeted the girl he found four years ago beside her mother's body and cared for in the fuselage of a wrecked plane.

The meeting ended a long fight by Chisari to bring the child to the United States.

The girl, known only as Ann, was flown here by a reporter and photographer for the New York Daily News, and an army nurse.

The newspaper's aid was enlisted by Chisari after, he said, several agencies gave him "the cold shoulder" in his attempts to get permission to bring the girl here.

The State Department later gave the child special consideration to get her in under the Chinese immigration quota.

A thousand people watched as Chisari picked up the girl and hugged and kissed her.

Ann, who was still almost a baby when Chisari left her in a Lutheran orphanage, was impassive during the meeting.

Chisari said he planned to bring Ann up as his daughter, and in a strictly "American Way".

Chisari, and his wife, Antoinette, 25, have two other children, a girl the same age as Ann and a boy, 2 1-2.

TO POSTPONE BUILDING

Sudbury, June 30 — (CP) — Construction of the proposed Sudbury civic centre will not begin this year.

City council unanimously agreed Wednesday night to put the question of a $700,000 debenture issue to a second vote next December, after city solicitor J. M. Cooper, K. C., advised that last December's vote carried a provision that $500,000 be first raised in public subscriptions.

Between now and next December the civic centre planning committee will continue its efforts to raise $500,000. The first attempt, in April and May, was a failure, only $60,000 being subscribed.

Dimaggio Shows How to Justify $90,000 a Year Pay Cheque With Three Homers in Two Days

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The same old Joe DiMaggio!

Three home runs in two days, six runs batted in and a .500 batting average. That's the stuff that make a $90,000 salary.

Dimag's ailing heel may slice a few yards off his private acre in centre field but he's still Mr. Big with the bat. Ten weeks of fretting in street clothes while his mates led the American League didn't dull his batting eye—at least not in Boston.

Big Joe electrified a giant-sized Tuesday-night crowd with a homer and single in his first league appearance since he limped off that same Boston field last October.

That was only the beginning. Wednesday he hammered two homers, one with two men on base, drove in four runs and personally accounted for the Yanks' 9-7 edge over the Red Sox.

That was the big series for the Sox. They had climbed to within five games of the Yanks. A series sweep and they would have been up there knocking on the door. Instead they trail the Yanks by seven games and are back in the second division. Joe D. is the man responsible.

Indians Avert Disaster

Cleveland averted disaster with a six-run rally in the last of the ninth inning to down Detroit 8-7 in a night game after they were shut out 4-0 by Hal Newhouser in the twilight opener of a double-header.

Bobby Feller let down the sweltering crowd of 65,243 when the Tigers knocked him out in a seven-run fifth inning. But the Tribe bounced back to win for reliefer Steve Gromek when pinch-hitter Bob Lemon doubled off Dizzy Trout with the bases loaded in the last of the ninth.

Carl Scheib finally got himself untracked, breaking a six-game losing streak with a 7-4 edge for Philadelphia over Washington. The result kept the second-place A's 4½ games behind the Yanks.

Ned Garver edged Walt Pierce in a tight duel as St. Louis Browns knocked off Chicago White Sox 1-0. Dick Kokos' eight-inning single broke the scoreless tie.

Keep in Step

Brooklyn and St. Louis kept in step in the hot National League chase as the Dodgers protected their one-game margin by defeating the Phillies 5-1. The Cards clung to their heels by bouncing Chicago 7-4.

Ralph Branca let down the Phils with five hits to hit the 10-win mark.

Ralph Kiner had a big day for Pittsburgh with a double and a bases-loaded home run in their 7-3 romp over Cincinnati. It was Kiner's second grand slam clout of the year, both against the Reds, and the fourth of his big league career.

Larry Jensen elbowed New York Giants past Boston 9-3 with the help of sloppy infield play by the Braves.

Ted Williams Has Most Votes

Chicago, June 30 (AP)—Ted Williams, Boston Red Sox slugging outfielder, held the individual vote getting honors today as workers continued to tabulate returns in the All-Star poll which closed last midnight.

Final returns of the poll, which will decide the starting lineups for the National and American Leagues in the 16th annual All-Star game in Brooklyn July 12, will be announced Saturday.

Williams currently holds an advantage of 115,512 votes over Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn's Negro second baseman and National League batting star. Williams has 1,746,896 votes to Robinson's 1,631,384.

Total vote thus far in the poll is 4,056,646 votes. Balloting was conducted by the Chicago Tribune and 527 associate newspapers, radio stations and magazines.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

There is plenty of excitement and thrills scheduled for the sports and entertainment-loving public tonight and over the July 1st rest-period.

* * *

For those who forsake the heat and humidity of the city for the cool lakes and streams of the country (lucky blokes, wot?) there is nothing of interest in the column today. But for the less fortunate who cannot loaf alongside a lazy stream, brush flies off stubbled faces, quaff a beaker of cool suds occasionally and in general let the world go by for the day, there is plenty to take their minds off the election, taxes and next week's labor.

* * *

For lovers of pulchritude and sweet and swing music there's the Charlie Spivak orchestra show tonight at the Arena when "Miss Belleville" will be chosen from a bevy of city beauties. Featured of course will be the Spivak band led, 'tis said, by a gent who plays the "sweetest trumpet in the world." Should be a good show for lovers of terpsichore, and those who like feminine beauty in bathing suit and evening gown form.

* * *

Something unique in baseball is on tap this evening for the diamond faithful. The Zulu Jungle Giants, an American colored baseball team, who disport themselves apparalled in grass skirts, bones in noses and ears and the greater part of the terrifying habiliments of the Zulu warriors, minus assegais, will be the guests of the Batawa Shoemen in a night game at the Exhibition Grounds.

* * *

These minstrel men turned baseball stars are nobody's Paggliachis when it comes to disporting themselves on the diamond. Indicative of their ability is the fact that they defeated the Central Ontario Baseball League leaders, the Peterborough Marines, 6-5, in an exhibition tilt played in the Liftlock City the other night. The majority of the players are graduates of some of the finest colored teams in the U.S.A. and the ebony-hued DiMaggios, Williams, Newhousers and Beardens are really some "punkins" when it comes to tossing the ball around.

* * *

Garbed in the dress of the Zulu Chiefs, the Giants put on a show that is well worth seeing. There will be plenty of comedy as well as good baseball and that should provide some neat evening's entertainment for the faithful.

* * *

Tomorrow afternoon, at three o'clock to be exact, the Picton and Northern Electric teams of the Belleville and District Baseball League swing into action. Picton has been coming along like a house afire and they are now hugging the league leaders closer than a Scottie's sporran to his kilt. The "Spaniards" defeated Point Anne 11-6 in their last league clash and they will be out to add to their win column record at the expense of the Electrics.

* * *

"Cuffer" Noakes and Frank Grandame, however, have other ideas. The Electrics haven't been basking too much in the smiles of Lady Luck lately and they're not feeling too happy about the thing. So it should be a neat and nifty contest when the teams clash tomorrow afternoon. Remember, it's an afternoon tilt.

* * *

According to Fred Atkins, tomorrow night's wrestling match at the Memorial Arena, when he tangles with Tug Carlson, his arch-enemy of the mat, will be not only finish of their explosive, long-standing feud, but it will be the finish of Carlson as a contending headliner as well.

* * *

Carlson, on the other hand, feels he had a good edge in the battling last week when both men were counted out as they slugged it out outside the ring. He has a lot of fans to back up his opinion, to boot.

* * *

While these opposing versions leave the issue hanging in mid-air, one thing is definitely certain. When these two smashing rivals charge at each other there'll be mat fireworks galore.

* * *

Wee Willie Davis, the mean, huge villain of filmdom and matdom, will have a puzzle to solve when he tries to get past fast and tricky Pat Flanagan in the semi-final match. A lot of fans figure Davis has been having things too much his own way, but in Flanagan, with his aerial attacks and mule-kicks, the bullying Davis may be in for the surprise of his cocky campaign.

* * *

* * *

A triple header is scheduled for the South Hastings Baseball League on the holiday with Cannifton guests of Shannonville; Corby's playing at Read and Melrose clashing with Latta on the latter's diamond. Cannifton and Shannonville are in one-two positions in the league standing and this game should be the pick of the pack, although there will be plenty of excitement at the other tussles.

* * *

Saturday night at the Exhibition Grounds the Central Ontario Baseball League leaders from Peterborough clash with Bill Easton's Batawa team in a scheduled league fixture under the lights. The Petes are on top of the heap at present but can slip off the rung if the Shoemen take them here and Oshawa pulls out with a two-ply win in their double bill in the Motor City against Brockville.

* * *

The Shoemen lost a close game against Ty Tyson's Oshawans last Saturday when the ball went through the shortstop's legs and rolled merrily to centre field as two Oshawans scooted across the plate. Just what lineup Manager Easton will field on Saturday is conjectural. Trenton's withdrawal from the Belleville District League may make Bridgeman, Watson and Beckstead eligible for Batawa on Saturday. However, we are of the opinion that the infield of Jones, Rankin, Keith MacDonald and Mouse Bush used by Batawa a short time ago was the best out there this season. Game gets under way at 8.30.

* * *

The sports fraternity of the city and district, especially the Belleville and District Baseball League, extends sincere condolences to Malcolm Robb, president of the league, in his recent sad bereavement. President Robb's father, the late Charles Wesley Robb, of Colborne, passed away on Sunday last.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, June 30 (AP) — Since most of the votes for the 1949 major league All-star teams have been counted. let's take a look at the players who started last year . . . Counting out pitchers, about half of them will be missing from this year's lineup... To refresh your memory, National League starters were Johnny Mize, Red Schoendienst, Andy Pafko, Peewee Reese, Walker Cooper, Stan Musial, Enos Slaughter and Richie Ashburn... The American League, beset by injuries to Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams and George Kell in 1948 started George McQuinn, Joe Gordon, Ken Keltner. Lou Boudreau, Buddy Rosar, Tommy Henrich, Pat Mullin and Hoot Evers . . . Of these, Mize, despite his poor hitting, Reese, Musial, and Henrich are out front again; so are Williams, the top vote-getter, and Kell . . . Schoendienst is giving Jack Robinson an argument; Joe Gordon is close to Cass Michaels; Slaughter is sure to make the squad and so is Boudreau because he'll manager the American Leaguers . . . Except for McQuinn, who dropped out of baseball. the others are playing just so-so ball this year while guys like Eddie Kazak, Andy Seminick, Eddie Robinson, Michaels and Eddie Joost have come to the front.

Statistical Note

A checkup by Charley Segar, National League publicity man, shows that in the last 34 years, 17 teams that were leading the league July 4, won the pennant and 10 that were second at mid-season moved up to win . . . Apparently the only thing that old tradition proves is that the team in first place July 4 is hot.

Oakville Boy Leads Qualifiers In Junior Golf

(By The Canadian Press)

Bill Louth of Oakville Tuesday blazed over the par-72 Mississauga golf course in suburban Toronto with an 81 to top a field of 78 golfers in the qualifying round of the Ontario junior golf championships.

His nine-over-par score gave him the honors in the Class A competition, open to boys from 16 to 18 years. A total of 18 boys qualified for the finals in the A division.

Today qualifying rounds will be staged at five other points—Hamilton, London, Windsor, Peterborough and Brockville. Big entry lists have necessitated qualifying rounds being held in various centres. The finals will be held at Weston, July 15.

President Frank Shaughnessy of the International League today will visit Quebec City to inspect the park and playing facilities of Quebec Braves—but he was mum about the chances of the Braves entering the triple-A circuit.

Rumors that the Newark Bears franchise would be transferred have been common in baseball circles recently. The Bears are far down in last place in the International League and attendance has been low.

The Canadian-American League in which the Quebec team plays is a class C loop.

At Dallas, Pete Gray, one-armed outfielder with the Dallas club of the Texas League, Tuesday was given his outright release.

Gray, who figured in an incident Saturday which led to his arrest and subsequent release when it was found he was not intoxicated, said he will go to his home in Nanticoke, Pa., where he owns a business.

A former big-leaguer, he said he is uncertain about his baseball future.

At New York, welterweight king Ray (Sugar) Robinson said Tuesday he intends to be a fighting champion from now on. That depends, of course, on his defeating Kid Gavilan of Cuba in their 15-round title bout in Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium July 11.

Harlem Flash, through Manager George Gainsford, said he doesn't have trouble making the 147-pound welter limit and, besides, the middleweights won't have any part of him.

A 15-round return bout between champion Joey Maxim of Cleveland and Gus Lesnevich of Cliffside, N.J., for the N.B.A.-recognized American light heavyweight boxing crown was approved formally Tuesday by the Cincinnati Boxing Commission. The bout will be staged by promoters Sam and Benny Becker at Crosley Field Sept. 19. The Beckers are reported to have lost $40,000 when Maxim won the title from Lesnevich here a month ago.

At Westbury, N.Y., William H. Cane's Good Time stepped the mile in 2:04 flat—fastest time in the history of Roosevelt Raceway for a three-year-old pacer—in winning the first division of the Village Farm Stakes Tuesday night. The second division went to L. M. Brown's Royal Blackstone, which was timed in 2:05½.

Each division was worth $7,800 with the winners netting $3,510 apiece.

Black Bass

Live Bait vs. Artificial Lures

Outdoorsman magazine recently sent out a questionnaire to a comprehensive group of fishermen. Some of the figures that this inquiry discloses bring to mind a matter that has been troubling me for a good many years.

Outdoorsman's totals show that 93% of the anglers questioned fish for Black Bass. It shows also that 57% go in for still fishing with live bait.

What I can't understand is this --in view of the fact that Black Bass respond so readily to artificial lures, and particularly to flyrod lures, why don't more fishermen take advantage of the fun that this great game fish has to offer them?

To be sure, fishing for Black Bass with suitable fly-rod tackle requires a certain amount of new equipment and considerable practice to learn how to use it, but the rewards certainly more than offset the trouble and expense.

Defends Black Fighter

For a great many years I have been a member of the Anglers' Club of New York. There of course, the Atlantic Salmon is king and the Brown Trout the crown prince. Each year, along about this time, I have been a source of annoyance to many of the brotherhood because of my insistence upon injecting the lowly Black Bass into the daily luncheon conversations. Black Bass, they insist, are "coarse fish" and, as such, not to be included with the kingly Salmon and the princely Brown Trout in comparative discussions.

Being a hardhead sort of fellow who talks all to often when he should be listening, I defend the Black Bass, and that includes both the Largemouth and the Smallmouth, against all comers. I have no hesitation in stating outright that a man who condems a Black Bass as being unworthy of a finished angler's steel simply knows not whereof he speaks. In other words, he's talking through his hat.

One of the famous bass fishermen of past years was President Grover Cleveland. After his retirement, President Cleveland lived in Princeton, New Jersey, where he spent a great deal of his time fishing and writing about it. While his works show a fondness for trout fishing, you can't help having the impression that the Black Bass particularly the Smallmouth, was really his favorite. Although he would resort to live bait on occasion, he fished for Smallmouth mostly with flies.

President Cleveland certainly could not have been classed as a "meat fisherman." He was a sportsman of the highest order. His preference for Black Bass was formed purely because he knew fish and fishing and he recognized a great game fish when he saw one.

Do Not Have Ability

For a long time the intolerant attitude that the Salmon and Trout fishermen assume toward the Black Bass puzzled me. Repeatedly I persuaded one or two of these fellows to go with me and try their hands at fly fishing for bass.

Then a great light dawned. I found that about ninety-nine per cent of those scoffers simply did not have the ability, technique and general all-round angling "know how" to enable them to angle for Black Bass [illegible]sfully with fly-rod tackle. [illegible] being equal to the exacting requirements of the sport, it is not surprising that they save face by condemning it.

Making my living as an outdoor writer, it is inevitable that I should know a great fishermen. In addition, I see a great many in action whom I do not know. Yet from all this number, I can count the really good bass fishermen of my acquaintance on the fingers of my two hands.

Another thing that makes me impatient with anglers is the secondary regard that they hold for the Largemouth as compared with the Smallmouth. This is true even among the seasoned bass fishermen.

Little Difference

Dr. James A. Henshall, in his sterling work, Book of the Black Bass, went into the comparative fighting abilities of the two major species rather thoroughly. He sums it up this way.

He stated that his perceptions were not keen enough, nor his casting hand so finely tuned, that he could distinguish any difference between the Largemouth and the Smallmouth when they were taken from the same waters.

In my secondary and humble secondary opinion, Dr. Henshall was right. I too, can find no marked difference in the degree of fight that the two species will show when they are taken under equal conditions. However, I do find a marked variation in the character of their fighting methods.

This difference is difficult to put into words. If you are a bass fisherman and have caught a goodly number of both species, you will know what I mean.

In the North Branch of the Susquehanna River there is an ample supply of adult Smallmouth. Also, there are Largemouth in the river and we pick one up now and then along the shoreline with a bass plug.

Many times I have said to my companion. "Hello, there's a Largemouth for a change," long before the hooked fish has shown himself at the surface. As I say, he fights just as well as a Smallmouth of equal size and gives a good account of himself, but somehow his behavior against rod and line is "different." That's about as close I can come to it.

Respond to Periods

..There .is .one .characteristic,

There is one characteristic, however, that the Smallmouth and the Largemouth do have in common and that is their pronounced tendency to respond to the prompting of a Solunar Period. At those times you will find the Largmouth alert and eager to sample your offerings. The Smallmouth leave their resting quarters in the deeper water and cruise through the shallows in search of food. Then they will fall upon plugs, your streamers or your bass plugs with high gusto.

Acquire the habit of clipping the weekly schedule from the SOLUNAR TABLES and placing these clippings in your kit where they will be handy when you want them.

Believe me, it will pay you this season-- or any season-- to keep track of the daily solunar Periods.

Bob Bunton Hurls Electrics To 7-3 Win

Behind the masterful six-hit hurling of Bobby Bunton, the Northern Electric team tacked a 7-3 defeat on the slipping Trenton Flyers at the Fair Grounds last night in a postponed Belleville District Baseball League fixture.

The tall Electric flinger was never in better form as he held the Flyer sluggers in the palm of his hand over the nine-inning route. He struck out eleven and issued but two free tickets. He aided his own cause when he sloshed out a single in the third during an Electric rally.

He was tabbed for two of the six hits in the first when Flyers scored one of their three runs, but after that was practically invincible yielding but four hits for two over eight innings.

Flyers started Curtis on the mound and he lasted until the fifth when he was relieved by Eckley after giving up five runs for eight hits. Eckley went in with two out and retired the side. After that he held Electrics to a brace of runs. Curtis whiffed three while Eckley struck out none and walked three.

Electrics three run rally in the fourth practically tucked the game away for the planters. The teams were tied at one all when Carson got aboard through a Flyer bobble. Reeves and Vance went out and Carson pulled a sensational steal home to score. Donovan lashed out two-bagger and James drove him home with a clean single to right centre. Bunton drove out a hot hit just inside the third base foul line scoring James and Wardhaugh went out to end the rally.

Electrics scored single runs in the second, fifth, seventh and eighth.

Vern Goyer was the big gun for Electrics with a triple and two singles bouncing off his war bludgeon, Carson got a pair with Donovan rapping out a double and Reeves, James and Bunton getting singles.

Sawyer headed the Flyer hit parade with a double and two singles with Maracle getting two and Coursal accounting for the other clout. Eckley and Coursal teamed up for the only double play of the game.

The teams:

Northern Electric: Wardhaugh, 3b; Goyer, cf; Fitzpatrick, 2b; Carson, 1b; Reeves, ss; Vance, rf; Donovan, lf; James, c; Bunton, p.

RCAF Flyers: Maracle, 2b; Choinard, 1b; Renaud, 3b; Coursal, c; Zaleski; Greenough, cf; Brown, rf; Sawyer, ss; Curtis, p; Eckley, p.; Samain.

Score by innings:

N. Electric	010	310	110—7	9	1
Trenton Fl.	100	100	100—3	6	3

Bunton and James; Curtis (5), Eckley and Coursal.

Umpires: Townsend and Reriton.

Toronto Leafs Drop to Fourth Place in League

(By The Associated Press)

Newark Bears are a weak last-place outfit in the International League pennant race but when it comes to belting home runs, the Bears tip their hats only to Toronto Maple Leafs.

Wally Hood, thanks largely to a trio of roundtrippers, pitched Bears to a 11-6 triumph Wednesday night over the Maple Leafs.

Lou Novikoff started the Bears' home-run parade with his 15th of the season in the second inning off Bill Smith. Smith left the game in the fifth inning when the Bears pushed over five runs to clinch the game.

Bud Heslet accounted for three of the runs with his 10th homer and Hank Workman for the other two with his 13th four-bagger of the season. The three barrier blows boosted Newark's output to 67. The Leafs lead the league with 79 homers.

Toronto collected seven hits off Wood including two homers by first baseman Bill Glynn. The homers were Glynn's 15th and 16th of the campaign.

The defeat dropped the Leafs from third to fourth place in the standing in favor of Jersey City Giants who trounced the second-place Montreal Royals 17-3.

George Bamberger coasted to his ninth victory of the season as the Giants supported his eight-hit pitching with a 20-hit barrage against a trio of Montreal pitchers.

Neal Watlington paced the Giant drive with five hits. Watlington slammed two doubles and 3 singles, drove home five runs. Shortstop Hank Thompson chipped in with two homers, his 13th and 14th of the season and Monte Irvin with his eighth.

A scheduled doubleheader between Buffalo and Baltimore was rained out and a carded single game between Rochester and Syracuse was postponed because of wet grounds.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By ARCH MACKENZIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver. June 30 — (CP)—The death last week of Marcel Rainville of Montreal must have brought back to some the memory of another Canadian tennis great of that same 1925-35 era.

And although Dr. Jack Wright has abandoned his racket for golf clubs, he has a collection of memories of what seems now to have been a golden age in Canadian tennis.

He wouldn't pose for Eric (Vancouver Province) Whitehead when the scribe and a photographer found him painting his back steps. But the Nelson, B.C.-born player, now 44, did a little reminiscing.

Team-Mates

Seven times Canadian amateur champion, he played alongside the great Rainville in the Davis Cup matches of 1931-33 and met such performers as Bill Johnson, Big Bill Tilden, Jean Barotra, Henri Cochet, Rene Lacoste, Fred Perry, Sydney Wood, Frank Shields. Bunny Austin, George Von Cramm, George Lott and Johnny Deog.

One thing standing clearly in his memory, he told Whitehead, was an afternoon at Orange, N.J., when he took the mighty Tilden to 6-4, 14-12 after having him at set point four times.

He told Whitehead of an episode in 1929 when, straight from competition at Wimbledon, he arrived at Toronto for the Canadian championships. Before the week was out, he ousted Deog from the semi-finals and conquered Shields in the final. Deog then was the top-seeded U. S. amateur player and Shields was No. 2.

Best

Asked for his choice as the greatest, he replied:

"Definitely Rene Lecoste. That Frenchman was a terror. He was so good he could break your heart. Tilden didn't rate with Lecoste."

Coaltown Looms As Horse of Year Midway in Season

By JOHN CHANDLER

New York, June 30 (AP)—With half of the year gone, Coaltown looms as the "horse of the year" but it might be well to postpone handing out the posies until the Pimlico special is run late in October.

Horses winning that one usually wind up at the top of the list when the votes are all counted.

Coaltown, the No. 2 Calumet colt back of Citation in 1948, came into his own this season and captured eight straight races until he was upset last Saturday by Star Reward in the Equipoise mile at Chicago's Arlington Park.

The speedy son of Bull Lea-Easy Lass has defeated many of the handicap stars in his 1949 campaign.

But he might not be able to clinch his claim for highest honers on the turf until the Pimlico Special in Baltimore during the fall meeting at Old Hilltop. There are a lot of others he still hasn't met.

The Pimlico Special, inaugurated in 1937, is designed to be a horse "world series." Eligible entrants are the winners of 35 premier American races. The Special has been run 12 times, and on eight occasions the winner became horse of the year.

Olympia Leads

Fifteen of the 35 events have been held, and Fred Hooper's Derby favorite, Olympia, leads in the number of qualifications with three — the Flamingo. Wood Memorial, and Withers.

Coaltown has qualified twice, with his victories in the Widener and Gallant Fox handicaps. The same goes for Greentree Stable's Capot, with his Preakness and Belmont scores, and for I. J. Collins' Vulcan's Forge, winner of the Santa Anita handicap and Suburban handicap.

Calumet also qualified Ponder for the mile and three-sixteenths Pimlico fall class through the Kentucky Derby.

Others already eligible are Alfred Vanderbilt's Loser Weeper, Metropolitan Handicap; Brookmeade Stable's Chains, the Dixie; Clifford Moores' Old Rockport, Santa Anita Derby; Belair Stud's Shackleton, winner of last Saturday's Dwyer, and Ace Admiral, the Santa Anita Maturity.

LARGE U. S. STAMP

The largest postage stamps on record were those issued in 1865 by the United States with an area of 7.48 square inches.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

New names are beginning to appear in the bridge championship lists. There is a significance in this. It means that the oldtimers are being overtaken by the later generation of players.

When someone new wins a title there is a tendency to call it luck. Particularly by the oldsters who won so frequently in the past. These are slipping as others improve.

After all, contract bidding is only about 20 years old. Those who were already expert auction bridge players had an edge. They stepped into the contract picture before others could develop.

Even if their bidding was not accurate their play ability gave them advantage. They could overcome their many bad contracts with brilliant play of the cards. Or defend uncannily.

The newer generation of players started from scratch in all the departments. And they got a confusing start in their bidding basics. Gradually is coming to them the sounder foundations.

They are not yet as expert in play. But they will be in time. Meantime, however, their bidding is getting better. And this will soon balance the scales.

A few of the past experts are beginning to admit this. If not to others at least to themselves. Realizing what they need, these will come forward again only by renovating their bidding system.

Kibitzing a pair of doddering hotshots, this is what I saw. One opened with a heart and the other responded with a spade when holding this hand:

♠J 8 6 2
♥9 6 3
♦9 4 2
♣J 6 3

What does a player expect to accomplish thereby? His hand is absolutely valueless and should pass. Was he making an attempt to fool opponents? Did he think he was doing his partner a favor? Or was he just contemptuous of results?

There is no fool like an old fooler.

Hollywood, June 30 — (AP)— Los Angeles will have a new legitimate theatre, promises Gregory Peck.

This metropolis has long had but one regular legit theatre. A group of stage - minded filmites, headed by Peck, hope to alter that situation. They plan to build a playhouse in Beverly Hills.

"But may take two years," Peck said.

Jottings

Joan Davis, making a film return in "Turned Up Toes," tells me she turned down a tempting television offer because it had to be done in New York . . .

Charles Bickford thinks 'Whirlpool' will be his last picture for this year. Income tax, you know.

Puzzle of the week: How the Screen Writers Guild named "Treasure of the Sierra Madre" as the best "western" of 1948. May be it should be classed a "musical" because Walter Huston did a jig in it . . .

Mario Lanza's next film will be "Kiss of Fire" with Ava Gardner and Kathryn Grayson. Big things are planned for the lad. His studio has even been dusting off "San Francisco" for a possible remake with music . . .

AT THE McCARTHY — On guard! Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is back on the screen as a swashbuckling soldier-of-fortune in "The Fighting O'Flynn," a Universal-International release, closing tonight at the McCarthy Theatre, out-duelling and out-shooting his opponents — and charming fair young colleens with on-the-spot poetry.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking and thinking in his private chair and ma was starting the bridge problem with a serious expression and I was feeling mad at myself, saying, Aw cramberries, gosh shang the luck, darn it all, G roozalem, good nite, I did the darndest dum thing today I ever did in my life, I said. Heck, darn it all, how can I be that dumb and live? I said, and pop said, Prince Hamlet asked himself that same question in slitely more elevated language. What's it all about for Peet sake? he said.

Well, ma gave me a dime to get a cup of ice creem from the kind he had left was plane vanilla and that's the only kind I dont like, gosh shang it and darn it, so what did I have to go and buy it for? I said, and ma said, You actually bot it for land sakes?

Sure, that's where the dum part came in, darn it all, I said. I tried to sell the last half of it to Puds Simkins for 2 cents, but he claimed he wasn't that mutch intristed in plane vanilla, so finely I had to give it to him free before it all melted, just for the sattisfaction of feeling generous. Jimminies, am I dum? I said, and ma said, Now dont take it so hard, the most brilliant people are libel to make little slips. I was reeding that even the grate Professer Einstein, the genius who discovered what makes the werld go around, or why it does not go any faster, or whatever it does, doesn't dare add up the simplest grocer bill

2 collum addition, she said.

Even Shaksbeer was no exception, pop said. The only time he ever spoke vulgarly and told his wime she could always trust him to bring home the bacon, he was overheard by a collumnist fro mthe Stratford Snoop, and the next day the paper came out with the story that Shakesbeer admitted his plays were written by Bacon. So cheer up, son, pop said.

Which I partly did.

Footprints Found Leading to Bush

Val D'Or, Que., June 30. (CP)—Gaston Marquis, leader of one of the parties looking for 16-year-old Gollis Grey, missing since Saturday, late Wednesday found footprints believed to be those of the missing boy, approximately four miles southwest of where he was last seen.

Experienced bushmen said the found footprints believed to be seven rubber boot and they think the wearer was staggering, possibly from fatigue.

Searchers said the tracks indicated young Grey was heading southwest further into the muskey and bush area between Lakes Bourlemaque and Marnet.

Chief A. D. Riddington of the Bourlemaque police organized 60 new volunteers from nearby mines into parties to follow the new clues.

The search is rapidly growing in pace despite belief openly voiced by townspeople that the lad is not lost. They say he knew enough about the bush country near his home not to become lost.

Finding of the boy's brown jacket in the bush Wednesday spurred on the searchers and helped to assure them that the boy is actually somewhere in the bush.

Young Gray was last seen shortly after noon Saturday when he set out from home saying he was going fishing in nearby Lake Blouin. He had no money and was to have begun work at Lamaque Mines Monday.

Gas and Stomach Disorders
Made Him Tired, Rundown

Couldn't Sleep Well, Got Dizzy Spells, "Very Poor Appetite, Had No Energy," Says This Man. Tells how Syntona Helped Him.

When the stomach is out of order and food fails to digest properly, many common symptoms may often follow. Appetite is frequently lost and you may feel fatigued, nervous and unable to get sound sleep. Constipation, backache, sick throbbing headache, and dizzy feelings are just a few of the symptoms which may add to your suffering.

Syntona Herbal Compound has proved highly beneficial for men and women suffering this way because it acts on kidneys, liver and bowels while at the same time relieving the sick, upset condition of the digestive system. "It is a medicine which every person should know about," said Mr. Oliver Guilfoyle, Granton, Ontario, in a recent report.

"I don't know what I would have done without Syntona. I was suffering [illegible] with gas, cramps and constipation [illegible] got awful dizzy feelings, could [illegible] proper sleep, and had [illegible] Syntona was the only thing that would settle my stomach and help make me feel better, so I decided to take it regularly for a while and almost each day I could see that I was improving. Now, it has cleared up all the gas, cramps and other distress in my stomach. Constipation is relieved, my appetite has returned, sleep is sound and restful and I am feeling like myself once again.

"I have no hesitation in recommending Syntona to anyone suffering as I did."
